Southwestern Wheat, Cow Raisers Object To Support Proposal Proposed By Ike

ENID, Okla. (AP) — Southwestern wheat and cattle growers, in an initial sampling of opinion, have registered a one-sided rejection of President Eisenhower's proposal to abandon rigid high-level farm price supports.

More than 50 farm spokesmen to appear Tuesday before touring members of the House Agriculture Committee, not one spoke in favor of the President's plan of flexible supports. This included representatives of all major Oklahoma farm organizations.

Bill Lance, a wheat grower from Perryton, Tex., told the committee that "in Texas we'd like to be rugged individualists but we wouldn't like to be ragged individualists." Niles Gibson, who said he farms 400 acres in McPherson County, Kan., declared: "We farmers voted for Eisenhower because he said in several of his campaign speeches that we farmers were entitled to full parity. "The Eisenhower program for the sliding scale is the same as no program at all. Consequently we farmers do not want a farm program if that is the best you can do."

"He can't sell it to farmers in the cotton, wheat and peanut-growing country." Cotton, wheat and peanuts are three of the "big six" basic commodities now supported by the government at 9 per cent of parity. The others are rice, tobacco and corn.
