

CONGRATULATIONS went to OTI last week when William Way (right) commended OTI Director Winston Purvine on the work being done at the school on the hill. Way, president of the Portland Central Council and business manager of Local 72, Boilermakers and Blacksmiths, made a thorough inspection of the school after a lecture there recently. He also addressed a meeting of the entire student body.

COSTLY

MILAN, Italy (AP) — An attractive woman in a flashy car drove up to the Ponte Chiasso frontier post on the Italian-Swiss frontier Monday. Police thought she looked excessively buxom. Closer inspection, they said, showed that instead of underwear "she was literally clothed in Swiss francs"—$80,000 worth of them. The police did not reveal her identity, or what action they took against her. Export of any kind of currency from Italy is banned.

Angell Asks Funds For Dalles Dam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill by Rep. Homer Angell (R-Ore) to increase by 18 million dollars the authorization for the Columbia River Basin project was approved by the House Monday and sent to the Senate. The money would be used to keep construction of The Dalles Dam and reservoir on schedule, Angell said. The bill would increase the project authorization from the present 150 million dollars to 168 million.

Bonanza Hi Debaters Win

Bonanza High School won second place in "B" debate at the state speech conference held at the University of Oregon at Eugene on April 9 and 10. Nelda Hale and Carol Lou Weatherby, seniors at Bonanza High School and representing South Central Oregon, met St. Joseph Academy of Pendleton, winners of Eastern Oregon debate district in the semi-finals of debate. This double round resulted in a split decision with one win for St. Joseph and one win for Bonanza. In the third debate held to break the tie, St. Joseph's Academy was judged the winner. To date, St. Joseph's Academy, University High and Bonanza High have two wins each recorded on the debate traveling trophy. One more win for any one of these schools would make it a permanent trophy.

Condemnation Row Flares In Council

By PATI O'CONNOR

Although the first hearing on the proposed condemnation of certain buildings in Klamath Falls is not set until April 26, City Council got a preview of things to come with the visit to council of Mrs. J. O. Divens, owner of part of the property in question, and Mrs. Raymond Tice, one of the petitioners who started the ball rolling for condemnation.

The situation got more than a little strained as Mrs. Divens insisted that she worked "pretty steady" at her "bobby" and informed council that the rocks (which are reportedly in the rear of the lot and into the alley) are "beautiful"—"and," she continued, "they're going to stay there!" She jumped Mrs. Tice about her charge that there was an open sewer on her property, and Mrs. Tice declared she had to "answer only to City Council." (The sewer, according to Building Inspector Vern Schortgen, is an open ditch covered with some boards but is not connected to the city sewer line.)

Written reports from the building inspector and the fire chief described some of the buildings in question on Wendling Street and Alameda Avenue as dangerous to children and a fire hazard. According to Schortgen's report, the buildings on Wendling were moved in October 29, 1951, and are not completed; the one at 225 Alameda was moved in January 27, 1947, and is not completed.

A resolution setting the date for the hearing on these properties will be prepared by City Attorney Henry Perkins, for adoption at the next council meeting.

In other council business, Mayor Paul Landry tried to ally fears of Tony Steinbock, an operator for seven years at the municipal airport.

Steinbock wanted an assurance from council that, in the event the proposed establishment of a jet air base here becomes a reality, civilian operators at the airport would be taken care of. He claimed that the unsurety of the situation was costing him, and other businesses at the airport, money. Mayor Landry said it was impossible to tell him exactly what would be done at the airport if the jets come, since neither he nor the Air Force officials with whom the city has been negotiating are certain of details. Councilman Frank Tarr reminded Steinbock that at last week's council meeting, a letter from the chamber of commerce stating the main problems of civilian aviators was read and ac-
