reme Court test devel- a fight at the Central y of Bend, where fluor- s approved by the city in February, 1952. The referred to the people ber, 1952, and was ap- a vote of 2,683 to 2,083. J. Baer, a former city er, brought legal action, at fluoridation is uncon- and beyond the city's rary restraining order d by Circuit Judge E. He later dismissed the Baer appealed to the ourt, Oct. 26, 1953. The be argued in Salem on a to be set.

t, on the Oregon coast, was the first to fluoridate, after city council approval, in July, 1951. Four other cities—Florence, Forest Grove, Pendleton and Astoria—have since started fluoridating after city council approval.

At Corvallis, a vote of the people approved fluoridation by a vote of 2,700 to 2,000, on May 18, 1952. Equipment was installed a month later. Corvallis also supplies water to nearby Philomath.

Salem Heights, a suburb of the state capital which has its own water supply, began fluoridating in August, 1953, after a post card poll of users showed 75 per cent in favor and 25 per cent against. About 90 per cent of the water users returned cards. No one has objected since.

In Salem, a campaign is now underway by Parent-Teachers Association officials for fluoridation. A controversy has developed.

The city council of Eugene, Oregon's third largest city with a population of about 35,000, approved fluoridation in September, 1952. A year later the city Water & Electric Board conducted a post card poll of water users. The vote: 4,045 yes; 4,923 no; 693 no opinion. Some 9,138 failed to return cards. The council then tabled the question and no action has been taken since.

At Klamath Falls and Roseburg, city councils approved by resolution fluoridation in the fall of 1952. But at Klamath Falls action is being held up until the Bend case is settled. Petitions there favored fluoridation about 2 to 1, while a smattering of letters to the council opposed it.

At Roseburg, the Oregon Water Corp., a private water company, refused to fluoridate without a city ordinance. In the face of objections, the council declined to pass the ordinance without a vote of the people. Pressure against fluoridation increased so it was dropped. City Manager W. A. Gilchrist said one of the prominent objectors was a church group he declined to identify.

Two other cities—Coquille and Mill City—are going ahead with plans to fluoridate after council approval, according to the State Board of Health.

The people of Hillsboro rejected fluoridation by a decisive vote in September, 1953, after a hot campaign. The vote was 157 yes, 746 no. In April, 1952, fluoridation had been approved in an advisory vote asked by the city council, 192 to 168. The county health department said it plans to seek another vote after the Bend case is settled.

At Albany, the city council in October, 1952, voted against fluoridation. A new council in May, 1953, approved it. The people rejected fluoridation at a referendum election in June, 1953 by a vote of 876 to 582. About 24 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots.

Portland, the state's metropolis, has taken no action. City Attorney Alexander Brown has recommended that the city council do nothing until the question has been put to a vote of the people. He expressed "grave doubt" that the city has authority to add fluorine to water without consent of the people.

The State Board of Health has strongly urged" water fluoridation by cities.

Several Eastern Oregon cities in their natural water supply than one part of fluorine to million parts of water—the mmended formula for artificial idation. They include Board- McNary, Umatilla and Ar- n. Communities with .7 of one fluorine to each million parts ater include Ontario, Ord- Stanfield, Nyssa, Fort Kla- Echo and Adams. ituation which affects Oregon, principally the Portland area, is laims of farmers that flourine gas mitted by nearby aluminum lants, has poisoned livestock and egetation. Ellingwood says that is gas also is in the atmosphere d that the people of the area are tting more fluorine than they ould have, through the air and ough food consumption.

Icy Pavement Wreck Cause

ASHLAND (AP) — An accident resulting from icy pavement and fog resulted Thursday morning in the death of Mrs. Kenneth Wenaus, about 26, Ashland, and injury to three other persons.

She was hit by a Trailways bus after the bus had struck a car and skidded out of control on Highway 99 just south of the Ashland city limits.

Mrs. Wenaus' automobile had run into a ditch after hitting an icy stretch. A pickup truck operated by Barney Riggs, 59, and J.E. Gettling, 57, both of Ashland, stopped across the highway to help her.

She was standing by the truck when the bus, driven by Windell Cooper, Richmond, Calif., struck a car operated by John Weber, Ashland. In an unsuccessful attempt to avoid the Weber car the bus swerved out of control and hit Mrs. Wenaus and the truck, which was demolished.

Cooper brought the bus to a stop off the highway about 40 feet from the truck. Riggs, Gettling and a bus passenger, Mrs. Herberd Y. Blood, Medford, suffered injuries not considered serious. Weber was unhurt.
