Earth's Scar Marks First A-Bomb Test

By STEVE LOWELL
ALAMOGORDON, N.M. (AP)—The eyes of the passengers searched the hazy distance, following the directing finger of the airliner's pilot.

Under the shoulder of bleak, barren Oscura Range, they finally saw what he was trying to point out. It wasn't much, just a little dark-shaped spot in the desert—a little darker than surrounding land. Not much—that year—not much to show for the world-shaking event that happened there nine years ago. That spot is all that remains to mark the first atomic explosion July 16, 1945.

Some months ago a construction outfit finished scraping up the glasslike substance formed of the surrounding sandy topsoil as the intense heat of the blast melted it. The Atomic Energy Commission didn't want to take any chances that the desert wind might stir up radioactive dust from the trinitite as it slowly disintegrated. The contractor scraped it up and buried it in a large pit nearby. Then the Soil Conservation Service stepped in and planted grass. It believed would thrive in the desert area.

Apparently it was right, for that grass is a little greener than the surrounding area. Maybe it gets a little more water too, for it's in a 1,000-foot-wide, 10-foot-deep saucer pounded into the desert by the monstrous blast.

Apparently nature will have to continue as the only marker of the spot—maybe for years to come, for the area is part of White Sands Proving Ground, one of the nation's prime rocket development sites.

The spot eventually is to be opened as a national monument, but even National Park Service officials must obtain special permission to get into the area.

The glassy material, named for Trinity, where the historic blast was set off, is gone, but as a park service official says: "At least no one can remove the site."

New Citizenship Applicants May File With Clerk

July 26 to 28 are the dates set for preliminary examination of applicants desiring to file for naturalization papers, according to word received by County Clerk Charles F. DeLap from the U. S. Department of Justice.

This is a preliminary to final hearings scheduled for September 1, in the Circuit Court room.

Court Denies Woman's Request

SALEM (AP)—The Oregon Supreme Court Tuesday denied a rehearing of its second decision upholding the conviction of Mrs. Bonnie Lee Kuhnhausen, now serving a life sentence for second degree murder from Clackamas County.

The decision was unanimous. Mrs. Kuhnhausen was convicted of the slaying of Jalmor Tarkin, Clackamas County fuel dealer. She is now in the Clackamas County jail pending removal to the state prison here where the Supreme Court mandate is issued.

The second opinion, written by Justice James T. Brand, withdrew the former opinion and affirmed the judgment of the conviction. In the previous opinion the court held that Mrs. Kuhnhausen had not received a speedy trial as guaranteed by the statutes and the Constitution.

PARADE PARIS (AP)—An hour-long military parade down the broad Champs Elysees Wednesday drew thousands of Parisians celebrating Bastille Day — the 169th anniversary of Republican France.
