

KF Council Plans Changes In City Curfew Ordinance

Juveniles in Klamath Falls will be subject to a strict 12 midnight curfew if a planned new ordinance is passed by council.

Mathews stated that the problem of juvenile delinquency, which he described as "acute," could be partially controlled by a strictly enforced curfew, which would force responsibility to revert to parents.

Alsike Tariff Rule Extended

The recent modification to the alsike seed clover import regulations signed by President Eisenhower June 30, is limited to one year, according to the United States Tariff Commission at Washington.

The juvenile officer pointed out weak points in the present city ordinance — the time (10 p.m.), the loop holes in the phrase "not allowed to roam loiter or play" which places too much responsibility on the arresting officer to determine if there is a violation of law.

He quoted wording in the state curfew law which forbids children under 18 to be on the streets, highways or public ways after midnight unless lawfully employed or accompanied by parent or guardian.

The President today issued a proclamation putting into effect certain recommendations of the United States Tariff Commission made under Section 7 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act, with respect to the rate of duty on imports of alsike clover seed.

In the discussion which preceded the decision, the possibility was introduced of getting cooperation from theaters as to time and type of movies shown, since the theaters are licensed by the city.

In other business, council heard a report from cemetery superintendent, John Lee on the Oregon Interment Association meeting held recently in Eugene.

The proclamation, which modifies the Tariff Commission's recommendations, retains the present duty of 2 cents per pound for the first 1,500,000 pounds of alsike clover imports. For imports above that amount, the 6 cent rate recommended by the commission would be put into effect. The proclamation is limited to one year.

Lee stated that there has been an influx in several Oregon cities of promotional cemetery groups. These groups, according to Lee, set up a cemetery, keep 45 per cent of the income for the group; 15 per cent for the salesman and leave only 40 per cent for operating expenses.

Alsike clover, which is grown for seed in rotation with barley and potatoes on acreage generally unsuitable for other crops because of climatic conditions, is produced largely in Oregon, Idaho and California, while imports of alsike clover in recent years have been wholly from Canada.

As a protection to residents of the Klamath Basin, Lee pointed out that, at the present rate of burial Memorial Cemetery still has over 40 years of burial space already developed, in addition to much more burial space in undeveloped areas.

Imports have increased sharply from 1,157,000 pounds in 1947 to 4,652,000 pounds in the first ten months of the 1953-54 crop year. During this period, following the withdrawal of price support, the domestic price dropped from about 32 cents a pound to less than half that amount. The limitation of 1,500,000 pounds, to which the 2 cents duty rate applies, represents a figure slightly above the average imports for the 1947-51 period.

A report from Bob Bonney, city park and recreation director, and Ella Redkey, Municipal Swimming Pool manager, shows an income from the pool of $4,257 to June 1, with about $3,200 paid out. Total admissions paid was 10,910; total seasons, 2,909, bringing the total number of people in the pool to 13,819, not including visitors at open house or before the pool opened.
