WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Cancer Society today opened its 1954 drive for funds to fight cancer, and also gave out a new professional pointers on the job.

Lawrence H. Hays, president of the society, said the drive is the largest in the history of the organization. He said the society has received a $10 million grant from the federal government to help in the fight.

At the White House, Hays and Mrs. Eisenhower watched as the President passed a policy of radioactive cobalt, used in cancer research, over a Delger counter.

That generated an impulse which was transmitted by wire to New York's Times Square, where it illuminated a 70-foot cross of a sword, symbol of the American Cancer Society.

Illumination of the sword is the start of the society's drive for 30 million dollars to fight the disease.

When the President's part in the ceremony was concluded, Mrs. Eisenhower stepped up and told him she had prepared a long speech on the work of the society.

"But I think I'll just talk to you a little about your job," she said. "How is your job?"

"Well," the President laughed, "it could be better. But as long as I've got people like you to emulate, I'll be all right."

"I hope one of these days to have a game with you, and I would be afraid to take a lot of strokes."

When the President and the First Lady entered the broadcasting room where the cancer fund ceremony was held, the Babe was grasping the pointed end of a wooden sword and was swinging as she would a golf club.

Eisenhower smiled and volunteered to send upstairs for the real thing. They settled for the improvised club, however, and the Babe proceeded to give him a few tips about his grip.

The President confided he has been having a little trouble with it, and before he was through he had the sword in hands, demonstrating just what he meant.

Mrs. Eisenhower showed him how to correct the trouble, and the President expressed his thanks.

Ruth Lobaugh To Be Soloist

Miss Ruth Lobaugh, featured soloist with the KUHS orchestra in the final concert of the spring series to be presented this evening, has an impressive musical background which more than qualifies her for the spotlight.

The pianist received her Bachelor of Music degree with a major in music education and her soloist's diploma in piano from New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Massachusetts, where she graduated with highest honors. She earned her Master of Music degree in music education at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois.

She is a native of Clinton, Missouri, and following completion of graduate study, took the position of supervisor of music in Clinton public schools, thus fulfilling a dream of many years.

"My main love is public school music," Miss Lobaugh says, "and it's the one thing I have wanted to do since childhood."

After she left Clinton, Miss Lobaugh taught in junior high schools in Colorado Springs, and six years ago came to Klamath Falls where she is supervisor of elementary school vocal music.

In this capacity, she oversees the annual Christmas programs performed in the elementary schools of Klamath Falls, and is credited with providing a variety of themes through the years. She directs the spring music extravaganza which involves the seven schools of the elementary school district and some 24 or 25,000 students from the first grade through junior high.

Miss Lobaugh is popular with the entire faculties of Klamath Falls public schools, and acts as counselor for music teachers in the city.

Her natural aptitude for music and her love for it will be manifested tonight when she plays the first movement of Schumann's "Concerto in A Minor" with the KUHS symphony orchestra under the direction of Walter P. Smith.

The Girls' Glee Club will assist in the program. Curtain time is 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Police Guard Dock Workers

NEW YORK (AP)—AFL longshoremen under police protection successfully invaded the luxury liner pier stronghold of the striking International Longshoremen's Assn. "Pistol Local" Friday.

This was the second straight day the AFL men worked Pier 84 in the costly 29-day-old ILA waterfront strike—and the first time without violence at the gates.

Police escorts rushed 110 AFL men in trucks onto the pier, to work the Italian liner Vulcania despite a line of jeering pickets.

Three hundred police were stationed outside the pier to head off any attempt by the ILA men to keep the trucks from entering. Only 12 ILA pickets marched outside the pier gate, but 500 other ILA men stood across the street until dispersed by police.

Police said one man, John P. Foley, 31, of Dumont, N.J., a "Pistol Local" member, refused to move and swung at a policeman. He was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

The so-called "Pistol Local" is dominated by Harold Bowers, named by the National Labor Relations Board as one of the major leaders in the jurisdictional dispute with the AFL for control of the waterfront.

The New York-New Jersey waterfront commission Thursday night rejected a bid of the striking union to end the walkout if the commission would give amnesty to 65 ILA men blacklisted for criminal records.

Buying Surge Said Slow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price cuts which took effect yesterday as a result of lowered excise taxes—ranging from pennies on most items to hundreds of dollars on expensive furs—brought no marked buying surge.

A national sampling of opinion by The Associated Press showed that merchants generally expected the sales tax cuts on hundreds of items to spur buying in the coming weeks. But most said there had been no noticeable reaction the first day.

On many items, the retail prices still had not been changed. That is because the tax on those items is levied at the manufacturers' level, and merchants generally had not been told how much their prices would be cut. Many said it would be a week or more before all their price tags fully reflected the tax cuts.

But on such things as furs and jewelry, the tax at the retail level dropped immediately.

Butter prices dropped too yesterday, in the wake of an order by Secretary of Agriculture Benson reducing the level at which the government supports the price. The cut was about 8 cents on top grades.

In some cities, the initial drop was 5 cents a pound or even less. But in many it ranged around 10 cents and in San Francisco as high as 18. Butter prices varied regionally, with the price range from 59 to 70 cents.
