Canadians Probe Fatal Air Crash

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (AP)—Canadian officials pressed an investigation today into the nation's worst commercial aviation disaster, the collision-crash here yesterday of a Trans-Canada Airlines North Star and a light military training plane. Thirty-seven persons were killed.

Mayor L. E. Lewry called a special meeting of the City Council to renew protests against student flights from the nearby Royal Canadian Air Force base over this city of 25,000.

The dead included 31 passengers and a crew of four in the west-bound airliner; a British RAF pilot training here under a NATO program; and a cleaning woman who died in the wreckage of a house struck by the airliner's flaming debris. There were no survivors. As it hurtled to the ground in flames, the big four-engine North Star came within 100 feet of a school where 350 children were in classes.

A garage was used as a temporary morgue. By early today only 18 of the 37 burned and broken bodies had been identified.

Among the dead passengers were Rodney Adamson, 52, a leading Progressive Conservative member of Parliament; Pat Reid, 55, famous northland bush pilot and oil company executive; George Sweny, president of the Vancouver Iron Works, and their wives.

The collision occurred in mid-morning as the airliner, delayed 7 1/2 hours by weather on its flight from Montreal to Vancouver, was flying west above the city.

Witnesses said the single-engine Harvard trainer crashed into the larger plane from the southwest, shearing off a wing from the airliner. The trainer fell directly to the ground while the North Star went into a spin at a sharp angle, trailing fire from its tail. Bodies hurtled from the airliner "like raindrops," falling to the ground over a wide area, they said. When the big plane hit, a fuel tank exploded and shot flames over two homes, burning them to the ground. The cleaning woman, Mrs. Martha Hadwen, 38, was the only occupant of one of them.

We found the story this week at FLOWERS by BILL and RITA where we ALWAYS find a fund of interesting information . . .

Many EARLY Christians spurned the Cross as an Easter symbol because so many early civilizations had used it as an instrument of death. Not until the 1400s, when inspired paintings of "The Crucifixion" and the "Descent from the Cross" by famous Renaissance artists, were critical voices softened toward the SYMBOL that today, means to all of us, a rebirth, a blessing.

Drop into FLOWERS before EASTER . . . get the hallowed FEEL of the HOLY DAY . . . it's THERE in the fragrant blossoms to send away, to brighten YOUR home, your EASTER costume . . . ask about the FLOWER HATS, a DIFFERENT way to draw all eyes your way as you stroll the avenue . . . simply take a frame that compliments your eyes, your hair, choose your blooms and let the folks who KNOW, do the rest . . . the shop will be open until 11 a.m. EASTER morn to keep your BLOSSOMS dewey fresh . . . there's STILL time to WIRE your love in ROSES if you'll dial 8173 or go to 430 Main, to

FLOWERS By Bill and Rita

There are lots of ways to put our feet forward . . . there's the hip-swinging stride of the movie siren, the flat-footed waddle of the teen-ager in loafers. There's also the right way . . . the walk of the charming woman, precise, controlled, rhythmical. A graceful walk, varies neither with age nor station in life . . . two words give the cue . . . relaxation and rhythm. Keep feet close together, toes pointed straight and knees leading . . . walk gracefully into living.

The bare look in shoes is stronger than ever this spring. But most of these shoes are designed to wear after-five. Don't puddle jump these moist spring days in a malaise of fragile straps and extreme heels. For daytime, always, especially at work, closed pumps get fashion's nod . . . and did you know, that shoe clerks say that wearing an opened toe pump, adds length to your footies?

Aunt Sally Peters sex, she can remember when lots of people were able to boast of ancestors who were strung up as horse thieves, but in these modern times the automobile has taken away the possibility of even that slight distinction.
