

Cordon Strategists Study Primary Election Results

Strategists from the camps of Senator Guy Cordon and Candidate Richard L. Neuberger have been going over results of the primary election with the proverbial fine-tooth comb. They hope to come up with clues to strategy for the fall campaign.

As could have been expected, both sides are claiming satisfaction from the primary figures.

Republicans note that Senator Cordon beat Neuberger by 33,453 votes statewide, took 30 of the 36 counties and polled a higher percentage of the Republican vote than Neuberger did of the Democratic vote — 41.8 per cent as against 34.8 per cent.

Neuberger's backers have been publicizing the amount of the write-in vote: 1,465 on the Republican ballot, 322 on the Democratic ballot.

The actual vote count in the state was 164,988 for Senator Cordon, 131,535 for Neuberger. This means that Senator Cordon led Neuberger by more than 11 per cent of the total vote.

Democrats point out that they had no active contests on their ballot to attract voters, but that the Republicans had two such — the gubernatorial battle between Governor Paul Patterson and the third district congressional flight between Tom Lawson McCall and Congressman Homer Angell.

Patterson and McCall emerged victorious, and there is no doubt they increased the vote on the Republican side. However, Senator Cordon polled 18,771 more votes than were cast for Governor Patterson, and the governor chalked up 14,676 more votes than Neuberger's total.

Much is being made in Neuberger quarters of the 1,465 write-in votes on the Republican ballot. Presumably, most of these votes were cast for the Portland writer. The votes are credited to the extensive campaign by Neuberger's brother-in-law, James W. Goodsell, editor of the Oregon Labor Press. Goodsell frequently urged Republican readers of his paper to write in Senator Cordon's opponent.

No campaign was conducted by Senator Cordon's supporters to attract Democratic write-ins. However, the senator probably received most of the 322 write-ins cast on the Democratic ballot. In other words, Senator Cordon — with no write-in campaign — received almost as high a proportion of the Democratic vote as Neuberger did of the Republican vote.

The write-in is considered to be insignificant by Republicans. They feel that it demonstrates the fallacy of the belief that certain groups such as the labor vote can be "delivered" in a block. Republicans are counting on the traditional independence of American voters and the appeal of the GOP program to people of individualist leanings.

Republicans also showed interest in returns from Clackamas County. This county was the only one of the Oregon and California Land Grant counties to oppose Senator Cordon's solution to the long O. & C. dispute. Clackamas hired A. W. Lafferty to pursue its opposition and continued the fight even after passage of the senator's administrative bill, and in spite of the fact that the bill contained the same distribution formula that Lafferty won in the Washington, D. C. district court.

Clackamas County also is the home ground of Monroe Sweetland, one-time candidate for Socialist delegate from Oregon. Sweetland put his newspaper, the Milwaukie Review, solidly behind Neuberger. Senator Cordon took Clackamas County by more than 1,500 votes. The count was 10,625 to 9,110. Neuberger won in six counties — Baker, by 110 votes (1,325 to 1,150); Columbia, by 235 votes (1,814 to 1,579); Coos, by 466 votes (3,967 to 3,501); Union, by 314 votes (2,229 to 1,915), and Multnomah, by 2,454 votes (55,720 to 53,266).

Senator Cordon's lead over Neuberger in the 36 counties the senator took was 89 per cent greater than was Neuberger's lead in his six counties. Political insiders know that the percentages show the significance of an election. Senator Cordon's supporters are calling the primary results "a tremendous vote of confidence by the residents of Oregon."

Way Cleared For Cordon Senate Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The way apparently is clear now for Sen. Cordon (R-Ore) to become chairman of the Senate Interior Committee.

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo) confirmed Wednesday that he will not exercise his seniority on that committee over Cordon, the next ranking Republican member. Instead Millikin will retain his chairmanship of the Finance Committee.

Senate custom forbids a member to head more than one committee.

Man Dies From Accident Injuries

REDFORD Ore (AP) — Charles E. Martin, 82, Albany, died here Wednesday from injuries suffered in the collision of an automobile and a gasoline tanker Tuesday.

Benight was riding in a car driven by his brother, Guy, 79. The brother and the tank truck driver, Olen Gilliland, Burns, were unhurt.

CUSTODY

LONDON (AP) — Lady Adele Beatty, wife of Earl Beatty, said Thursday she will fly to the United States next week to take steps to get custody of her son, Timothy. The boy, 7, was spirited out of Britain by his father, William O'Connor, deputy attorney general of California.
