U.S. Climbers Build Base

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The California expedition seeking to climb Mt. Makalu in the Himalayas has established its base camp on the 27,790-foot mountain. Dr. William Sirl of the expedition advised The Associated Press that the climbers battled heavy winds to reach a grassy shelf above the Barun glacier, at about 10,000 feet. His message, sent by runner to the nearest civilization, added: "Our camp is comfortably located. Soon we shall be sending out reconnaissance parties to explore the east and west faces of Makalu."

"All members of the expedition are fit and well, but they owe much to the 150 porters who made a heroic struggle through the lower Barun river to reach the base camp on schedule. In particular they are indebted to Ang Tharkay, one of the most experienced guides in the Himalayas and a veteran of the French Annapurna expedition. "One of our comforts is being provided by British trained Sherpas - hot tea at 6 a.m., which helps to keep us on our toes for the rest of the day."

Lost Airplane Searched For

TOLEDO, Ore. (AP) - A ground search party hoped Tuesday to find a plane to the east of B. W. Hall, 54, Bakerfield, Calif., flier who vanished on a flight here April 12. A score of persons have reported hearing a plane at about the time Hall, en route from The Dalles, would have passed over. His stepson, James Weber, who came here from Bakerfield to aid in the hunt, said all of the reports told of a plane heading into an area near Elk Creek, east of here, and none reported hearing the plane come out. So the search party planned to cover a rugged, timbered area in the Coast Range a little north and east of Elk City. Weber said he thought an area of about 4 to 6 miles square - with Bader Mountain at one end - held the plane. He said the search was not without hope for Hall's survival. There was a report from an isolated area that on Wednesday, two days after the plane vanished, shots were heard in a 3-4 sequence. It was known that Hall sometimes carried a .22 caliber rifle in his plane. Whether he did not this flight, though, was uncertain.

In addition to the ground party, an aerial search started under patches of cloud.

Use Of U.S. Aid Doubtful WASHINGTON (AP) - Two senators said Tuesday after a meeting with Secretary of State Dulles that no decision to dispatch American fighting forces to Indochina is being considered. Both senators are Republicans. Ferguson of Michigan and Bridges of New Hampshire. Ferguson, who left the meeting early to keep another appointment, added: "I don't think it (the decision) is in the works at all. At present I am against sending American troops to Indochina. I know of no facts to warrant it." The two senators talked to reporters at the State Department after Dulles had briefed a 15-man congressional delegation on developments in Indochina and the forthcoming Geneva peace conference which the Reds will attend. Dulles has the situation well in hand," Ferguson said. The secretary will leave for the Geneva conference "with the blessing of congressional leaders," he added. Bridges said in his view "the situation looks gloomy but not hopeless." He said any move to send American forces to Indochina "was not in the wind." But, he added that no one could foretell what the future would hold. Bridges said in a speech Monday night that "we have made our decision" to hold Indochina. Sen. Cooper (R-Ky) said Tuesday he is prepared to go all the way with the Eisenhower administration to keep Indochina out of Communist hands.

COMMITTEE

(Continued from page 1) ent and future problems of disposal. At the present time the sewage system of the city is taxed to capacity. Some additions must be made at an early date. Make-shift arrangements to temporarily alleviate the situation are not economically sound. This then seems to be the time, according to opinions expressed at last night's meeting, to meet the situation with a suggestion that can be of mutual benefit to both the suburban district and the city. The program as outlined by Cunningham and his associates suggests the addition of a sewage disposal system with necessary trunk mains to entirely eliminate the present Klamath Falls problem to which the proposed annexed area could become a part. The planned facilities would augment, according to the report, the present usable system to a capacity capable of serving a population of 25,000. An estimated cost of $600,000 is indicated to supply the needs to the city and to provide a main trunk line for sewage disposal into the area being considered for annexation.

BOND ISSUE If sewer bonds in the amount of $500,000 were issued for a 12 year period, it is anticipated that the millage cost for the entire tax base, both inside and outside the present city limits would be approximately 4.6 mills. This would be partially offset by reduction in millage for other city services due to the increased tax base. The present city millage is 26 mills. In addition to these millage costs for sewer trunk line accessibility, competent engineering estimates indicate a figure of $3.50 per front foot to the property owners for the feeder lines necessary to utilize the trunk line. Connection costs to the feeder lines from residences and business establishments is estimated at $80. Property values in the area studied for the proposed annexation have been assessed at $1,102,500. Total assessed valuation for Klamath Falls is $14,298,193.28, according to county assessor records.

Roughly the indicated boundaries of the suggested annexation area extend easterly along Shasta Way to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation canal; southeasterly along the canal to South Sixth Street; easterly on South Sixth to Hope and south along Hope to Harlan Drive; southeasterly along Harlan Drive, to Ward; west again on Ward to Bristol; west along Bristol to Crest; north on Crest to the OCAE railroad right of way, northwesterly along the railroad right of way to join the east city limits of Klamath Falls.

George Davis, president of the chamber of commerce stated that there would be an immediate resurgence of business in the Klamath Falls area and that the town would be recognized as a consuming center when population figures can be tabulated at 25,000. There is a psychological reaction among national manufacturers toward establishment of branch business in localities of that figure and he predicted that red tape would be bypassed to take advantage of competition in a growing municipality. George Daig, Klamath County sanitarian and Dr. Seth Kerron, health officer, reiterated the facts, that due to the geographical contour of the area, there is no feasible solution except an adequate sewage disposal system. At the present time an approximate 500,000 gallons of drainage per day is being poured into the soil, not at the saturation point. This condition is the seedbed for illness of epidemic proportions.

SCHOOL DISTRICT One problem that has caused some question on previous annexation discussions was dissipated last night and found, through the Cunningham report to be non-existent. It was brought out that there is no reason for the city limits boundaries to disturb the present school district boundaries. Boundaries of neither district No. 1 nor district No. 2 coincide in any way with present municipal boundaries. School tax millage would not be affected in any way by annexation. This previously has been thought to be an insurmountable barrier to annexation. Humor flashed across the gathering when Cal Peyton, once a staunch defender of the faith of "isolationism" and the right of man to be alone," admitted that he was wrong in opposing the coming of the town to the county.

MUTUAL BENEFIT Peyton said, "This is the first proposition ever offered that is within the financial realm for solution of this acute problem. It can be done only with the help of Klamath Falls, but this help can be mutually beneficial." The boundaries as outlined are not inflexible. Other districts in the area can come in later as financial possibilities and needs are met. The present laws governing annexation provide that should 100 per cent of the residents of an area desiring annexation so petition, and the city council of the municipality agree, the area can be annexed after due publicity. Since this is improvable, the normal procedure is for an election to determine the will of the people.

While serving with the Coast Artillery during the war he received a back injury and decided, after being discharged from the service, to learn the barber trade. After bartering for a short time in the East he came to the West Coast and landed a job in Malin where he has been a barber in Fred's Barbershop, owned by Fred McDonald, for the past two years. Schemenau plans to leave for San Francisco about May and fly by United Airlines to New York. Leaving New York either by Pan American or Swiss Airlines, he will land in Frankfurt or Stuttgart and take a train to Heidelberg. He plans to be gone about 30 days.
