Familiar Landmark In Old Stone Building Gone As Progress Wipes Out Link With Past; Bunch Town Butcher Shop Torn Down

By EDITH McLEOD

Almost as if ashamed of it, the last tangible, connecting link between our modern city and the illustrious, pioneer days of Linkville is being wiped out in the destruction of the little 68-year-old stone building on the grounds of the new Veterans' Memorial Park. What a pity it had to fall rather than stand as a monument to our dead pioneers and the founding of our city!

It was built only 18 years after George Nurse founded the city by installing a ferry across Link river in 1867 and in building the first small structures on the eastern bank, near where our present bridge is located. It was only 12 years after the Modoc War, Z. F. Moody was Governor of Oregon, and Grover Cleveland was President of the United States.

An era of good times for this territory came in 1885, and the first church in town, the Presbyterian church near the corner of Pine and 3rd Streets, was built. It was dedicated in 1885, and it was in that same year that Judge G. W. Smith hired Louis Biehn to construct the stone building (of native stone) in what was then known locally as Bunch Town—that part of the village around the bridge and Conger Avenue. The name, Bunch Town was applied to the part of town scattered from 2nd to 9th streets, 384 souls made up the population of Linkville.

The land upon which Judge Smith built was deeded to the State of Oregon, Feb. 26, 1872, from the U. S. Government, signed by C. Delano, secretary of state. It passed from the state of Oregon to George Nurse on Feb. 26, 1878. Other high points in the abstract of property are: dedicated to the town of Linkville, Aug. 27, 1881; from Nurse to William A. Wright, in 1881; Wright to Arthur D. Carrick, Sept. 1, 1881; from Carrick to Manning, Sept. 20, 1881; and from Manning to Judge George W. Smith; Smith to J. C. Rutenic in 1901; Rutenic to Thomas Hampton in 1910.

A butcher shop first occupied the building. It may have been the butcher shop of William Smith as McKenny's Pacific Coast Directory for 1886-87, in listing Linkville's

Secret Vote On Strike Issue Dead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top administration officials were reported convinced today that President Eisenhower's proposal for secret government-supervised strike votes in labor disputes is all but dead.

The proposal was certain to come in for more discussion during Secretary of Labor Mitchell's return appearance at a Senate Labor Committee hearing for further questioning on Eisenhower's 14-point program for revising the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Mitchell, due half an hour later before the House Labor Committee, was to be followed at the Senate hearing by W. B. Barton, general counsel of the U. S. chamber of commerce.

Informed sources who asked not to be quoted by name said the administration has been doubtful all along that Congress would approve the strike vote recommendation. They said Eisenhower's chief labor advisers now feel the proposal would meet overpowering opposition in the Senate.

Barton said the Chamber feels Eisenhower's labor message to Congress had "a sincere ring and paves the way for needed changes" in the Taft-Hartley Act.

However, he disclosed that the Chamber supports only about a half the President's recommendations—including a form of the strike vote proposal—and "questions" others.

Barton said the Chamber believes a strike vote should be taken prior to a walkout "and only after collective bargaining negotiations have reached an impasse."

Eisenhower did not stipulate whether he thought the vote should come before or during a strike. However, a bill drafted at the White House and introduced by Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) of the Senate Labor Committee provides for a vote after the strike has started. Mitchell said the vote should be taken before a strike.

Lewis Raps Ike's NLRB Candidate

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis today denounced Albert C. Beeson, President Eisenhower's nominee for the National Labor Relations Board, as a "self-styled union-buster" who "possesses an astonishing bias" against labor.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, wired all members of the Senate Labor Committee, now considering the nomination: "It is inconceivable that any senator . . . who takes the time to read the record would in good conscience, unless with the power of government behind him, such a raging protagonist of the exploiters of labor in the nation."

Meanwhile, the committee scheduled a fourth meeting on the nomination of Beeson, a San Jose, Calif., businessman who would bring the five-man board to full strength.

If approved by the committee and then by the Senate, Beeson would be the third Eisenhower appointee to take a seat on the NLRB—thus giving the administration a clear majority. Beeson has told the committee he would approach his duties without bias.

During close questioning by committee Democrats last Wednesday, Beeson said he thought the NLRB under former President Truman had administered the Taft-Hartley law to favor labor over management.

Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) expressed confidence that Beeson will be approved by both the Labor Committee and the Senate, but a committee vote appeared unlikely today.

Democrats have indicated they fear that Beeson might reflect the management point of view in board decisions.

Lewis said in his wire that Beeson "admits to a prejudicial favoritism toward employers and a vengeful attitude toward labor which borders on hysterical malignancy. I protest the confirmation of the self-styled union-buster Beeson."

Most recently, Beeson has been industrial relations vice-president for the Food, Machinery and Chemical Corp. of San Jose.

Contino Seeking Civilian Job

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—Dick Contino, onetime $4,000-a-week accordionist who served a term for draft evasion, is out of the Army and belatedly celebrating Christmas.

Contino, 24, was inducted in May 1952, after spending 4½ months in federal prison. He was sent to Korea five months later.

"I made the best of it, and I'm glad it's over," he said when he reached his home. A Christmas tree, gifts and 50 neighborhood friends were waiting for him.

One of his gifts was a new accordion. He said he hoped to get a job in the movies or television soon.
