Whisky Ration Goes Off In Time For Merry Britons To Ring In New Year With Good Cheer

By ANNE KRAMER
 LONDON (AP)—Whisky-parched Britons will be able to ring in the new year in style. For the first time since the war's end, whisky will be off the ration lists. For eight years most of Britain's whisky has been exported to earn dollars. Supplies for home consumption were reduced to a mere trickle.

Now, with production boosted, the government is abandoning the old austerity program which gave liquor stores and merchants yearly quotas based on a small percentage of their prewar sales. A familiar figure, debonair and monocled and clad in well-cut tweeds, is returning to national magazines to invite readers to a "whisky and soda."

Scotsmen stoutly maintain that whisky is not to be used lightly as an ingredient in "a fashionable clamjamfry or a cocktail." The Scot will allow a little plain water or even an ice cube, but he prefers to drink it neat and wash it down with a gulp of water. The water must be fresh, preferably from a stream. Stale water flattens the whisky and makes it insipid ("wersh" is the Scots expression.)

The Scots are partial to malt whisky, which they call "heige breanna." That's Gaelic for water of life.

Until about 60 years ago this was the only kind. Barley is still used exclusively in the pot stills of the Highlands and the Hebrides. Today grain whisky, made from

Black Market Babies Pose Big Problem In US; Curb In Growing Racket 'Must'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ) said today a New York City prosecutor's grim tale of a black market in babies has shown that a tough federal law to curb it "is a must."

Hendrickson made the statement as he called a husband-and-wife team of criminology students to testify today in this second day of public hearings into causes and possible cures of juvenile delinquency.

He said Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon Glueck, members of the Harvard Law School staff, would report their findings in a study of 500 juvenile delinquents and 500 youngsters of similar backgrounds who "went straight."

Yesterday the subcommittee heard Ernest Miller, an assistant district attorney in New York City, declare state laws no longer are adequate to combat the reported baby black market.

Miller said unwed teen-age mothers are easy prey for unscrupulous "vendors" who collect $1,000 to $2,000 for a baby. He said vendors often operate safe from prosecution in many areas where state laws do not forbid the practice.

Miller appealed to the subcommittee to sponsor federal legislation to make interstate "sales" of babies of felony. Hendrickson said he thought such a law "is a must."

Miller said there are interstate baby-selling rings operating a long distance telephone order service or even, for $500 extra, personalized "door-to-door service."

Often, he said, babies are bought from mothers 1,000 miles away.

The subcommittee heard testimony by Dr. Martha M. Elliot, head of the Federal Children's Bureau, that 32,000 babies are born in a single year to unwed girls 17 years of age or younger.

"My schnozzola is my trademark"

IT DOESN'T MATTER whether he's singing, boogieing, or just plain clowning—that famous proboscis (nose to you) tells you that you're looking at Jimmy Durante and a great performance.

It's the same idea when you see a reliable brand name in one of your local stores. The maker's brand on an article tells you exactly what to expect in value and performance.

It enables you to shop with confidence. Manufacturers of recognized brands constantly strive to give you the best—because, after all, that's just good business. Competition with the makers of other brands stimulates them to keep their standards high, to improve their brands, and to offer you better products and more attractive values.

The result of this competition? You benefit, every time you choose one of the reliable brands you see advertised in this newspaper. It's always a good idea to name your brand—and better your brand of living.

Corvallis To Have Grog

PORTLAND (AP)—Three licenses to sell liquor by the drink in Corvallis were approved Friday by the Oregon Liquor Control Commission.

The action came after a long battle between "dry" and "wet" forces over six liquor-by-the-drink applications. The commission heard both sides at a special hearing Thursday.

License approval was given the Benton Hotel and the Moose and Elks clubs. The commission rejected applications of two taverns on the ground that they did not meet requirements. It did not receive the sixth application, from the Corvallis Hotel.

Commenting on the action, William A. Spangler, commission chairman, said:

"The Commission has adhered strictly to its policy of not granting licenses without the favorable endorsement of local governing bodies. Now that such endorsement has come from Corvallis and all parties who have requested a hearing in connection with this matter have been interviewed, it is felt there are no legal grounds for refusal."

Spangler was referring to approval of the license applications by the Corvallis City Council.

Schenley Put On Black List

PORTLAND (AP)—The Oregon Liquor Control Commission informed Schenley Distributors, Inc., that its whisky and other liquors cannot be sold or advertised in Oregon for 10 days because it violated an advertising regulation.

The move, first of its kind in the history of the commission, followed publication of a Schenley ad which previously had been disapproved by the commission.

Beginning Dec. 1, for 10 days, Schenley products cannot be sold or advertised in the state, under the commission order.

Pine Orders Showing Gain

PORTLAND (AP)—Pine orders and shipments showed increases last week over the previous week but were well below figures for the same week of 1952, the Western Pine Association said Friday.

Orders totaled 70,464,000 board feet, compared with 69,854,000 the week before and 74,763,000 the corresponding week last year. Similar comparisons of shipments were 3,646,000 feet, 72,601,000 feet and 77,296,000 feet.

Last week's production was 77,310,000 feet, a slight improvement increase over the previous week.

The association said orders to date this year are up two per cent from 1952; shipments increased three per cent and production six per cent.

The report covers Idaho White pine, Ponderosa pine and associated species.

Rough Sea Of Marrigae Early

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Choppy seas and high winds prevented 92-year-old George M. Bartlett and Mrs. Sonja du Pont, his 50-year-old secretary, from being married in a diving bell at Santa Catalina Island.

So they were married yesterday at Los Angeles International Airport.

Hit and Run Driver Offers Apology

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Here's the story of a polite hit-and-run motorist: "I'm sorry I hit you," the motorist told Frank E. Munkay, 30-year-old St. Louis engineer yesterday. Munkay said the driver shouted the apology from his car, then sped away.

Munkay walked to his own car, drove home and called police. He was taken to city hospital and treated for a bruise on the left leg.
