

TULELAKE UNION ELEMENTARY SCHOOL
TULELAKE, CALIFORNIA

FROM THE OFFICE OF HOWARD E. PERRIN, ARCHITECT, KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON

VOTERS IN THE TULELAKE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL DISTRICT will go to the polls Friday, May 21, to ballot on the proposal to accept state aid, not to exceed $320,000, and on the proposition to bond the school district for $176,000, to build a new elementary school building on the site of the present school. School board members will also be balloted on. Plans for the one-story modern building, in the office of Howard Perrin, architect, Klamath Falls, call for incorporation of the original unit, built several years ago and still in good condition. The wing built from buildings moved to the site from the former war relocation center at Newell will be torn down. The original unit was built to earthquake specifications. The new wing, of frame construction, south of the central building, will include 10 classrooms, 30 x 40 feet each. Radiant lighting in the ceilings and acoustic wall tiles will be installed. A multi-purpose room for a gymnasium and cafeteria is planned to occupy space in front of the classrooms. Tables and benches can be recessed into the walls after meal hours. A kitchen, cooler rooms, pantry and large storage space for indoor and outdoor equipment are planned. The administrative offices, first aid room, teachers' room and supply depot will connect the multi-purpose room and the present unit. A kindergarten, with access to the main building, to the north is planned, with sheltered sandbox, fenced yard and equipment, including lavatories, built to a five-year-old scale. Present enrollment is 290 students. The new building will accommodate 490. Tulelake and Winema elementary school districts were consolidated by ballot of voters last spring. The Winema School was the first built in the Tulelake area and was located on the west side of the lake.
