Concert To Be Held Wednesday

Some wonderful old "tunes" are revived in "Musical Americana," the new concert novelty produced by Mary Hunter, with a notable cast of singers and dancers, which will be presented at the Pelican Theater on Wednesday, March 3 by the Klamath Community Concert Association. This new musical attraction is actually based on American legends and American songs that have been handed down from one generation to another.

Since much of the integral action of "Musical Americana" concerns the progress of the pioneers westward in the early part of the nineteenth century — by canal boat, on foot, on wood-burning trains, on horseback and in wagon train — there has been lined up a wonderful succession of movement songs of the time. Among them are: "My Horses Ain't Hungry," "Westward Ho!" "The Raftsman's Song," "Shenandoah," "I'm a Rovin Gambler" and "Oh Santa Anna." "Musical Americana" comes to Klamath Falls in the midst of its first transcontinental tour.

Doors at the Pelican Theater will be open at 7 p.m. Curtain time is at 8.

Attention Elks! The Elks Mens' crab feed will be held Thursday night March 4th at 6 p.m. at the Armory.

The next panel will be at Sacred Heart, March 3, and moral and religious topics will be discussed. Speaking from Malin will be Flo Johnson and Ruth Douglas.

As usual, Malin walked off with a good share of awards in Group III Conservation. Three first prizes, four seconds and four thirds went to students of the high school for projects completed last fall.

Of course we had to contend with six-weeks tests once more. Twelve more weeks present a hopeful outlook The seniors had their heads measured — for caps, that is, to be worn on the evening of June 2.
