Bar Of Soap Theft Denied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 8-cent bar of soap that has been casting a prison shadow over Henry R. de Leon has been removed by court order.

De Leon was arrested outside a grocery last Oct. 29 and charged with petty theft when officers found the bar of soap in his pocket. Since he had a prior grand theft conviction against him, the charge against the 29-year-old laborer became a felony.

Yesterday de Leon told the court he and his sister had bought about $15 worth of groceries during their rounds of the market and that she slipped the soap into his pocket.

"When we checked out, I forgot I had it," De Leon said.

Superior Judge Thomas L. Ambrose believed his story and found him innocent.

Sacred Heart Notebook

By MAUREN RAJCHEL

Doors and books were opened wide yesterday morning after 11 days of vacation. The holidays were well enjoyed by students and faculty alike. Now for studying, staying home nights and reviewing for semester tests next week. Congratulations to those students rating a "one" average, for they are exempt from all tests.

Juniors held a meeting Monday to discuss preparations for the Prom. Under the supervision of the vice president, Margaret Hatfield, in the absence of President Bob Axel, the band, programs and date were all discussed. A theme was chosen and decorations were mentioned. Students are anxiously awaiting the April event.

Again the Juniors come into the spotlight as they anticipate the arrival of their class rings which should be here any day.

Excitement starts again tonight when Tulelake will visit the Academy in a non-league tilt. Game time, 7:30; see you in the Trojan section.

In starting the new year right, attend the Academy games and keep up with the Sacred Heart notebook. From students and faculty — a Happy New Year!

ICE SKATING was the order of the day last week when this picture was snapped. Here we see Joanne Miller being helped on with her skates by Ed Casey while Bruce Chandler looks on. They were enjoying the ice on the Upper Lake out Lakeshore Drive way.

Spillane Makes Movie, But Hates Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Mickey Spillane, the rugged writer of blood-and-sex novels, was a disappointment when he showed up for lunch. He was wearing a tie.

I wondered if the more formal attire was because he has turned actor. He is playing himself in a circus picture, "Ring of Fear."

The author scoffed at the idea. "If I think maybe a restaurant will make a big issue about my wearing a coat and tie, I wear one," he explained. "I'm a conformist in certain respects."

"But I still hate having anything tight around my neck. They have me wearing a suit throughout this picture. It's stupid. My friends will laugh at me when they see me all dressed up. I do a fight scene tomorrow and I'm going to tell them I skip the suit or I'll walk out."

Spillane refuses to conform in other respects. He cast aside his napskin with the explanation: "Never use 'em. They're always in the wrong place to catch food anyway."

We talked about his acting career, and he said he had done the job as a lark. He doesn't intend to continue as an actor. For one thing, he hates Hollywood.

"It's too hot here," he said, "I don't mind it in the summer, but I can't stand being so warm in the winter. The day this picture is over, I'll be putting my family in my hot rod and heading back to my home in Newburgh, N. Y. It'll be great to get back into the cold weather. You feel alive back there."

Spillane had few kind words for Hollywood movies.

"Most of them are terrible," he remarked. "I went to that one called 'Come Back, Little Sheba' expecting to see a picture about the Queen of Sheba. It was nothing like that. I tried to walk out of it, but my wife wouldn't go. So I joined the rest of the husbands in the lobby until the picture was over."

"Most of the film writers here are hacks, pure hacks. The plotting of the pictures is ridiculous. I could write better stories without half trying."

Spillane was bitter about the filming of his own story, "I, The Jury."

"I went to the picture and walked out after the first 15 minutes," he said. "It was putrid. I went back to see the picture five different times, trying to figure out the plot. I never was able to. They loused up my story but good." His personal comments about the makers of the film could never be printed, even in his own books.

Ticket Seller Comes Too Late

KANSAS CITY (AP) — While two bandits were robbing Frank Hornig, apartment manager, in his office yesterday the telephone rang and the gunmen told him to answer it.

The caller was a policeman, wanting to sell Hornig tickets to a police circus.

Hornig said sure, he wanted 30 tickets delivered "now—right now would be fine." He emphasized "now."

The bandits were gone, though, when the officer arrived with the tickets.

Duchess Of Windsor Loses Out In Best Dressed List

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor has lost her title of best-dressed woman in the world to an old rival for the honor, Mrs. William Paley of New York.

Mrs. Paley, wife of the head of the Columbia Broadcasting System, nosed out the duchess for the first place in 1948 and 1949.

The duchess' fall this year was all the harder, as she almost slipped right out of the first 10. She landed in the 10th place tie with actress Mary Martin.

Results in the international poll, conducted by the New York Dress Institute since 1940, were announced yesterday.

Others on the current list:

- Mrs. Winston Guest, socialite of New York and Palm Beach.
- Mrs. Byron Foy, of New York, daughter of the founder of the Chrysler Motor Co. and wife of one of its chief executives.
- Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador to the United States.
- Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., wife of the publisher of the New York Journal-American.
- Mrs. Ovela Culp Hobby, of Houston and Washington, U. S.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

7. Mme. Louis Arpels, of Paris and New York, whose husband is in the jewelry firm of Van Cleef and Arpels.

8. Princess Margaret Rose of Great Britain.

9. A tie between Mrs. Henry Ford II, wife of the Detroit Motor executive, and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, wife of the New York sportsman.

Nicaragua's President Somoza Still Contested Figure In Latin American Politics; But His Policy Pays Off

Editor's Note: Anastasio Somoza has headed the government of Nicaragua for 20 years, and he's still as disputed a ruler today as when he first came to power. Here's the story of a Latin-American strong man who runs his country like a businessman.

By PAUL SANDERS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—President Anastasio Somoza is also Nicaragua's biggest landowner. So it may be only natural that he's pushing an agricultural revolution in the country he has ruled for 20 years.

Machinery is beginning to take over the country's farm production, except on the coffee plantations, and a large segment of this little Central American nation is moving from the ox-drawn plow and machete to the tractor and rice-harvesting combine.

President Somoza continues to be as much of a controversial figure as ever. But there is a general agreement that he has encouraged the current farming boom by a road-building program and by letting private capital go ahead where it can see an opportunity.

The road program has enabled farmers to bring their crops to market by motor truck instead of ox cart, and has stimulated a land-clearing program in which cotton and rice are the principal new crops. Nearly all cotton is exported to countries outside the dollar area. The increase in rice production has changed Nicaragua from an importing to an exporting nation.

Tonnages are not large in world markets, but important for a small country about the size of Alabama. The population is slightly more than a million.

Cotton exports amounted to only 833 short tons in 1949, jumped to 3,600 tons in 1950, were up to 10,000 tons in 1952, and climbed to nearly 14,000 tons in the first eight months of 1953.

Politically, the country is firmly under Somoza's control. There's a small minority representation in Congress, but it is not too vigorous as an opposition force. Somoza's foes throughout Central America says he "subsidizes" the opposition party.

His Liberal party, over which he keeps close control even on the precinct level, seems to be the only effective political force in the country.

Somoza not only directs the country's administration and runs the Liberal party, he's Nicaragua's biggest landowner by a considerable margin. He owns coffee plantations, farms, a shipping line—productive enterprises of all kinds.

How he built up his business and farming interests is a matter of debate. His enemies say he became a big businessman at public expense. Somoza says he got to be a rich man because he's a good judge of values and works hard.

There seems no doubt that el Presidente is an exceptionally able business administrator. He keeps close contact with the operation of his properties and it's conceded by many that he is the hardest working man in the country.

Somoza himself says he rein-

College Places Sets Fire Record

COLLEGE PLACE, Wash. (AP) — This town of 3,174 population—within smoke signal distance of Walla Walla—challenges any city in the nation on its 1953 fire loss record.

All of the year's 16 fire calls were of the blue fire, smoke in the house or overheated furnace variety.

The nearest thing to a loss was a call to a trailer court where smoke was coming out around a closed window. The volunteer firemen found a pot of beans burned dry and no one home.

College Place has a 21-man volunteer fire department with two trucks. The little agricultural town is the home of the Seventh-Day Adventists' Walla Walla College.

PERMITS

SALEM (AP) — The State Labor Bureau issued 29,238 permits in 1953 for electrical installations and change of power service.

The total was 7 per cent less than in 1952, and 8 per cent more than in 1951.

You're invited to enjoy hit tunes from the M-G-M Technicolor Musical, starring Fred Astaire, "The Band Wagon"
