Hard Work Involved In KF Realtor's Unusual Hobby

By RUTH KING

A "hefty" hobby occupies numerous hours of Don Sloan's waking hours. Sloan, Klamath Falls realtor, is believed to be one of two persons in the Northwest who sculptures stoneware. His unusual exhibit of South Pacific art is now on display at the Art Center, 1227 Main Street.

Sculpturing in stoneware is one of the lesser known forms of art and one that demands the patience of Job, the eye of an eagle, the gentleness of a woman's hands and a good strong muscle.

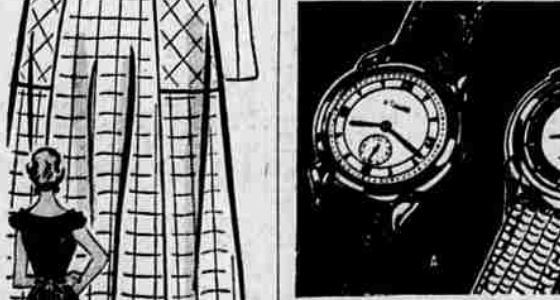

The process is long and tedious from the mixing of clay with chemicals, through the firing, curing and polishing of the completed figure. The result of the process is a true stone, comparable to volcanic throw-off. When once hardened the stoneware resists a cold chisel.

Sloan makes a modeling clay artist, compared to the sketch an artist makes for picture. A plaster of paris mould is then made and this mould is filled with a liquid mixture of "peccol," poured into the mould in liquid form. This is the master copy, which is then worked into its final shape and form.

A sectional mould of similar material is then made from the master model. This fits around the original, like a three dimensional jigsaw puzzle. It can be removed at will, then re-assembled in hollow form. Into this hollow form is packed an especially prepared material, composed of a chemical breakdown of actual stone and other ingredients. The heavy clay-like mass is crowded and packed into the hollow.

The mould is then removed and the figure is set aside to cure for six months. Temperature and humidity is carefully controlled and corrected each week for six long months.

"When the work is 'ripe,' it is then given a final texture by a mechanical process to work out bubbles, cracks and other irregularities.

NO BEAUTY according to some standards of feminine pulchritude is this stoneware statue of Susu Kele, Hawaiian goddess of fertility, modeled by Don Sloane, local realtor who spends spare moments in an intricate art. A collection of his art work is on display at the Art Center, 1227 Main.

Choir Expert Gives Talk

Mrs. Albert Herringshaw spoke on the various aspects of choir training at the June 6 meeting of Klamath Falls Chapter, American Guild of Organists, held at Mt. Laki Community Church.

A discussion on suitable music for choirs followed her talk; then the organ adjourned to Mrs. Herringshaw's home on the Merrill Highway for refreshments.

The guild is currently sponsoring a drive for subscribing memberships. Tickets at $2 apiece entitle the members to attend all meetings, social functions and musical programs of the organization. Subscribing membership is open to all, regardless of whether or not they play.

The four concerts planned for next fall and winter will include an organ concert by Lauren Sykes, AAGO, Ch.M., who is organist of the Portland Symphony Orchestra. Sykes earned his Associate American Guild of Organists degree

MRS. ALBERT HERRINGSHAW was hostess to the Klamath Falls Chapter, American Guild of Organists, at its June meeting at Mt Laki Community Church the 6th.

Nature Society Plans Meeting

Wild flowers and bird life now to be seen in the Klamath Basin will be topics for discussion at the next meeting of the Nature Society of the Klamath region to be held at the chamber of commerce Thursday, June 10, at 8 p.m.

Members of the society have been busy during the past year in making a collection of the flowering plants of the region. The herbarium of the society will be one of the departments of the new Klamath County Museum.
