HERALD AND NEWS

Klamath Falls,
Oregon

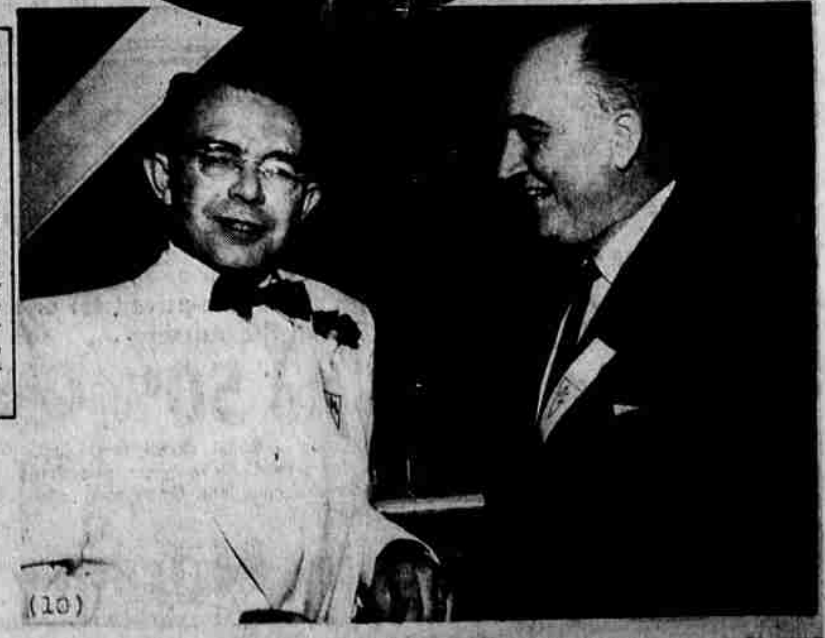

IN "HOLIDAY" . . . June 1953, H. L. Davis briefly referred to Klamath Falls and Bend as . . . "the two loveliest towns in Eastern Oregon, perhaps in the entire West. Certainly there is nothing in California that can come anywhere near either of them."

What H. L. Davis DIDN'T say . . . was that parts of "interior" Klamath Falls touches water for miles . . . that on the shoreline of Upper Klamath Lake is the site of an inland yacht club — with a wide variety of worthy watercraft owned by enthusiastic members who transformed a quonset-hut into an outstanding clubhouse — that the new (comparatively) organization is one of the best mediums of advertising the Klamath Basin has ever had — and that the club has contributed immeasurably to the development of the large land-bound body of water as a vacation spot for tourists.
