MRS. JOE HALOUSEK
Malin Woman Leads Busy Life

Mrs. Joe (Gladys) Halousek, a native daughter of Malin, is a busy woman but she heard her second appointment within a year to the Klamath County grand jury, without batting an eye.

She served the first term with six men jurors. All were recently re-appointed by Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg. Men jurors were Loy Barker, Haary Bechen, chairman, Homer Stiles, Earl Kent, Charles Dixon and Bill Becholt.

Mrs. Halousek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Daniel, Malin pioneer, is the mother of two Boy Scout sons, Neal 10, and Gary, 12. She has been a den mother and wields a wicked hammer when "the gang" gathers to build birdhouses. She is a member of the Malin Parents and Patrons, has been a member of Prosperity Chapter, OES, No. 160 for 14 years, and is secretary of the Past Matrons Club; has just been elected president of the Malin Home Extension Unit and is a member of the Malin Garden Club.

Malin "comings and goings" are also recorded for the Herald and News by Mrs. Halousek who has been a correspondent for several years.

House Approves Oregon Projects

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Public Works Subcommittee Monday approved approximately 13 million dollars worth of river and harbor projects for Oregon.

Largest of the projects was the $ 1 1/2 million dollar Columbia River project which calls for deepening the channel at the river's mouth from 40 to 48 feet and eventual construction of a jetty.

Other projects approved include construction of a jetty and improved channel facilities at the mouth of the Rogue River near Gold Beach at a cost of $3,922,000, and similar harbor improvements at Umpqua Harbor on the Scholfield River near Reedsport at a cost of $51,000.

Work on the projects cannot begin until full congressional approval is granted and money appropriated.

Let me prove to you that we can save all "good risks" money on both Fire and Auto Insurance. Hans Norland, 627 Pine St.

Vic Damone's Army Career Same As Ordinary Draftee

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Lately the papers have been full of reports about famous Army privates with special privileges. Here's one who claims he got none—singer Vic Damone.

Congressional probers have been looking into charges of out-of-the-ordinary treatment for sports stars, hotel heirs, etc., who have been drafted. There have been rumors that some show business figures also have been favored in the Army.

"Not me," says Damone. "I received no special privileges. I went through four months of basic training, just like anyone else. I spent a year in Germany. Then I came back and stayed eight months at San Antonio. I was doing recruiting work part of that time.

"During my first five months in Germany, I did no singing at all. I worked in the costume shop at Nurnberg, which was the central point for all the shows in Europe. It seemed wrong to me that I wouldn't be used as a singer. I had been earning $5,000 a week as an entertainer before I went into the Army. The USO shows which were being given cost the taxpayers money. They could have had me for a bargain—$50 a month.

"Once I was invited to attend a meeting with some officers who were trying to plan entertainment. It was proposed that entertainment specialists — girls who had some background in show business — would write, direct and produce some camp shows.

"I told them that was all wrong. I know what it is to put on a show, and one person can't do it. I suggested putting on shows like 'This Is the Army' with material that had been proven. They didn't go for my ideas at all. I went back to the costume shop and never heard any more about it."

"I told them that was all wrong. I know what it is to put on a show, and one person can't do it. I suggested putting on shows like 'This Is the Army' with material that had been proven. They didn't go for my ideas at all. I went back to the costume shop and never heard any more about it."

Vic said he might have served out his overseas time there except for a ruckus over a foreign car. "I had saved up some money and I wanted to buy a Jaguar," he related. "Another private on the post had a Jaguar and a corporal had a Porsche. I talked to the fellows in my barracks about it, and they thought it was a great idea. They were all for it.

"But a major heard about my plan and called me on the carpet. He said it wouldn't be a good idea, that the other soldiers would resent it. I said that my buddies were all for it. He argued some more and I said, 'You mean the officers would resent it?' I told him I had the right to do whatever I wanted when I was off duty.

"A week later, I was transferred to the 7th Army headquarters."

Damone said he found more understanding there and started talent shows along the lines of the Arthur Godfrey TV program. He added that when he left Europe there were three such units entertaining the troops.

Damone's career is getting back into high gear after the two-year lapse. He is doing his first film since his Army absence, "Athena" with Jane Powell, Debbie Reynolds and Edmund Purdom.
