PASTEL SHADES CHOSEN FOR FOSTER-RODGERS WEDDING DECOR

Yellow and white with pastel shades of yellow, lavender and pale green — were the refreshing colors used for the January wedding of Barbara Rodgers when she became the bride of Lester Foster on the seventeenth in First Presbyterian Church at 2 p.m.

The Rev. David F. Barnett Jr. read the service in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives. Mrs. George McIntyre, organist, accompanied Ruby Gehring, soloist.

Barbara is the daughter of Mrs. Marius Petersen, 3000 Patterson Street; and Melvin Rodgers, Merrill. Her father gave her in marriage. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Farris E. Foster, 2926 Altamont Drive.

Escorted by her father, Barbara was a lovely bride in a gown of white imported Spanish lace and net styled with a stand-up collar on the shrug bolero and full skirt with inserts of pleated net. Long tapered sleeves of net below the shoulder line were of lace a la gauntlet below the elbow. Her filmy three-quarter veil cascaded from a simple and effective bandeau in her dark hair. Her bouquet was all white—of stephanotis flowers and satin streamers centered with a large white orchid. Her attendants' strapless waist-length frocks in pastel shades of net over taffeta, all made alike —were in pleasant harmony with the yellow and white chrysanthemums and white lighted tapers featured in the church decorations; and were a dainty setting for the white bridal gown.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Jerry Rodgers, who wore yellow; and carried a colonial bouquet in yellow and green to complement her dress with full skirt of net with velvet dots.

Bridesmaids were Hazel Schieferstein, in lavender with the same colonial bouquet in pink and lavender; Mrs. Dale Carr, in pink, with lavender and pink; and Barbara Solie, in pale green, with mint green and yellow bouquet.

Flower girl was Starla Bridge; and ring bearer was Davie Foster, nephew of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's brother, Randall Foster, served him as best man; and ushers, Cliff Joplin, John Paul Foster (bridegroom's brother); and Charles Zumbalk were also candlelighters.

The bride's mother chose a pastel pink two piece afternoon suit with silver metallic embroidery; silver metallic trimmed afternoon hat—white gloves and navy shoes and purse. Mrs. Foster wore a navy suit-dress; red shoes and purse; with white hat and gloves.

At the reception in the church parlors, Mrs. Dean Mason; and Mrs. Gene Overen poured; Mary Mauch cut the cake; and Dorilyn Parton registered the guests.

For travel, Barbara wore a blue-gray checked suit with navy and white accessories. Many of the guests went to the bride's home on Patterson Street after the reception—and some of them "kidnapped" the bridegroom and took him to Dorris). They are now at home, 2221 Reclamation, after a trip to Sacramento (via Dorris); and back home through the Redwoods on the coast.

Refreshments were served by Esther Johnson, Lillian Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Don Barnes. Next regular meeting is slated for February 1.

A L Auxiliary

Mrs. Hal (Florence) Ogle, legislative chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary, had her husband as guest speaker for the regular meeting in the Memorial hall, January 19.

In his informal talk, he reminisced about World War I incidents—particularly as to ideas and ideals of people in foreign lands; and he made it plain that any member of the U. S. armed forces serving abroad would always come home with the personal vow to uphold our form of government; and to never allow a foreign power to change our ideals or abolish our freedom of thought.

Mrs. Ogle, as legislative chairman, at the conclusion of the auxiliary program, addressed the Legionnaires meeting on the subject of legislation.

During the auxiliary meeting, plans were discussed for the District No. 4 conference scheduled for February 13 in Klamath Falls. There will be no auxiliary afternoon session this year; instead a joint banquet with the Legion is planned. Social hour, 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., and an auxiliary meeting will follow the 6:30 banquet.

Past presidents will conduct the initiation of new members February 2.

After the general business meeting was adjourned, Julia Williams assisted by Ann Hayes, Eva Mair Jones, Zella High and Ruth Heidrich served a lunch to the auxiliary members and Legionnaires.
