and the members of the federal judiciary would probably cost. Let's say it might cost us a total of 12 1/2 millions. In that event, a levy of eight cents per head would do the trick.

If you are the sole breadwinner for a family of four, that would cost you approximately 32 cents a year.

Let's put it this way: If all of us gave to the choosing of members of our congress the same wise, thoughtful, careful attention we give to the choosing of a lawyer or a doctor to look after our health or a dentist to look after our teeth—or a plumber to look after our pipes or a carpenter to look after our roof — don't you reckon we might be able to get back our eight cents per head in the form of better and more satisfactory government?

I think it is quite possible that we could.

If you hire an incompetent lawyer and he loses your case, you're out a lot of money. If you hire an incompetent doctor and he doesn't diagnose accurately what ails you, you're out a lot of money and grief.

And so it goes with plumbers to handle your pipes and carpenters to handle your roof. If you don't get good ones, you're in for trouble and loss.

In general, we choose our lawyers and our doctors and our dentists and our plumbers and our carpenters with great care, seeking to get the most COMPETENT ones available.

In choosing the members of our congress we aren't so careful. But means always, BUT FAR TOO OFTEN, we vote for the blabbermouth who can talk economic nonsense in the most appealing way.

I think most intelligent, thoughtful people will agree that good government is perhaps the most important thing in the world. We can't have good government unless we have good people, competent people, running our government. The laborer is worthy of his hire. So is the lawmaker.

Personally, I think it would be a good idea to pay our lawmakers and our judges BETTER MONEY and then see to it carefully that we get better men. It would be a good gamble because the effort proposed by the President's commission would cost us only about 32 cents per family and if we lost we could get our money back by doing without a couple of packages of cigarettes per family per year.

Police Check Theft Suspect

A telephone call to the Oregon State Police from an unidentified man at 3:50 this morning stated a burglar had been seen entering the Tiny Tavern at the Lakeview-Merrill junction.

Police Check Theft Suspect

As the officer was alone at the time, he phoned city police and asked them to cooperate with him. Within a few minutes two city police and the state officer were at the scene and upon entering the building found a man raiding the ice box.

Police Check Theft Suspect

Taken into custody it was found the man was Max Collins, who according to state police records, has operated under seven different aliases and only recently was released from the Oregon State Penitentiary after serving about three years of a five year sentence for burglary.

Police Check Theft Suspect

A check of the tavern showed nothing had been taken excepting some sausage and a bottle of beer which Collins said he had taken to curb his hunger and quench his thirst.

Police Check Theft Suspect

Collins was sent to prison in 1950 for burglarizing the Midway Tavern at Chemult, according to the state police. He is being held in the city jail for investigation.
