Forwarding Company To Service KF

Acme Fast Freight Inc., the nation's largest freight forwarder, has announced the inauguration of a direct car to Klamath Falls, providing one to three days faster transit time from all eastern sources of supply.

Aubrey C. Clough, general freight agent for the company with headquarters in Portland has been in Klamath Falls for several days making arrangements for a terminal site, selecting a local manager and arranging for an office.

Newton J. Mundlin, 1406 Nimitz, has been named local manager for the forwarding company. A resident here since 1938, he was formerly with the Heidelberg Brewing Company and Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company. He is married and has a three year old daughter.

Peoples Warehouse, 1425 South Sixth, local and long distance hauling concerns will be terminal headquarters for the Acme Company. They will also handle the pick-up and delivery service. Mundlin's office will be located in the Underwood building, at Seventh and Main.

Acme, long the number one company in the freight forwarding field has been serving the Pacific Northwest since 1922, according to Clough. At that time rail less-than-carload shipments took 25 to 30 days to get across the continent. When business suffered a setback following World War I, western merchants felt the need for faster transportation, operating on dependable schedules, but without the high cost of express.

It was to meet this need among businessmen in Oregon, Washington and California that Acme Fast Freight was established.

Acme's direct car to Klamath Falls is made possible by two things: first, the volume of traffic available coming into Klamath Falls is sufficient to support such a car; second, the network of Acme receiving stations throughout the eastern half of the country is the means whereby that traffic, originating in hundreds of shipping points can be channeled into a Klamath Falls car, Clough concluded.

tract would be needed. Zoning regulations and inclusion of the fire and park districts would be proposed.

The procedure is for the suburban area to petition the city council for annexation. If the council accepts the petitions then the suburban area places an application on a ballot at a general election. Providing the issue carries and a majority votes for the measure, the council will approve the annexation by ordinance.

IF at the end of 30 days no protest has been registered the council's action becomes effective under state law.

If by petition is registered by citizens of the city, the measure must be placed on a ballot by the citizens of Klamath Falls. Their action would be final.

Space today does not permit detailed analysis of the many pertinent questions on this important issue. These will be presented in detail for the benefit of Klamath Falls and the suburbanites at future dates.

'54 Spud Crop Predicted

The U.S. Agriculture Department Friday forecast the 1954 potato crop at 242,822,000 bushels. This compares with 373,711,000 bushels last year and 409,027,000 for the 10 year average.

Barley predictions indicate a yield of 372,519,000 bushels compared to 241,015,000 bushels in 1953 and a 10 year average of 274,955,000 bushels.

Indicated average production per acre give potatoes 259.3 bushels this year compared to 247.8 last year and the 10 year average of 202.3.

In Oregon, estimated acreage of potatoes is 39,000; average bushels per acre 325 and a total production of 12,675,000 bushels.

Washington, 28,000 acres; average per acre 405 bushels, and a total production of 11,340,000 bushels.

Idaho acreage not shown but the 1954 crop is estimated at 44,370,000 bushels compared to 45,900,000 last year.

California late crop indicates 16,720,000 bushels this year compared to 15,120,000 in 1953.

In Maine the entire crop for this year is forecast at 44,370,000 bushels, compared to 45,900,000 in 1953.

Oregon's barley crop is indicated as 533,000 acres with an average yield of 32 bushels per acre and a total production for the state of 17,066,000 bushels.

Vet's Mailbag

Veterans in the Northwest have reported instances where they have been asked to pay brokers a "finding fee" preparatory to obtaining a GI loan. Veterans Administration has been informed.

The complaints from lenders, asserted that brokers were requiring veterans to pay them before submitting applications to lenders for purchases of houses under the Loan Guaranty provisions of the GI Bill.

The practice, while not widespread, VA said, apparently is the outgrowth of the increasingly large volume of housing sales under the GI loan program, and apparent unfamiliarity of certain brokers with requirements of the law.

VA said it was a clear violation of federal regulations for a broker to charge a "finding fee." In the event the lender has knowledge that such a commission has been paid, the amount of the fee is ineligible for guaranty, and if such a fee is part of the purchase price, and results in the purchase price being in excess of the appraised value, no guaranty or insurance of the loan may be undertaken by VA.

June marked the fifth straight month that applications for appraisals of properties and applications for guaranty of loans under the GI program have increased. VA said. It is possible, VA officials believe, that July will not equal the June total, due to vacation season and a traditional slowness in home purchases during that month.

But veterans who want a GI loan are advised by VA to study their housing needs carefully, make sure they are satisfied with the house they select, then find a lender—without paying any commission for finding the loan.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK Q: I am a Korean veteran and I'm thinking of opening a business. I will have to wait for several years in order to accumulate enough cash. When I'm ready, will I be able to get a GI business loan, or is the program due to expire soon?

A: You will have plenty of time to get your GI loan. The Korean GI Bill loan program will not expire until ten years after the end of the present emergency.

Results Of Court Feud Reviewed

As the judicial picture became increasingly diffused here Saturday it seemed probable there soon will be more circuit judges presiding in Klamath County than there are colonels in Kentucky.

When District Attorney Frank Alderson climaxed his long-standing feud with Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg two weeks ago by filing motions with the state supreme court disqualifying the Klamath Falls jurist to try five criminal cases, it set off a chain reaction with the following results:

Attorney U.S. Balentine, counsel for Tobe Carter, alleged sex offender and one of the five defendants involved, filed a motion in opposition to Alderson's request for a substitute judge.

Chief Justice Earl Lathrop of the state supreme court upheld Balentine's position and assigned Judge Ralph M. Holman of Oregon City to try the other four cases in which Judge Vandenberg had been disqualified.

Subsequently Attorney Ben Goddard, counsel for William Robertson and T. M. Mitchell, defendants in two of the cases assigned to Judge Holman, filed an application for a judge to replace the jurist from Clackamas County.

The ink was hardly dry on this application before Attorney Joe O'Neill, counsel for Andrew J. Bushman, filed an application for a judge to supplant Holman in that action.

Then the supreme court announced that Circuit Judge Charles H. Foster of Lakeview had been assigned to try the clients of Attorney Goddard.

Late Saturday the supreme court had not yet appointed a judge to try Attorney O'Neill's client.

While on the bench here Friday, Judge Holman informed Attorney Balentine that he took the position that when the supreme court gave him a general assignment in Klamath County, it gave him the right to try any case that came before the court.

Balentine has taken exceptions to the judge's stand and indicated Saturday that he will file a writ of mandamus with the supreme court to prohibit Judge Holman from presiding at the trial of Carter.

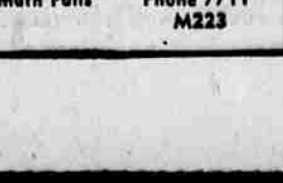

"I don't believe Judge Holman has jurisdiction in the case," Balentine said. "Before District Attorney Alderson filed a motion disqualifying Judge Vandenberg to act in the Carter case, the judge already had sent the case back to the grand jury because the first indictment was defective. We contend that the first and second indictments in all one case, and Judge Vandenberg has jurisdiction."

Other Klamath Falls lawyers have attacked the statute under which Alderson was able to unseat Judge Vandenberg with the statement: "When one elected public official can disqualify another elected public official in the state of Oregon, it is against the public policy and the law should be changed."

Dalles Dam To Be Finished

PORTLAND (AP)—Army Engineers have been ordered to meet the original construction schedule for the Dalles Dam this year, The Oregonian said Friday.

The newspaper's Washington correspondent reported Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Army Engineers' chief, had issued the order to Col. Louis H. Foose, the North Pacific division engineer at Portland.

Atom Plan Negotiation Moves Slow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Snail's pace negotiations on President Eisenhower's atom plan for peace proposal inched forward yesterday when the State Department met a Soviet request for clarification of the plan.

U.S.-Russian contacts on the seven-month-old Eisenhower proposal have been at a standstill since last April 27 when Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov raised certain questions in a note he handed to Secretary of State Dulles in the early days of the Geneva conference.

Yesterday, Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin was called to the State Department where—in a meeting that lasted only five minutes—Asst. Secretary of State Livingston T. Merchant handed him the U.S. reply.

The text of the Russian note of April 27 never has been made public. Neither was the U.S. reply yesterday. The State Department would say only that it answered the Soviet request "dealing with atomic energy matters." Zarubin left the department smiling, but silent.

However, it was learned unofficially that the U.S. message was a point-by-point reply couched in general terms.

Delivery of the U.S. note raised little hope among American officials who for some time have been coming around to the view that the Soviets are more interested in using the Eisenhower plan as a propaganda springboard than they are in serious negotiation.

The President outlined his proposal Dec. 1 in a speech before the U.N. General Assembly. The plan calls for pooling by the U.S., Russia and other nations of their atomic materials and knowledge to be handled by an international atomic energy agency under the U.N. Eisenhower said he hoped his plan to use pooled atomic energy for such humanitarian purposes as medical research and agriculture could sidestep "the irritations and mutual suspicions" that have cropped up over differing atomic disarmament proposals.
