Northwest Power Deal Discussed

PORTLAND (AP) — The Northwest must accept the challenge of the new federal power policy by assuming ourselves the responsibility of meeting power needs of this region," Idaho Gov. Len Jordan said Monday. Jordan was principal speaker at Monday's session of the Pacific Northwest Trade Assn. which is meeting here. "Too much precious time is being wasted in bickering over who is to build which dams. The need is urgent enough that our concern should be: 'Who is willing and able to build them?'" Jordan said. He reported that engineers for the Power Policy Committee had estimated there will be a power shortage of about two million kilowatts by 1964. To meet this demand "will require the combined efforts of all interested parties," he said. He listed some 20 projects which he said should be built. Among them were a low dam at Hells Canyon and dams at the Brownlee and Oxbow sites. Those three are Idaho Power Co. proposals. Referring to the current controversy of what kind of dam should be built in Hells Canyon on the Snake River between Oregon and Idaho, Jordan, a proponent of the Idaho Power Co. plan for a low dam, said: "We must be realistic—a project twice rejected by the Congress had better be re-examined for its economic feasibility. Otherwise we might some day find ourselves served with some silver mounted kilowatts from a beautiful concrete and steel monument to extravagance."

Gov. Paul Patterson of Oregon introduced Jordan. W. Wagon Linoleum. A Specialty for the Homeowner.

Olympia makes good neighbors. There is something about Olympia Beer that makes my neighbor and me more neighborly... on the hot afternoons when we mow our lawns or trim the hedge, or wash our cars. Our gardening methods are different. He likes rockeries. I like terraces. He prefers asters. I grow roses. But, on one thing we both agree. We both prefer Olympia to any other beer. I suppose there's a reason for it. They say it's the artesian water used in brewing. Whatever it is, we like it... and look forward to meeting on warm afternoons... to that refreshing moment when we enjoy our bottle of beer together and say, "Olympia makes good neighbors." Enjoy OLYMPIA BEER. "It's the Water" that makes the difference. Visitors welcome to "One of America's Exceptional Breweries," Olympia Brewing Company, Olympia, Wash., U.S.A. 9:30 to 4:30 every day.

23 Years Ago Monday, April 13, 1931 — With Joe Knudson, vice president, presiding as chairman, the regular weekly meeting of the 20-30 club was held at noon today in the Pelican grill. Leslie Rogers of the First National bank was the principal speaker and outlined policies and a program for the club. Tuesday, April 14, 1931 — At the district convention of the Kiwanis International held in Ashland Thursday, the recently formed men's chorus literally "knocked them out of their chairs," according to President Cunningham and were called upon to answer many encores. This chorus is composed of Burge Mason, Elbert S. Veatch, George H. Adler, Paul Schnur, Bert Iol, R. E. Patterson, John Houston, Howard Barnstable, R. E. Dewesse, E. W. Roenicke, George Myer, George Cuning. Wednesday, April 15, 1931 — Mrs. J. C. O'Neill and two daughters, Marilyn and Jo Ann, returned last evening from a week's trip to Portland and Salem. In Salem, Mrs. O'Neill visited her parents and also played in the symphony orchestra many times. Mrs. O'Neill, a talented violinist, takes part in many musical programs in this city. Thursday, April 16, 1931 — E. D. Trulove has purchased Jack Hale's meat market at 917 East Main. Mr. Trulove was formerly in the Piggly Wiggly store. The store is now open for business under the new management. Friday, April 17, 1931 — The honor of being the first 4-H club in the county to finish their work 100 per cent this year goes to the sewing club at Bonanza, under the leadership of Mrs. Irene Jelinek. The officers and members of the club are as follows: Hazel Loomis, president; Vera Duncan, vice president; Clarice Coppening, secretary; Erma Thomson, Jean Ludwig, Frances Mahoney and Jane Pool. Saturday, April 18, 1931 — Ballots were mailed out yesterday by the Klamath County chamber of commerce for the nomination of 14 men for the office of director. The election committee which consists of Bert C. Thomas, W. R. Canton, Fred Fleet, W. J. Kennett and O. R. Moeller, will meet and count the ballots as they are returned.
