Observer Corps Scrambles Jets

PORTLAND (AP)—The Air Force told Friday of scrambling a flight of jet planes from the air base here to intercept whatever it was that brought "unidentified object" reports from the ground observer corps at Albany.

The objects turned out to be reflections from beacon lights. And at Coquille two women Friday reported seeing, for about two minutes, something they said was bigger than a passenger airliner without visible engines, shaped like an inverted saucer with a dome on top.

A ground observer crew was on duty there at the time. It made no such sighting. The report which caused jets to be sent up was of unidentified objects moving swiftly and disappearing near the horizon. The jet pilots said beacon lights near Coquille drove cast reflections on the evening sky which gave the impression of swift-moving objects.

The date was set Friday in U.S. District Court here. The pair are under indictment by a federal grand jury.

Postal Bill Still Faces Big Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration-backed bill to boost postal rates nearly a quarter billion dollars a year was over its first big hurdle Saturday—but the toughest part of the course lay ahead.

The House Postoffice Committee Friday voted out increases affecting the users of virtually every class of mail except parcel post, which previously was upped by separate action.

The biggest share of the increase would be borne by ordinary letter writers. The bill would raise the cost of mailing out-of-town letters from three to four cents to bring in 159 million dollars more revenue a year. It also would add another penny to the cost of the present six-cent air mail stamp, for a $15,000,000 annual revenue gain.

Newspaper and magazine publishers would have an additional 30 per cent added to their mailing costs, or about $15,000,000, while business users of the mail would have to pay approximately 50 million dollars more a year.

The overall net increase in revenue is estimated at between 240 million and 245 million dollars a year.

The rate bill is certain to precipitate a bitter fight when it reaches the floor of the House later in this election year session.

Postmaster Gen. Sumnerfield, with the support of President Eisenhower, asked Congress to approve the increase to bring the financial operation of the Postoffice Department nearer the break-even point.

Its current deficit is nearly half a billion, and its anticipated deficit for next year is more than 300 million.

REA Probe Asked By Douglas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) contended Saturday there has been a "constant whacking" into the loan programs of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) and called for a "troubling congressional investigation."

Secretary of the Interior McKay "and others of this administration" should be called "to clear up their attitude toward REA and public power projects," Douglas suggested.

"After 20 years of brilliant success, I believe REA is in mortal danger," he said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Monroe County (Ill.) cooperative.

"The danger signals," he said, "are flying from the Interior Department... in the budget... in the actions of Congress, in the attitude of this administration."

He told the electrification group: "I warn you now that in the next three years you will have to fight with all your energies and abilities to preserve the REA cooperative systems."

Douglas said "REA has been hit hard" in the new budget. He said the $5 million dollar recommendation for electric cooperatives, plus a 45 million dollar carryover, "is at least $9 million short of needs."

about their products, and in turn been pressing the Pentagon to let them release some information. To date the Navy has been firm in its refusal.

The Lockheed model is said to have made its first flight. Convair's is expected to try out its wings in the near future.

Authoritative reports say both the turbo-prop airplanes — have jet engines turning their propellers. They are said to use JATO — jet-assisted takeoff — to climb vertically from a ship's deck or other platform — and the land in the same manner.

More Forest Rangers Asked

EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Rep. Jack Westland (R-Wash.) is asking the Forest Service to increase its ranger manpower in the Mount Baker National Forest area, his office reported in a news release here Saturday.

The Darrington Community Club and Mt. Baker National Forest Supervisor Henry A. Harrison of Bellingham have been asking for the additional help, Westland said. It's needed, he explained, to launch a program to salvage millions of board feet of valuable timber from windblown and disease-ridden areas.

Scattered salvage material that formerly was not saleable now can be logged by small operators at a profit, Westland said he told the forest service officials.

"This all has added up to a demand for small sales that present ranger forces are not equipped to meet," he added.

Harrison has predicted that annual receipts from increased small sales would approach $100,000, while salary costs of additional ranger personnel wouldn't exceed $28,000.

U. S. Bombers To Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department announced Saturday it is sending some more light bombers and about 200 more Air Force ground crew technicians to aid the French Union forces fighting the Reds in Indochina.

The actual number of B28 bombers involved is understood to be comparatively small, about 10.

Approximately 125 technicians already are on the scene, instructing the French and loyal Vietnam forces in maintenance operations for the various types of American planes in use.

The technicians are part of a unit of slightly more than 400 Army, Air Force and other military personnel composing the present military assistance group in Indochina.

Volcano

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Merapi, central Java's dread killer volcano which took a toll of at least 37 dead and 70 injured less than a month ago, is threatening to erupt again.

Dr. G. A. DeNeve, chief of Indonesia's volcanological service, said Saturday investigations indicate the danger of eruptions now are greater than in 1930, when Merapi killed nearly 30,000 persons.

The Man Who Couldn't Trust His Best Friend! (A TRUE STORY)

Advertisement for U.S. Savings Bonds featuring a cartoon of a man named Stan who hid his money in a cash stasher. Text: 'Stan had scrimped and saved for years. And at long last he had accumulated a nice little nest-egg in the form of a five hundred dollar bill. Now all he needed, was a safe place to hide it. For Stan was a "Cash Stasher". You know, one of those people who hides his money in unlikely spots. Instead of putting it in a really safe place like, say, U. S. Savings Bonds. So after turning the house upside down, Stan found the perfect hiding place for his pride and joy. Inside the dust cover of his pillow. The last place anyone would think of looking! And happy about his hoarding, he went off to work. Ah, but as Burns said, "The best-laid schemes of 'mice and men' gang aft a-gley." And so it was that our hero forgot two very, very important things. He had a little daughter, and a dog. Two very bad risks for a stasher of Stan's type. For as any red blooded canine could tell you—every dog has his day with a pillow. And girls—even very small ones—have a way with a fellow's money. And so when Stan returned that evening, he was greeted with an appalling sight. The dog, the pillow case, the dust cover, and ten thousand feathers. But no money! But wait a minute! Dogs don't eat money. Or do they? So Stan, who was already looking down in the mouth about his savings, did just that with his overgrown piggy bank. But as you might have guessed—no luck! So what happened to the money? Well, Stan's little girl had found the five hundred dollar bill lying in the feathers. And as soon as she saw it she knew just what to do. Using the paper punch, she made the prettiest "long-green" polka dots for her paper doll's dress, that you ever did see. And Stan has had spots in front of his eyes ever since! Moral: Don't be a cash stasher. Put your money in safe, interest-earning U. S. Savings Bonds. Money destroyed is money gone. But if Savings Bonds are lost or destroyed, your money is safe because the United States Treasury will replace them free of charge. Start investing today the easy way—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work—or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.'
