JOHNNY REITZ AND HIS ORCHESTRA, will play at the Elks temple, Friday, Jan. 22. Johnny is bringing his eight-piece new band and will present his "Dixie Five," the "band within a band." Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and the affair will be informal for ladies.

Talented Woman Finds Outlet For Her Fashions

Louella James, historian, collector, traveler and new designer of fashions for the starlets in Hollywood, spent several years in Klamath Falls. With her family, she left here about three years ago for New Mexico to make her home.

In a recent issue of El Oregano, daily newspaper published at Taos, N.M., is the astonishing account of her most recent adventure in the business world.

"Louella James, herself a designer representative—has done much recently to popularize Taos-made dresses, Taos-made jewelry, and New Mexico-made fashions."

Mrs. James made all the gowns worn by principals in the recently released Republic Studio motion picture, "The Outcast," shot near Taos.

At a recent fashion show in La Junta, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. James displayed 70 costumes, with a commentary by Mrs. James who explained the evolution of the modern sequaw dress—the story of how Navajo women must carry their entire wardrobes on their backs; hence skirts must fit, one over the other, and must require no ironing.

Gorgeous Mexican dresses from her own private collection were shown by Mrs. James. New Mexico designers have replaced the hand work of the Mexican women with rickrack and braid but the same gay, mad effect remains.

"The story continues," "Gayly modeling children's clothing with the grace of a prima ballerina and the mischief of a poltergeist, was Viola James, 11-year-old daughter of the artist. Her dark beauty and perfect posture showed the children's fashions to great advantage.

Fiesta dresses, glamour dresses and evening dresses—all in Southwestern style, some in regal velvets with broomstick skirts, some in rich corduroy bedecked with yards and yards of metallic braid,

Reds Boot American

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Ceylon's Communist party today accused Roda Miller, American leader of a Ceylonese Communist leader, of being a secret agent for the United States. The Reds picked up her party membership card last week on "ideological grounds."

The woman, married to Joe de Silva, lived formerly in Bridgeport, Conn., according to Red sources. They said she and her husband came recently from Communist Poland.

The party recently blamed her for a split in its ranks and ousted her and four others from membership Jan. 7.

"The Communist Journal said today that Party Secretary S. A. Wickremasinghe had been tricked "by the apparently sincere Communist Roda Miller." The paper acknowledged that a book she wrote about the executed atom spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, had been "an excellent exposition of American policy and frameup tactics." But the paper termed the book a facade to hide her "spying" and said it was "very reminiscent of American psychological warfare board strategy."

Woman Beats Off Attacker

ATLANTA (AP)—A middle-aged woman armed only with an umbrella beat off a six-foot, 250-pound man who was trying to force a young housewife into his truck yesterday.

Patrolman A. L. Posey said the 16-year-old housewife was returning home from a grocery store when the man parked his pickup truck and asked her to get inside.

When she refused, the man leaped out of the truck, grabbed her and tried to force her inside, the woman said. She screamed for help.

An unidentified woman standing at a bus stop rushed up, jabbed the man in the chest with her umbrella and then beat him over the head with it. The man ran back to his truck and drove away.

Polio Cure Hopes High This Year

Jesse C. Litwiler, treasurer of Klamath County Chapter of National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis, who attended a March of Dimes preparation meeting in Portland Wednesday, Jan. 13, said today there appears to be real hope that paralytic polio may soon be conquered.

"Basil O'Connor of New York, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, addressed the meeting and told of plans to test the new anti-polio vaccine throughout the country during Feb. 8," Litwiler said.

O'Connor said the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh and the March of Dimes financial aid and the scientific facts reported by the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis during the past 16 years. He said the National Foundation is confident that the vaccine is safe and only reason it will be tested between 500,000 and 1,000,000 grade school children in the country is to prove its safety. Litwiler reported that the foundation president explained that it is hoped the trials can be held in all states.

Vaccinations would be given from June 1 so the effects of the summer polio season would be served, according to O'Connor. "This year the vaccine would not be known until late in the season," he said. "It also means that gamma globulin, the blood fraction which gives temporary protection against polio, must be used again in the case of a polio case. It is the best thing we have."

"We were told that the National Foundation plans to spend $100,000 on the vaccine tests and $100,000 on an expanded gamma globulin program in the summer. We also learned that the Foundation's regular program of scientific research, professional education and patient care must be maintained. It will cost an estimated $48,500,000 in 1954 and the March of Dimes must raise $75,000,000 if this important task is to go on."

Twenty-Thirty Magazine Devotes Much Space To Story On Klamath Falls

The Klamath country — fondly thought of as the State of Jefferson — rated first position in the December issue of the Twenty-Three Magazine, official publication of the 20-30 International, published at Sacramento.

Klamath country's Crater Lake is pictured on the cover and the lead story in the issue was written by B. C. (Bernie) Griffin, of Weyerhaeuser, newly-elected president of the Klamath 20-30 Club. Among other things in his credit is the establishment, some 18 years ago, of the local YMCA Stamp Club.

His three-page story includes reproduction of a letter from Mayor Paul Landry to Wallace Nordwall, 1953 president, expressing the city's appreciation of the club's work in the community.

"From the Hudson's Bay traders in 1826 to one of the last Indian wars in the United States, with 60 Modocs holding 1,000 soldiers on the Lava Beds in 1873, came the birth of an Oregon city — Klamath Falls," the article states.

It continues:

"What started as rugged pioneer cattle country soon changed with the advent of the railroad in 1909 into an agricultural basin when the Bureau of Reclamation constructed a network of irrigation and canal ditches.

"Like all maturation, the town had its growing pains throughout the years. Due to the poor communications that existed in 1919 and to the indifference in the rest of the state as to conditions there, legislation was proposed to allow Klamath Falls to join the state of California. Or better still — to form a new state named Jefferson.

"But the cards were dealt, the hand played, and Klamath Falls stayed with Oregon to become the fifth largest city in the state."

There follows a recitation of the beauties of the high desert country comprising the State of Jefferson, the recreational advantages afforded Klamath citizens and visitors who come to this sportsman's paradise, the outstanding educational opportunities at Oregon Tech, the state's only trade school, and, of course, an account of the unique hot grid system by which part of the city is heated by natural hot water.

An abundance of photographs illustrate the article.

Ex-Convict Asks Jail

Chamber of commerce officials are not likely to cite Robert Miller, 32-year-old truck driver, for his civic spirit.

Miller told Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg Thursday that he would rather go to Oregon State Prison than stay in Klamath Falls.

The truck driver was before the court as a probation violator.

"Things are too tough on me here, judge," the defendant declared. "I'd rather be in the pen. I'm getting too many raw deals."

Through testimony given by several witnesses, it developed that Miller's troubles in Klamath Falls may have stemmed from cashing too many worthless checks and drinking too much wine.

The defendant's 15-year-old stepdaughter testified he drove her from their home and she was forced to sleep one night in a box car.

Judge Vandenberg revoked Miller's probation and remanded him to the County Jail. Sentence will be passed later. Records show Miller served two prison terms in South Dakota.
