Puerta Rican Threatens Ike

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Pedro S. Orozco, 24, a Hartford Puerto Rican, will be presented before a federal grand jury at New Haven today on a charge of threatening to "kill the President."

He was arrested yesterday at about the same time a group of Puerto Ricans in the balcony of the House of Representatives in Washington sprayed shots onto the crowded House floor, wounding five representatives.

He was arrested on a charge of nonsupport while he was testifying against his estranged wife, who was being tried in police court on a charge of breach of the peace.

He was taken to police headquarters for fingerprinting.

Detective Capt. Joseph P. McDonald quoted policeman Otto H. Felie as saying Orozco threatened to "kill President Eisenhower" while he was being fingerprinted.

McDonald reported the incident to U. S. Atty. Simon S. Cohen, who issued a warrant for Orozco's arrest and ordered him presented before U. S. Commissioner Benedict M. Holden.

Holden, finding probable cause, ordered Orozco held in bonds of $15,000 pending his arraignment before the federal jury.

Although two policemen testified before Holden that they had heard Orozco threaten the President's life, he denied having made the statement.

"I never carried a gun or a pistol," he said on the stand. "No kill anyone."

Cohen said that while Orozco has been drawing unemployment compensation benefits here, he has made trips to New York and Detroit. Cohen said a complete investigation of the man's travels would be made "since we don't know if he is a lone wolf or a member of the Puerto Rican nationalist group."

Songwriter Sues Julius La Rosa

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Julius La Rosa, the singer, and several associates have been sued for 1 1/2 million dollars damages by two song writers and a recording company, on grounds of copyright infringement.

The action was brought yesterday by songwriters Tony Sacco and Thomas Conroy, and Record Music Corp. Their complaint involves the song "Eh Cumpari," which Sacco and Conroy contend is substantially the same as their song, "Hey, Goomba," written before 1948.

Grain Storage Ships Readied

SEATTLE (AP)—Two ships from the mothballed reserve transport fleet at Olympia arrived here Monday for conversion into floating storage bins for surplus wheat.

The two Liberty ships, the George D. Prentiss and the John M. Quick, will be cleaned and fumigated and then filled with surplus wheat before they are taken back to Olympia to be anchored again.

The Prentiss is under the general agency of the Alaska Steamship Co., which will operate 16 of the floating storage bins. The Quick will be operated by Olympic Steamship Co. and other steamship companies will handle the remainder of the storage bin fleet.

Joseph Hare, Maritime Administration representative in this area, pointed out that the ships will not be reactivated but will remain "dead," towed around by tugs until they are reanchored, full of wheat, at Olympia.

Each of the vessels the government plans to use for grain storage is capable of holding 6,000 tons apiece. In all, the government plans to store 800,000 tons of grain funneled to Tacoma and Seattle from storehouses in Washington, Idaho and Eastern Oregon.

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Thomas Richards, who admitted in City Court that he struck his wife with a baseball bat, was placed on one year's probation after his wife asked that a drunk and disorderly charge be dropped.

"It was only a small bat," she explained to Judge Casimer T. Partyska.

'The Egyptian' Presents Problems To Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"The Egyptian" may rank as Hollywood's headache picture of the year. It has been just as much trouble casting the props as it has the leading man.

Marlon Brando left for New York as filming was about to start. Twentieth Century-Fox charged breach of contract and sued him for two million dollars. Brando's doctor, however, said he was ill.

Now, it turns out that "The Egyptian" is one of the toughest pictures in years from the scenic standpoint.

"We had to start from scratch," sighed Walter Scott, head of the studio's prop department. "No studio has ever made a big picture about ancient Egypt until now. We were able to borrow a few items from MGM, which has been making 'Valley of the Kings.' But most of it we had to create from scratch."

"We have made 3,000 different items for the picture. Now the others want to borrow our things. We've already had four men from Cecil B. DeMille over here to see what they can use in 'The 10 Commandments.'"

He showed me some of the items that have been made. Those ancient Egyptians had a lot of modern ideas.

They were masters of makeup. Scott explained. He demonstrated a replica of a queen's makeup box that would make Max Factor green with envy. Also small, carved gizmos for holding lady's eye shadow. You can bet that Egyptian husbands had to wait just as long for their wives to beautify themselves as we do.

There was a game called hounds and jacks, a sort of pre-Christian scrabble. A set of miniature furniture for children to play with. Chairs and couches that would find ready buyers in any department store.

"The Egyptians had a great sense of line and proportion," said Scott. "Many of their pieces compare favorably with the best modern furniture today." All of the 5,000 items are true reproductions of the originals, which were preserved through the ages by the favorable desert climate.

Why all this worrying about accuracy? Well, the studio figures it gives the proper feeling to the picture. Besides, some Egyptologist might write a stinging letter decrying the use of a drinking mug from the wrong dynasty.

Research for "The Egyptian" has uncovered some odd facts about the 1300 B. C. era, including: Egyptian men were baby sitters. The office of "cradle rocker" was often filled by males, including high functionaries.

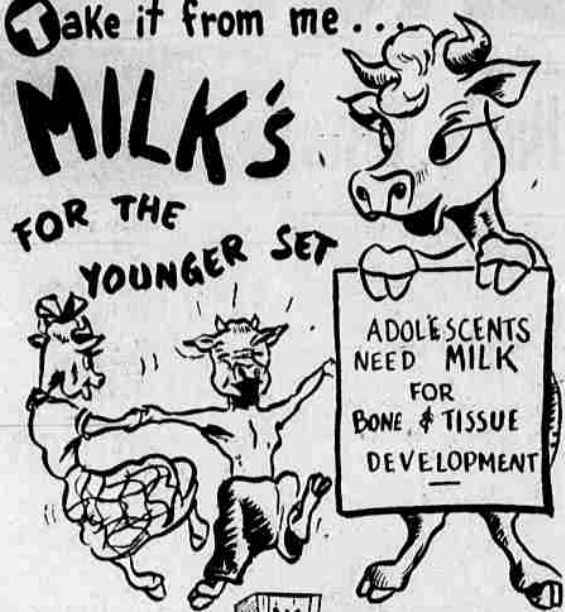

orange henna to the tips of their fingers.

Ancient Egyptians apparently ate with their fingers. They had geese, ducks and pigeons, but no chickens. Beasts of burden included oxen and donkeys, but no camels. They came later.

Dancers were extremely graceful and often appeared naked. Which shows you how accuracy must often be sacrificed in films.

Amish Sect Has Parking Troubles

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Court has granted a temporary injunction to prevent the village of Sugar Creek from building a parking lot for horses and buggies.

The village wants the lot for members of the Amish sect, who frown on automobiles. Parking of the Amish buggies on the streets creates a traffic hazard, village officials contend.

But Robert E. Rees, who obtained the injunction and owns property next to the lot's proposed site, has other ideas. He says it would cause a barnyard atmosphere and be a health menace.

Sick Elephant Hard To Diagnose

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It took two doctors, three assistants, and two X-ray machines to find what was wrong with a 15-year-old girl.

She is Jovye, a 300-pound elephant in Griffith Park Zoo.

"She'll be laid up about a month," Dr. Victor Tiersten, veterinarian, said. He and Dr. Willard D. Ommert said she had suffered a strained ligament in the left hind heel.

The veterinarians yesterday used the two machines strapped together because rays from only one couldn't penetrate the foot-thick ankle.
