oman's Society Of ristian Service Will onsor Tea On Thursday

Women's Society of Chris- ervice of the First Methodist is sponsoring a silver tea church parlors Thursday, from 2 to 4 p.m. Mrs. E. am is chairman of the so- ent, to which the public is Proceeds will be sent to ethodist Home in Salem.

Methodist Home was opened and incorporated in 1910. esent building, a large hom- ding beautiful grounds, was ed June 23. It has a full ent, three floors serviced by an elevator and fire-proof stairways. The home houses an average of 55 to 60 guests in its 57 guest rooms. The home provides family privileges, wholesome food and Christian burial. Religious services are conducted in the home every Sunday evening from September to June.

Musicals, entertainments and social events are held throughout the year for the guests; badminton, croquet and reading books from the library are always available.

The home is in the heart of Salem at 1625 Center. Its purpose is to provide a real home under Christian management for worthy old people who for any reason are without the comfort and protection that should come with old age.

To gain admittance, guests need to have been an Oregon resident for three consecutive years prior to application, be 70 years or older, of good character and must pass a physical examination.

Mrs. J. C. Hunt of the local WSCS has served on the board for two years as an elected member.

The home is one of the society's conference projects. Of the money received to date from the church's "Forward Movement," $3,375 has been turned over to the conference as an initial amount toward a building fund for the new wing planned at the home. The parlor and dining room have been redecorated and the kitchen is now being modernized. The silver offering from the tea will be used on the kitchen project.

Mrs. Putnam and her committee have planned an informal tea with solos and musical numbers intermittently during the afternoon.

Forest Fire Case Booted

SEATTLE (AP) — A one and a half million dollar damage suit brought by Rayonier, Inc., against the government as an outgrowth of the Forks forest fire in Sept. 1951, was dismissed by Federal Judge George H. Boldt Monday.

Rayonier contended the U. S. Forest Service was negligent in fighting the fire, which destroyed hundreds of acres of timber owned by Rayonier.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Frank Cushman told the court:

"If the government can be found liable in this situation for ordinary mistakes of judgment in fighting a fire, few situations of a similar nature will be found where some act of an official will not be questioned.

"The result will be either a failure by officials generally to take prompt decisive action or the placing of the government in a position where it must insure all private property damaged in a public disaster."

March 1 was set by Judge Boldt as the date to sign Cushman's motion to dismiss the suit or to hear any new arguments advanced by Rayonier attorneys.
