Dusette Whips Pederson

George Dusette won back a lot of prestige last night, that he had lost in the two previous weeks, by whipping Eric Pedersen in the main event of the weekly wrestling program.

Pederson was working the French Canadian over when Dusette booted him through the ropes and out of the ring. As the blood headed musclemann started to climb back, Dusette decided to work on him a little bit more. This proved to be disastrous.

As Dusette moved in Pedersen, still outside the ropes, applied a full nelson which seemed to end Dusette's chances right then and there.

When Pedersen refused to obey referee Buck Davidson, and release the hold, the arbitrator awarded the second and deciding fall to Dusette, and then is when the excitement started.

Dusette was mad and didn't want the disqualification. Instead he literally worked The Sneezer over from pillar to post before Eric could break free and hurdle the ropes to safety.

The first fall went to Dusette when he caught Pedersen in his powerful full nelson and Mr. Muscles realized what he had gotten himself into and gave up before he had another near broken neck.

In the first semi, popular Tommy Martindale took a two out of three fall decision from Roy Wolf. Martindale won the first fall on a disqualification and then returned to wrap up the win with his favorite rolling cradle.

Ivan Kameroff used a few illegal tactics in the second semi-windup to whip Bill Fletcher when Fletcher was unable to answer the bell after Kameroff's punishing tactics.

The Russian took advantage of Fletcher's mistakes to post the win. Fletcher's trouble started when he missed a flying drop kick and injured his back. This set the stage for Kameroff, who worked Fletcher's back into such a condition that he had to be helped to the dressing room after the match had been awarded to Kameroff.

Kameroff was awarded the fall by using his Russian Bearbug.

Pels Meet Cavmen In League Opener

Dave D'Olivo and Garry Williams are scheduled to take the mound for the Klamath Union High School Pelicans when they meet Grants Pass on the Cavemen's home field tomorrow afternoon.

Bill Hamblin, letterman first baseman, will get the opening call for the first base job and Gene Metler will open at second base. Metler originally a third baseman was shifted to the keystone sack when regular, Ron Conner, was sidelined with a knee operation.

Don Dexter, one of the two senior lettermen on the squad, will hold down the shortstop assignment against the Cavemen. Eddie Bibby, returning third baseman, will be at the hot corner for McGinnis' team.

The outfield will be made up of hard hitting Craig McCarty in right, Larry Yarnell will be in center field, and Williams will handle the left field chores in the first game.

When Williams is pitching Dave Letting will go to right and McCarty will shift over to left.

Two other infielders who are pushing Metler for the second base position and could very possibly start, are Danny Lowe and Butch Kimpton.

In the catching position will be either Bob Kelly, letterman from last year's squad, or Jimenez.

McIngram, Grants Pass head man, could very well start an all-letterman team, as he has 12 returning lettermen, one more than

Betting Odds Remain Same Despite Cold, Sore Hand

CHICAGO (AP)—(Bobo) Olson has a head cold and that Kid Gavilan has a sore right hand today failed to affect the odds on their championship brawl at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Olson, middleweight king making his first title defense since clinching the crown with a 15-round decision over Randy Turpin last October, was a 3-2 favorite.

A week ago he was a 9-5 choice. In the meantime, Gavilan moved his training headquarters to Chicago. The slide in odds followed a normal course and should be 6-5, take your pick, by ring time. It figures strictly a tossup, and getting behind a favorite is one of the hardest jobs boxing experts have had to do in years.

RUMORS Despite the phoney rumors, the clamlike Olson posed somewhat of a mystery on the eve of his biggest battle.

The balding, tattooed 160-pound champion, son of a federal narcotics agent in Honolulu, has fled to a secret hideout. He registered under an assumed name at a hotel on the city's far North Side.

Before doing so, he was observed blowing his nose. He did this perfectly human act after trotting around in the snow for his routine four miles of road work. Word got around he had a cold.

Today, it can be told that Olson, weighing 160 pounds and confident he officially will hit about 150 tomorrow, is in his hideout pursuing his favorite pastime—reading gory detective stories.

Momentarily, at least, he suffered a case of nerves, and he wants to be alone. Before he moved to his hideaway, he was hounded by reporters and photographers to the extent that he was overheard to exclaim: "I'm ready to blow my top."

Meanwhile, welterweight champion Gavilan was his old, gay self. He displayed his footwork for an audience that included Mario and Florida, a dance team currently appearing in Chicago.

DANCE "He's the best mambo dancer in the country," enthused Mario. "Those legs, they are magnificent."

The report that the Cuban Hawk had a sore right hand came out when he was seen dunking the mitt in a bucket of water. Also, he was observed dealing the cards in a poker game with his left hand and shaking hands while holding his right in abeyance.

"He always soaks both hands in brine to toughen them up," said his manager, Angel Lopez. "He can deal cards and shake hands with either his left or right, who cares?"

Lopez disclosed that Gavilan will appear in a Las Vegas night club for $12,000 weekly starting Monday, if he beats Olson.

The fight will be televised nationally by NBC, starting at 10 p.m. EST, with Chicago and a 100-mile surrounding area blacked out.
