CHUCK SEAVEY—in town last week—as was well chronicled with pika and printed word in the H&N—but we're reporting a sad afternoon suffered by his spouse Mildred—She reluctantly left her yard here that she had labored over—but had a much bigger area of ground at their new Portland home — looking more or less like she wanted it—when a freak hail (or ICICLE) storm hit their place in a crazy path that zoomed through the land in a narrow long strip—it didn't only beat the flowers down—it riddled the blossoms and slashed the leaves—and according to Chuck it really left a shattered mess in its wake—even the rhododendrons were "ruined" Mildred was also a slight casualty—dashing out to try to cover up some of the petunias etc—she got a good pelting which drove her to shelter in a matter of seconds—guess we're not so bad off here at that.
