THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — An official four-man Indonesian delegation will arrive June 20 to discuss with the Dutch government the liquidation of their 4½ year-old loosely linked union, the Dutch Foreign Ministry reports.

New Power Source For East Seen

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ
NEW YORK (AP) — Cheap hydroelectric power, which has helped bolster the economy of sections of the Southeast and Far West, will become available in large amounts in the Northeast in a few years. This became apparent in the wake of two developments in Washington this week.

The U. S. Supreme Court Monday cleared the way for the St. Lawrence river power project, which will be developed as a joint operation by the state of New York and Canada's province of Ontario. The project will be an integral part of the seaway plan for permitting ocean-going ships to enter the Great Lakes.

The following day the Senate Public Works Committee voted to let the Federal Power Commission decide whether the state of New York or a group of private utilities should develop a huge hydroelectric project at Niagara Falls, 200 miles southwest of the St. Lawrence construction.

Upon completion, the two power programs will have the effect of an economic shot in the arm for the Northeast by reducing the differential between the cost of electricity in the region and other parts of the country.

Work on the 600-million-dollar St. Lawrence power project will get under way early this summer. Engineers estimate that within four or five years, the St. Lawrence will be harnessed to produce 12 billion kilowatt-hours of hydro power annually, more than the output of either the Hoover or Grand Coulee dams. The energy will be divided equally between the hydroelectric Power Commission of Ontario and the New York Power Authority.

John E. Burton, a member of the authority, says the St. Lawrence plants will make possible a

It is estimated that completion of both the St. Lawrence and the Niagara river projects would mean total savings of about 100 million dollars annually for New York electric consumers.

Folk Dancing Meet Planned

Folk dancing, a form of relaxation and fun on foreign afternoons for the peoples of foreign countries who had experienced a week of toil in some form or other, has swept over the United States in the years since the last war. Klamath Falls, though somewhat behind most communities, is having its first free festival for all dancers and spectators Sunday, June 20, at 1 p.m. in the Klamath Falls Armory.

The A and I Folk Dance Club and the Minute Club will be hosts for this occasion and dancers are expected from as far north as Portland and as far south as Red Bluff and Susanville, California.

Featured will be Mrs. William A. Roecker, Oregon State Folk Dance Federation president, mistress of ceremonies; Clyde Tandy of the Red Bluff Folk Dancers, master of ceremonies, and exhibition groups from Roseburg and Red Bluff, as well as outstanding square dance callers.

Vyta Beliaque, nationally known authority on European folk dances, will conduct a workshop at the Alamont Elementary School from 10 to 12 a.m.

The A and I Folk Dance Club is inviting all square dance clubs and callers to attend their second anniversary party and potluck at the Alamont Elementary School Saturday evening, June 19, at 6:30 prior to the Sunday festival at the armory.

Take it from me girls... stay Smart and Healthy

By BESSY, THE BASIN BOSSY

A nice set of teeth is certainly a prize asset to a pretty face, and, quite naturally therefore, is an asset to any good looks. Now, there's an old saying that milk is worth its weight in gold. And that it is, and today I'm out to prove that point, and perhaps get across a few others that can help keep you smart and healthy, too.

Milk is most famous for its calcium. And calcium is one of the most important elements that go into making up good teeth. So, naturally, if you've plenty of calcium, your teeth won't need any gold.

That makes calcium better than gold, and certainly makes milk worth its weight in the yellow stuff, since I'm pretty sure you'll agree personal happiness is more important than those more worldly things.

Of course, that doesn't include all of those other important elements in milk—vitamins and minerals and a dozen or so important minerals besides calcium.

Now back to good teeth and good looks.

A nice set of teeth is not only good to look at, but it also holds up the facial features. This is especially important in girls. Once you've lost your molars, kids, they're real gone. And though dental science can do wonders, nothing matches nature. (That, too, is why milk is just so blamed far ahead of any other concoctions put together by anyone anywhere.)

So take it from me, get on the milk wagon right now—the sooner the better. And put your youngsters on it, too, because it is in childhood where real tooth-building activity takes place.
