ON EASTERN JUNKET Rex Porterfield, center, Kiwanis 4-H Potato King, was much interested in seeing the pilots' compartment of the United Air Lines plane which he saw through the courtesy of Captain Max Campbell, left. He reported that Stewardess Barbara L. Jones, right, was mighty nice to him on the trip to San Francisco. Destination is Washington, D. C., where he will present special bags of Klamath U. S. No. 1 potatoes to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson, Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay and the president of the United States.

WANDA WAYNE
At Red Barn

The Billy Barton show, starring the composer of the famous "A Dear John Letter," and beautiful Wanda Wayne, rising young western and hillbilly singer, will play the Red Barn at Dorris Saturday night, Jan. 16. Owner Dick Fenwick announced this week.

The Barton show will feature Tex Doyle, noted singing and recording star, Johnny Grimes and his great dance and show band, and the Melody Mountain Boys, Fenwick said.

Barton wrote and recorded such best sellers as "A Dear John Letter," "Forgive Me John," "A Dear John and Marcha Letter," "I Love You a Heartbreak Ago," and many more.

Ms. Wayne has won the accolade of being America's most beautiful western and hillbilly singer.

Dancing at the Red Barn will be from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Pearl Asks Food Plants

PORTLAND — William A. Pearl, who will take over as Bonneville Power administrator Friday, believes development of the food processing industry is an important project for the Pacific Northwest.

Speaking Tuesday at the 32nd anniversary banquet of the Oregon Building Congress, he said the food processing industry was not sufficiently developed to handle the region's huge agricultural output.

He said population in the area probably will be doubled in the next 25 years. "The Northwest affords probably the greatest opportunity for industrial development and growth of any section in our country," he declared.

He made only a passing reference to the region's power problems. While discussing the fishing industry he said: "With the hydroelectric power development and the use of our streams for waste disposal, this industry (fishing) will be fortunate to hold its own unless considerable consideration is given to it by industries during their period of growth."

Chinese Speaker Praises US; Tells Of Probable Reaction To China Move

Before there can be lasting peace, the world must be recreated in the image of the United States.

This was the assertion of Dr. Non-Yong Park, the "Oriental Mark Twain," when he addressed the Klamath Falls Knife & Pork Club at a dinner Tuesday evening in the Willard Hotel.

Dr. Park, whose talk was billed as "A Squint-Eye View of Asia," gave every evidence that he made his findings with his eyes wide open.

"The speaker blamed the fall of China and the duplicity of the Owen Lattimer clique in the Institute of Pacific Relations for most of the world's present ills.

"We can't blame the Chinese Reds for the situation in Asia today," Dr. Park declared. "The Chinese Reds are no more independent of Soviet Russia than Charles McCarthy is independent of Edgar Bergen. The Chinese Reds are merely slaves of the Russians."

Dr. Park said that he is convinced that if the mainland of China was invaded, an overwhelming number of the Chinese now dominated by the Reds would revolt.

The Chinese educator also sharply criticized the Truman administration for halting the U.N. advance in Korea when the allied troops were on the brink of victory.

"When the Korean War started, it was the intention of the United States and its allies to drive the enemy off the Korean peninsula," Dr. Park pointed out. "Then came the order to halt. That was like a football coach running out on the field just as his team was going to make a winning touchdown and calling the whole thing off."

Dr. Park also said there were no grounds for the belief that if the United Nations troops went on to victory in Korea, it would have given Russia an excuse to start another global conflict.

"Russia doesn't need any excuses to start a war," he added. "If Russia wanted to go to war, it wouldn't bother about excuses. All that is holding Russia back is America's stockpile of atomic weapons."

Dr. Park praised President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles for the interest they have taken in Asia.

"Mr. Dulles' predecessor, Mr. Dean Acheson, made 19 trips to Europe while he was head of the state department but not once did he visit Asia," Dr. Park said. "The present administration really cares that the fate of the world depends on what transpires in the Orient."

Dr. Park proved he was entitled to the "Mark Twain" sobriquet. He punctuated his talk with many humorous remarks. In conclusion he said:

"This is my first visit to Klamath Falls although I have lectured at your state university. I like your city. Someday I may come back here and open a little laundry."

Dr. Park was introduced by Warren Bennett, Dr. Marvin Nerseth presided at the dinner in the absence of Greer Drew, president of the Knife & Pork Club. The program was arranged by Fred Southwell, secretary of the organization.

Students Held In Portland Beatings

PORTLAND — Two Portland high school students—their names withheld by juvenile authorities—are in custody and may be transferred to municipal court on assault and battery charges.

Police Chief Jim Purcell said the two Millwaukie students after a basketball game here Friday.

Purcell said he thought that action against them in municipal court might discourage others inclined to engage in street brawls.

One is a Benson Tech night school student and the other has been attending Lincoln. The principal's office at Lincoln said the student there had a bad record on other matters and would be expelled.

Hollywood Actors Away From Home Prefer U. S. A.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Stars like Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Gene Kelly and Claudette Colbert have returned from long picture-making jaunts abroad, and chances are they won't soon be going again.

Gregory Peck and Alan Ladd are reportedly among those yearning for an early return to Hollywood. Aside from the normal feeling of homesickness, many of the stars have good reasons for wanting to be back.

Glenn Ford, who has made at least five pictures out of the country, was telling me some of the factors that will cause him to think twice before he accepts another overseas assignment. Unlike the others I have mentioned, Glenn did not go abroad for tax purposes.

"I could very easily have taken advantage of the 18-month tax deal," said the actor on "The Human Beast" set. "I had already been in Europe eight months to make a picture. But another 18 months would have meant spending two Christmases away from home. I couldn't see it."

"I suppose I was stupid financially. But it turned out that the tax deal was repealed before I would have finished my 18 months, and I wouldn't have earned a fabulous amount of money."

He had this to say to actors who are contemplating overseas films:

"If you are planning to go for a paid vacation, you've got a shock coming. Put your travel folders away. You can fix your contract to provide time before and after the production. But you'll generally find you have to start work the moment you arrive. And the extra month you planned for touring will probably be taken up with finishing the picture."

"Two things you will learn making pictures in foreign countries: patience and tolerance. You can't expect to find the comforts you have in Hollywood. Wardrobe? You carry your own. Dressing room? They'll laugh at you when

CAMERA CHATTER

By DAL SWIGGER
"Picture - Taking Indoors with Natural Light"

Now you can record the never-to-be-forgotten happenings inside your home using only the light that comes through the window. And you'll get superb pictures. How? By the use of a simple method of Photography known as time exposure.

All you need to take good "natural-light" pictures is a fast film such as Super XX, and adjustment of the exposure time according to the amount of light on your subject. If you take the picture by the window with a regular snapshot camera on a fairly bright day, time your exposure to about 1/2 second. Under the same conditions with a more expensive camera (one with adjustable lens) set your lens at f6.3, your exposure time at 1/25 of a second.

It is also important in this type of photography to have a solid support for your camera such as a tripod or the back of a chair. This is to keep the camera steady so there won't be any camera movement to blur your picture.

For the beginner taking his first natural light pictures, here are some suggestions on what to take in this "natural" type of photography. You can take pictures of the baby in his highchair. Mother sewing around-the-home shots. Reading the paper, or the inside of your home.

There are many ideas you might use in taking the around-the-home shots. Remember: Keep the subject close to the normal picture around the house and get a natural picture with just existing light.

Next time you have a camera for indoor pictures, try for interesting true-to-life photographs. Use the "natural" method of picture taking, such as daylight coming through the window.
