Color Film To Utilize New Theory

By HUBBARD KEAVY (For Bob Thomas)
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The girls who always impressed me, and I'm sure they did it deliberately, were those who wore only black or only white."
 William Wellman, who has directed 20 movies, is using this theory in a new movie: It is being shot in color, but except for a very few necessary exceptions, there will be no colors but black and white.
 "The Track of the Cat" is in a low key. It is a tragedy, although it ends with a couple of the characters facing a better future. The story was written by Walter Van Tilburg Clark, who also wrote the offbeat "Ox Bow Incident," which Wellman filmed in 1943.
 This switch, filming a color picture in black and white, first occurred to Wellman 15 years ago. In "Men with Wings" he deliberately put in a black and white sequence, but:
 "It was so good, so unusual, so sexy that I quickly re-made the scene. I put in colored draperies and had the women dress in gay colors. I was afraid that if some other director saw that short sequence he'd steal the idea."
 The exceptions to black and white: Robert Mitchell wears a bright red mackinaw to symbolize the danger he creates and Diana Lynn wears a yellow blouse significant of the cheer she brings in other lives.

Professional Movie Riders Report On Stars' Prowess

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Do you know who the best cowboy in all Hollywood is? Ben Johnson, that's who. Why, he had a pretty good part in "Shane," said Joe, but they cut it down to nothing almost.
 I asked: Ben look better than Alan Ladd?
 Frank One, Frank Two and Joe made uncomplimentary sounds at the mention of Ladd. They unmistakably meant: he's no cowboy.
 Who's the next best?
 Joe said he'd put Joel McCrea right up there, and Frank Two said he'd sure put in with that. So I, said Frank One, but that Ben Johnson, why, he took top day money at the Tucson rodeo and he was the world's champion steer roper.
 I said I never had heard of him. Well, said Joe, you asked who the best cowboy in Hollywood is and we told you. You didn't ask who is the best cowboy in Hollywood you ever heard of, did you?
 I ought to explain that the two Franks and Joe are wranglers, he's in the business. They rent horses to the movies. They started out as cowboys, but they like a touch of the city. They cowboied in Arizona and Utah and Texas until they got tired of driving 40 miles every time they wanted a beer. In Hollywood, they just turn around and there's a beer.
 Now talking about fellows you heard of, continued Joe, that Joel McCrea, I think he's cooler with a horse than most. In other words, he's nice to a horse. Why, he's got his own ranch up in Ventura County and he does his own cowboying. Him and his sons, they bring in their own cattle, they brand 'em and dehorn 'em and everything.
 Now Bob Elliott, I'd rate him about No. 3, said Frank One. You agreed, Joe? Who's Bob Elliott? I asked. Well, he was pretty big at Republic but they let him go and maybe it hurt his ego a little. But he's a cowboy, make no mistake. Oh, maybe he sometimes gets a little mad at a horse, but he's good. He's making six pictures a year for Allied Artists.
 Who's next? Well, now, said Joe, I'd put that Robert Taylor next. Yes, sir, he's a good cowboy. You mean, I asked in astonishment, that handsome actor? You damn right, said Joe. He's got good horses and he knows how to ride 'em. Of course, he's got that Val Valder breaking 'em and training 'em for him.
 How about Roy Rogers, King of the Cowboys?
 Frank Two, with a grunt: Well, he owns a horse.
 And Gene Autry?
 Joe: Hell, he can't even ride a mail wagon for my dough. Oh, he mounts real purty, if you want to count that.
 How about Hopalong Cassidy—you know, Bill Boyd?
 Frank One: Sorry, I didn't hear the name.
 Joe asked: You run out of names? I said I had. So Frank One said you think we ought to mention Van Johnson, John Wayne and Glenn Ford?
 Frank Two said he thought it was a sad mistake to even bring up such names when you're talking about cowboys. I wouldn't even mention those names, said Joe, pointedly.
 So I said I wouldn't mention them.

Ike Names Coal Industry Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has assigned a six-man government committee to try to find ways to perk up the ailing soft coal industry.
 Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming was named to head the group, which was instructed to find out to what extent "present conditions" in the industry are threatening "the strength and well being of the nation" and to suggest remedies.

Police Resume Death Probe

CHICAGO (AP) — Police said they have no evidence of murder, suicide or foul play as investigation into the strange death of mail carrier their Montgomery Ward Thorne entered the second month.
 The inquest resumed today with seven witnesses called, including Mrs. Rita Geigner, 50, described as a mystery woman.
 Coroner Walter E. McCarron said he suspects foul play in the death of the 20-year-old Thorne nine days after he made a new will virtually disinherit his mother and making 18-year-old Miss Maureen Ragen principal beneficiary.
 A coroner's physician's autopsy report indicated Thorne died of a combination of alcohol, a sleeping pill and morphine, but criticism of the report led to further technical investigation. Thorne was found dead in his apartment June 19.
 Thorne's body was exhumed and a panel of pathologists was named to study the case. Their report is expected about the end of this week.
 Mrs. Geigner's demand for advance reports on the results of both autopsies prompted McCarron to subpoena her. She described herself as a friend of Mrs. Marion Thorne, mother of the dead youth.
 Thorne's new will left half of his reported $2,500,000 fortune to Miss Ragen, a fourth to her mother Mrs. Aileen Ragen, and an eighth to his mother and another eighth to an aunt. The first will, drawn shortly after his 18th birthday, left the entire estate to his mother.
 Sgt. Thomas Mulvey, head of the police investigation, said a month's study of the evidence does not indicate violent death, either at Thorne's own hands or by others.

Stock Market Busy Despite U. S. Summer Business Lull

NEW YORK (AP) — Business coasted along as a leisurely summer pace this week.
 In some lines there was a part explanation: it was just too hot to work.
 There were exceptions, however. One was the stock market where bullish enthusiasm took hold. Activity reached its peak on Thursday when averages soared to new highs since 1929 and 3 million shares changed hands, making it the biggest trading day in 18 months.
 Wheat futures prices skyrocketed on the Chicago Board of Trade. Spending plans of the federal government commanded more than ordinary interest.
 President Eisenhower asked governors to co-operate in a planned $5-billion-dollar state and federal highway building program. Other announced federal projects: One billion dollars in the next four months for jet fighter planes; 268 million for Army combat vehicles.
 There was no letup in the building boom. Heavy construction contract awards moved up sharply. Retail trade continued above year-ago levels despite sizzling temperatures in some cities.
 Lagging activity in mills and factories reflected vacation shut-downs, some labor unrest and continued efforts to chop down inventories. Steel production was scheduled at 65 per cent of capacity; many textile plants were closed; auto output was at its low-

Knowland Predicts AEC Victory

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California today forecast an administration victory when the chips are down on the much-debated bill to overhaul the basic atomic energy law.
 Knowland, scheduling another early session in his drive for congressional adjournment the end of this month, said he still hoped the Senate would reach the showdown voting stage sometime today.
 Referring to opposition cries of "giveaway" and "monopoly" against the Eisenhower atomic program during four days of day-and-night debate so far, Knowland told an interviewer:
 "Actually, I think they've lost some strength in the last few days."
 "We are not going to put this aside for other legislation and there will be no compromises."
 However, critics of the measure, chiefly Democrats and Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore), gave no indication they were yet through with speechmaking and one of them, Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.), contested Knowland's assertion they have lost votes in the process.
 Gore said the long hours of argument have brought several new supporters to those who would amend the measure providing, for the first time, that private industry be allowed to enter the field of peacetime atomic energy development. The bill, revamping the original 1946 statute, would also allow a limited sharing of atomic secrets with America's allies.
 The Tennessee senator is a leading critic of a White House order that has been one of the main topics of debate, although not contained in the bill itself. The presidential directive would have the Atomic Energy Commission contract for private power to serve the Memphis, Tenn., area over Tennessee Valley Authority lines. The replaced TVA power would go to the atomic plant at Paducah, Ky.

est level for any non-holiday week this year.
 President Eisenhower's top economic adviser, Arthur F. Burns, told Congress that longer hours now being worked in the nation's factories point to a coming upturn in industrial employment.
 White House adviser Gabriel Hauge said the recession has been stopped cold, and the nation is "catching its breath" for a mighty upsurge in the next five years in business and production.
