Slight Business Revival Eyed Cautiously By Expert

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The eagerly awaited business upturn may have arrived, Dr. Courtney S. Brown of Columbia University said today, but it may prove to be only a temporary rally "in a longer period of slack activity" lasting a year or two.
Brown, dean of Columbia's Graduate School of Business, said in remarks prepared for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention there are encouraging signs that a revival "started a month or so ago."
And a member of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, A.L. Mills Jr., said in a prepared talk there is increasing evidence of "resurgent business activity" to which, he said, administration fiscal policies may give added vigor.
Brown said some economists who formerly believed the business upturn would come this summer or fall now are "beginning to veer to earlier dates."
"Perhaps the turn around has already begun," he said, but added:
"There is no convincing evidence that the incipient revival will be more than an improvement of several months' duration. It could turn out to be merely a period of stability at present levels. . . .
"It may be more realistic to regard the present prospect of improvement as a period of rally in a longer period of slack activity. If we are wrong, so much the better."
Dean Brown questioned whether the nine-month-old business sag had been caused so directly by the adjustment of overloaded business inventories as most administration officials have contended.
The nation's economy may have passed temporarily from a postwar period of replenishment and expansion to a period that could last another year or two, during which replacement may provide the principal source of new demand," he said.
This would not necessarily mean "a weak economy growing weaker," Brown added, but it does cast doubt that any revival "will represent a new and sustained movement to new heights of prosperity."
"It would be nice to think that our worries are behind us, or that they will shortly be behind us, but

Attempt At Car Robbery Foiled

Ed McCracken, 900 North 9th, went to his garage about 8:30 Monday night to get a suitcase from the back seat of his car. As he opened the back door a man jumped from the front seat and ran down the driveway, McCracken reported to city police.
Police were called and searched the area thoroughly but no trace of the would-be car robber was found. A pair of pliers and a screwdriver taken from the glove compartment were found on the front seat. It was apparent, according to police, that the man was attempting to wire around the switch, probably with the intention of stealing the car.
that is perhaps premature," he said. "Unless there is a major change in international affairs or in domestic government policy, we may have to content ourselves with something less than a full-blown boom."
Brown voiced doubt that the government should undertake extraordinary action to stimulate industrial expansion and employment.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA presents its finest gasoline research achievement

An entirely new kind of motor fuel that ends forever the biggest single cause of engine troubles

THE World's first detergent-action gasoline

Cleans carburetors in old cars, keeps them clean in new cars to step up power, cut down gas waste and give you a smoother-running, quieter engine that doesn't die at stop signs...at no increase in price.

How detergent-action does a repair job on your car...starting with the first tankful

Your car's carburetor, the "heart" of the engine, mixes air with gasoline to make the engine run. Until now it has had one annoying "heart trouble" no matter what car you drove or what gasoline you used.

While your motor ran, a ring of deposits built up in the opening through which the air and gasoline flowed. After a few thousand miles, this ring gradually choked off the air supply during idling. Your engine began to die at stop lights and idled roughly.

1 out of 3 repair jobs caused by carburetor troubles

The only solution was to take your car to a repair shop and have the carburetor fixed. That's why carburetor troubles are the greatest single reason for engine repairs.

Then Standard scientists discovered the real cause: Exhaust vapors and crankcase fumes contain tiny bits of soot, gum and dust. They're drawn in with the air your engine needs and stick in the carburetor.

Removes old carburetor deposits... stops new formations with the first tankful

To cure this, we perfected a new kind of motor fuel to guard the heart of your engine—"detergent-action" gasoline—that not only cleans out the carburetor while you drive, but stops formation of new deposits. As long as you use detergent-action Chevron Gasolines you'll be safe from carburetor troubles except those due to mechanical causes.

Proved through millions of test miles

Since last November, detergent-action Chevron Gasolines have been in gas pumps in a number of Western cities. Through millions of test miles, under the toughest driving conditions, they eliminated stalling of warmed-up engines at stop signs, ended jerking and bucking in traffic, gave cars new pep and power, chalked up money-saving gas mileage (one taxi fleet reported savings up to $1200 monthly). Best of all, you get the gas-saving, trouble-ending, performance-boosting extra advantages of detergent-action without paying a penny more. Get a tankful today.
