House To Get Coffee Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Anzell (R-Ore) said Thursday he will ask early House action on a bill to impose government controls over speculation and futures trading in coffee.

Without a record vote or debate, the Senate voiced approval of the measure Wednesday, apparently reflecting nationwide concern over recent increases in coffee prices.

Anzell said he believes government regulation "would control any skulduggery or price fixing in coffee."

Chairman Hope (R-Kan) said the House Agriculture Committee probably would consider the coffee controls measure during the next week.

The legislation will not halt two current investigations into causes for the recent jump in coffee prices.

One is by a Senate banking subcommittee headed by Sen. Beall (R-Mo.), who supports the controls. The other is by the Federal Trade Commission.

The Coffee and Sugar Exchange in New York asked its members Wednesday to cooperate with the Beall subcommittee by providing lists of traders and information on transactions. Beall had asked the exchange for the information and said the group would issue subpoenas for it if necessary.

Anzell said his bill is identical to one sponsored by Sen. Gillette (Iowa) and approved by the Senate. It would add coffee to a list of some 20 other food and farm products in which trading is supervised by the Commodity Exchange Authority, under the Agriculture Department.

"Exchanges, commission merchants and floor brokers dealing in coffee futures contracts would be required to register and the CEA could prevent such undesirable practices as manipulations and corners."

Federal Attorney Visits New Office

PORTLAND (AP)—C. Ed Luckey, Lane County district attorney who has been nominated to become U. S. district attorney here, visited the federal offices in the courthouse Wednesday.

Luckey said he would leave for Washington, D. C. Saturday, there to undergo a five-day course in procedures of the U. S. attorney general.

Luckey visited the present federal district attorney, Henry Hess, and federal Judges Gus J. Solomon and James Alger Fee while here.

Police Decide Not To Press Charge

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—An unidentified woman called the traffic bureau here yesterday and reported she had parked her car where there wasn't a meter and when she returned she found both a meter and a parking ticket.

Skeptical officials investigated and discovered that, sure enough, meters had been put up on that block while the car was parked.

A policeman who passed by after the new meters were installed had given her a ticket.

She was excused from paying a parking fine because of "extenuating circumstances."

Price Of Marriage Up In Maryland

ANNAPOLIS Md. (AP)—A bill introduced in the Maryland General Assembly yesterday would make it more expensive for out-of-staters to get married in Baltimore.

Speaker John C. Lubert of the House of Delegates proposed upping the license fee from $3 to $3 to help make up a deficit in operations of Common Pleas Court.

Marylanders still would get their license by putting up the traditional $2.

The bill would have no effect on marriage license fees at Elkton to the north of Baltimore, long a center for quick marriages.

DRAFT CALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The April draft call, announced late Wednesday by the Army, is for 18,000 men—the same as the February and March quotas.

Adlai Defends Use Of Special Groups

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai Stevenson says the activities of groups like the Illinois affiliate of Americans for Democratic Action are "indispensable to a healthy democratic society."

Stevenson, 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, last night told the 10th Anniversary Dinner of the Independent Voters of Illinois—the state's ADA affiliate—that "there will always be many people who for one reason or another do not care to identify themselves with party organizations."

Groups like IVI and ADA, he said, "afford a useful focus for their activity." He added: "I recognize that we cannot all share precisely the same ideas of organization and effectiveness."

Old Soldier Faces Tough Battle

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Stout old Tom Riddle, 107, one of Texas' two surviving Confederate veterans battled old age and a falling heart today in his greatest fight.

Since Jan. 17, the old soldier has been fighting pneumonia and doctors had said his "ardent spirit and will to get well" gave him the upper hand.

But last night, Dr. Herman Wing, medical director at the Confederate Home where Riddle has lived since 1950, said the outlook was bleak.

"Cats" Say New Band Is "The Most"; Real "Cool"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sauter-Finegan are the most.

If this statement doesn't make sense to you, then you obviously are square. Ask any hep character and he will translate for you: the new orchestra headed by Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan is more than sensational. It's cool.

The crazy, mixed-up kids of Los Angeles confirmed that opinion when the outfit made its first appearance here in a concert last weekend. The band has been hailed as the only great one to arise since before the war, I agree.

You can't compare the band to any single one. It can be as rhythmic as Benny Goodman, as sweet as Glenn Miller, as progressive as Stan Kenton, as bubbly as Shep Fields and as wild as Duke Ellington. Throw in a little Stravinsky and some percussion by Spike Jones out of Bali and you get a fair picture of what Sauter-Finegan is like.

The band is an arranger's dream and no wonder. The leaders toiled for many years putting notes together for big-name bands, Sauter for Goodman and others and Finegan for Miller. They are completely apart from the usual band leaders. Both are soft-spoken types who stand almost shyly in front of their musicians, giving an occasional cue.

"Most of the other bands are run by an army style of discipline," explains Sauter. "I don't believe in that, either for an orchestra or for my children. I think discipline should come from respect."

I lunched with Sauter during the West Coast stop of his fast-traveling band (it is halfway around the continent by now). He looks and talks more like a professor than an orchestra leader. He explained that he almost became a teacher, have studied at Columbia, a teachers' college and Juilliard School of Music. But the band business claimed him first.

Ed and Bill were neighbors in New York and often lamented their troubles with their band bosses. They never worked together until they formed the current band. How did it happen?

"A year ago, Bill was in Europe studying music and arranging for bands over there," Ed said. "I was in New York and I found myself slipping further and further into the quicksand of commercial music. I guess my letters to Bill were pretty morose, because he suggested that we form a band and do the things we've always wanted to do. I jumped at the chance.

"I think the country is going through a great period of transition. I've been able to confirm this by traveling around with a band. Morals are changing; our attitude toward divorce is much changed from what it was 20 years ago, for example. Tastes are changing too.

"It was time to try something new. That meant using new sounds, and we have adopted many instruments that have been used only in symphony orchestras. In our arrangements we have tried to bring a new combination of the classical

Security Boss Lists Cleanup

WORLAND, Wyo. (AP)—R. W. Scott, Mead, state Department's security officer, gave Wyoming Republicans a detailed outline of the department's security program at a Lincoln Day dinner last night.

He said people "aren't interested in whether loyalty risks are drunks, dope fiends, sex perverts or Communists—but they are interested in getting them out of government."

He said it was not the duty of his agency "to prove or prosecute—that's up to the Justice Department. It's our job to bring to light, to point out the security risks."

McLeod will speak tonight at Lander, Wyo. He has been attacked by Democrats for his swing through the West to address the Republican dinners while still drawing pay.

He said one of the chief difficulties of the Truman administration was a "lack of follow-through—lack of good administration."

He praised Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for doing "a great job," and said Dulles' statement of policy are a "180-degree about-face from the former appeasement and coddling in government."

"Communism is the big issue in foreign policy, as slavery was in Lincoln's time," he said.

Young Film Scout Found Murdered

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The body of a handsome young movie talent scout, bound hand and foot, was discovered last night in the bedroom of his suburban Sherman Oaks home where he lived alone.

Police said the victim, identified as David E. Johnston, about 30, had been bludgeoned with a piece of fire wood. Police Lt. E. W. Smith said the house was "a shambles," with trails of blood indicating that Johnston had put up a fight before he was slain.

Detectives said Johnston's expensive 1953 car is missing and a bulletin has been issued to California police to watch for it.

Smith said the body was discovered by Johnston's girl friend when she went to his house last night and, looking in, saw a pool of blood on the living room rug. She fled from the house and notified police.

A piece of fire wood was found near the body. Johnston's hands were tied behind his back and his ankles tightly bound.

Smith said bottles and glasses indicated there may have been a drinking party before the killing.

Oregon Governor To Make Speeches

SALEM (AP)—Gov. Paul L. Patterson has two speeches scheduled for Thursday.

He will talk at the state Farmers Union convention in the afternoon, and at a Chamber of Commerce banquet in Oakridge Thursday evening.

Old Gun Causes Portland Death

PORTLAND (AP)—George J. La Du, 54, got an old revolver out of a closet when his 4-year-old grandson said he would like to see a gun.

The gun fired, the bullet striking La Du in the body. He died in a hospital Wednesday night, a few hours after being taken there.

SCHOOL ROOMS

GRESHAM (AP)—Gresham union high school district voters approved, 215-53, a $328,707 bond issue Wednesday. The money will provide a new cafeteria and four classrooms.

"Keep Oregon Green" Aim Of Young "Green Guards"

SALEM (AP)—Billy Taylor, a nine-year-old boy in Chemult, wrote:

"First I tried to put out the fire. Then I told my mother and then I told the warden. And he said that was O. K. It had been burning for two days before I found it."

Billy's alertness, typical of hundreds of similar cases, prevented a forest fire from spreading.

He's one of 50,000 Oregon boys and girls, between the ages of 8 and 16, who have joined the Green Guards since it was created 10 years ago by the Keep Oregon Green Association.

Billy is one of 129 boys and girls who won KOG awards during 1953 for putting out fires or reporting them.

Albert K. Wiesendanger, executive secretary of the Keep Oregon Green Association, gives the 10,000 children who now belong to the Green Guards much credit for reducing Oregon's fire losses.

Besides suppressing and reporting fires, the youths are effective agents in promoting fire prevention. They do this among their friends, their families and their schools.

"The objective of our Green Guard," Wiesendanger said, "is to make our young people conscious of the need for caution while using our outdoor areas by learning how to report fires, how to prevent them, what to do in case of fire, and how best to enjoy the great outdoors."

Last year 5,537 boys and girls joined. Each got a badge and a kit with instructions how to reduce forest fires.

Wiesendanger is surprised at the way it has grown.

KOG, which is supported by gifts from lumbermen, county courts, garden clubs, and other conservation agencies, is a little organization that operates on a shoestring. It has only two paid employees—Wiesendanger and his secretary.

The Green Guards have grown in numbers largely because the enthusiastic members get their friends and schoolmates to sign up. When a member helps put out a fire or reports one, he sends in his report, verified by an adult. The

Thornton Opinion Given On Convicts

SALEM (AP)—State prison convicts sent to the state hospital for treatment should get credit for the time spent in the hospital, Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton ruled Wednesday for the state Board of Control.

This reversed opinions of three former attorneys general, who had held that convicts don't get credit for the time in the hospital.

Thornton said convicts in the state hospital are held there under their original sentences and that the time spent in the hospital should count toward those sentences.

A considerable number of convicts are sent to the state hospital for treatment of physical and mental illnesses. Some of them, who have spent months or years there, haven't received any credit toward their sentences.

ly burned. Gary gave him first aid and took him to medical help.

Joe Rainwater, 10, who goes to Salem Englewood School, carried water and wet sacks to some men who were fighting a fire in a grain field. He also put out sparks that blew over the fire lines.

Three boys who live near Union were given membership last August for a good piece of work, even though they are over age.

They are Keith Delaney, 15; Dale Briggs, 17, and Larry Watts, 18. They put out a lighting-set fire 20 mile south of Union, without any help.

Gary Showalter, 14, student at Cleveland High School, Portland, helped fight a forest fire with wet gunny sacks. His partner was badly

When Danny Nichols, 10, Medford, was hunting with his dad, they found a fire in the mountains. They reported it and helped fight it.

These are a few of the many examples of the Green Guard's help in the Keep Oregon Green program. The State Forestry Department gives these boys and girls a lot of credit.
