Icke's Diary Says FDR Feared Possible Revolt

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The late Harold L. Icke wrote in 1938 that President Franklin D. Roosevelt feared a possible revolution if he followed "conservative" Democratic advice to halt relief spending and farm aid in an effort to balance the budget.

Icke, secretary of the interior 13 years in the Cabinets of Roosevelt and President Truman, told of this in the second volume of his diary, covering the period from Roosevelt's second election in November, 1936, to Hitler's invasion of Poland in September, 1939.

The 336,000-word volume, titled "The Inside Struggle," is being published May 4 by Simon and Schuster. Excerpts will appear in the May 18 issue of Look magazine out next week.

"The Inside Struggle" traces the happenings of Roosevelt's second term and tells of the New Deal President's unsuccessful battle to add six justices to the Supreme Court, of Roosevelt's ill-fated attempt to purge anti-New Deal Democrats in 1938, of setbacks in the mid-term elections that year, and of behind-the-scenes White House social doings.

Icke, the self-styled "old curmudgeon," registered strong criticism of his fellow Cabinet officers and of Democratic congressional leaders in this portion of his diary, which ultimately will run to six million words. Among those who came under his fire was Rep. Raymond D. Text, then House majority leader and now minority floor leader there.

Among other things, Icke wrote in March 4, 1938, that Roosevelt told him he (Roosevelt) would have read Bernard M. Baruch out of the Democratic party, if he had not needed Baruch's financial help to reorganize Alben W. Barkley as senator from Kentucky—a post Barkley is again seeking.

It was in a Dec. 24, 1938, diary entry that Icke related that FDR told him two "conservative party leaders" argued the way to preserve party solidarity was to balance the budget by dropping all federal spending for relief and public works, except for $50 million dollars to match state and local funds, and by stopping all farm benefits. The two leaders also were quoted as urging against a tax boost.

"The President remarked," Icke's diary said, "that this would mean calling out the troops to preserve order. It might even mean a revolution, or an attempted revolution."

Icke said that when the President asked these leaders if they would be willing to have it announced that they were in favor of such a program, "both hastily demurred... they did not want to take any responsibility."

Icke said Roosevelt did not name the leaders. But Icke said he felt certain one was Vice President John Nance Garner and that the other probably was James F. Byrnes, then a senator and now governor of South Carolina.

The entry about Baruch was written shortly after the New York financier and presidential adviser appeared before a Senate committee studying the unemployment situation, Icke said Baruch blamed the New Deal for the business recession then existing.

"He seems to think, like other rich men," Icke said, "that it is all due to the taxes on undistributed profits and the attempt of the government to prevent income tax evasions by the very rich."

Icke said it was clear that FDR did not like "this line of Baruch's."

The President said, Icke added, "the only reason that he had not read him out of the Democratic party was because... he hopes that a practical idealist like Baruch will help to finance Alben Barkley's campaign in Kentucky."

Barkley was then being opposed in the primary by Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, and Baruch had indicated he would help Barkley, being—as Icke put it—"very generous" in his contributions to party funds.

There was no mention whether Baruch actually did contribute, but Barkley won by 50,000 votes after FDR spoke in his behalf.

Icke also wrote in 1938 he felt it not unlikely that as a result of the then current Dies Committee investigation, a "Communist scare" would be "fomented and kept fanned in this country" and that the end result would be Fascism.

He referred there to the activities of the House Un-American Activities Committee, then a special group under Rep. Dies (D-Tex.). It now is a permanent House committee and is headed by Rep. Velde (R-Ill). Dies left Congress of his own accord in the mid-1940's, but is now back in the House. He no longer sits on the Un-American Activities group.

Junior Red Cross Work Reviewed

An assembly held Thursday April 29 ended the Junior Red Cross work for the school year 1953-54 at Roosevelt School. Room representatives from each grade reported on the special projects of each group of students; they have included filling gift boxes for children of other lands, service and gifts to local hospitals and other institutions, services to veterans hospitals, tray favors, gift boxes, and salvage collections.

Mrs. Virginia Dixon, Red Cross executive, spoke briefly to the children describing how their activities were helpful to veterans at Camp White, Oregon, and thanking the school for the cooperation they have given.

Mrs. Bertha Hultman has directed the Junior Red Cross program in the school. Council officers are Carol Taylor, president; Pamela LaGrande, vice president; and Carol McCartney, secretary and Carol McCartney, treasurer. Room representatives are first grade, John Buck and Janet Kerns; second grade, Maurine Kilby and Marianne Gallagher; third grade, Nancy Lee Baker and Linda Hanville; fourth grade, Susan Merryman; fifth grade, Nancy Moehl and Ray Rodney; sixth grade Susan Gedney; 7th grade David Drew.

Mild Earth Tremors Rock Greece After Heavy Shake

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Earth tremors still rocked Central Greece last night, hours after violent shocks flattened entire towns and crushed scores of people to death.

The early death toll was estimated officially at 150. Interior Minister Ioannis Nicolaitas said at least 25,000 persons were made homeless.

Yesterday's stricken area stretched from the East Coast into the Pindus Mountains, where shattered villages could be reached only over donkey trails. Destruction appeared to center around Granitsa, 135 miles northwest of Athens, with the towns of Sofades, Farsala, Karditsa and Domokos hardest hit.

Thousands of persons slept in open fields—some because they had no home to return to and others because they were afraid to go back to the towns they had fled.

The government sped supplies and medicine to the earthquake victims and dispatched troops to repair communication lines. A religious holiday which had closed down communication and government offices hindered the relief measures.

Many telephone and telegraph lines were down, delaying details on the extent of the disaster.

Here was the situation according to available reports:

Sofades, a town of 4,000, was almost destroyed. One person was killed and several injured.

Farsala, about the same size, had 80 per cent of its houses down, leaving 5,500 persons shelterless. Reports on the dead and injured were not in. The town is a historic site, said to be the home of Achilles. It also was the battle ground of Pharsalus, where Julius Caesar defeated Pompey the Great in 48 B. C.

Karditsa, population about 28,000, had 75 per cent of its houses toppled.

Domokos was 10 per cent destroyed. Five persons were injured.

Twelve persons were injured in Trikala. Thirty-four houses collapsed in Volos, and houses were reported destroyed in Agia Marina and Xenadisi villages. The 400-year-old monastery of Aghia Athanasios, near Domokos, caved in.

Quota Club Picks Leader

Helen Majors was installed as president of the Klamath County Quota Club in recent ceremonies at the Winema Hotel.

The candlelight installation ceremony was conducted by Cardula Bell, past president. Other new officers are Edith Lantz, first vice president; Nina Pence, second vice president; Alice Vitus, treasurer; Lisabeth Muma, Margaret Ballie and Lucille Roper, directors; Eva Dickson, recording secretary; Vera Chase, corresponding secretary; Nadine Colvin, parliamentarian.

Following the ceremony the retiring president, Nadine Colvin, presented the gavel, and president's pin to the new president, Ada Sprout, program chairman and past president, welcomed Mrs. Colvin into the Past Presidents Club with the presentation of the jeweled past president's pin.

In appreciation for faithful service to the Quota Club during a year a gift was presented Mrs. Colvin from the members.

Impromptu group singing was led by Hap Lawler, accompanied at the piano by Lisabeth Muma, during the social hour which preceded the 7:30 p.m. dinner meeting.

INSTALLED AS PRESIDENT of the Klamath County Quota Club at a recent ceremony, was Helen Majors (r). Nadine Colvin (l), retiring president, presented the gavel and president's pin to her at a party in the Winema Hotel.
