THIS NEW UNION OIL station in Merrill will be ready to serve the public in about two weeks. It has been built on the corner on Front Street occupied by the old Scoggins building, a Merrill landmark. The station will be managed by Gilbert Batty and Anthony Northrop who now operate a Union station formerly owned and operated by Homer Heaton. Just winding up a paint job are, left, Earl Bryson, paint contractor, Portland and his helper, J. L. Bray.

Church Women Plan Tea

The Klamath Falls Council of Church women will begin its fall and winter activities with an annual inter-faith tea September 27.

The announcement was made following a recent meeting of the executive board at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Lambie, newly elected president.

Mrs. Cliff Wood spoke on "Loyalty and Freedom," following which luncheon was served to the committees.

Chairmen of departments are: Mrs. A. M. Collier, Christian world relations; Mrs. Earl Redmond, Christian world missions; Mrs. Cliff Wood, Christian social relations; Mrs. Fred Karlson, public relations and historian.

Mrs. Everett Dennis, Christian life and growth; Mrs. Lawrence Birk, county home birthdays; Mrs. Frank Johnson, Halloween project; Mrs. Homer Caldwell, church women magazine; Mrs. Ben Peters, telephone.

Officers are: Mrs. Kenneth Lambie, president; Mrs. Brooks Custer, first vice president; Mrs. Elsie Burton, second vice president; Mrs. Eli South, secretary; Mrs. R. H. Reeves, treasurer.

Honorary vice president include Mrs. Perry Hartwick, Mrs. Ona Bagley, Mrs. John Yadon, Mrs. Harvey Hayden, Mrs. Hugh Swaney, Mrs. Herb Pollard and Mrs. J. A. Anderson.

State To Test Fuel Meters

Fuel oil and gasoline meters in the Klamath Falls and Merrill areas will be checked beginning July 22 when the state department of agriculture's special meter fuel test truck arrives here from Lakeview.

The testing equipment will be set up at the Shell Oil wholesale plant here and all oil delivery trucks will be scheduled for a check of metered devices. The schedule will be arranged so there will be a minimum disruption of route service.

Metered equipment throughout the state is tested once each year by the department's weights and measures men, J. E. Kitchen, inspector who will be in charge of the work here, estimates it will take about 10 days to complete the work in this area.

These tests include meters on trucks that deliver fuel oil to homes and gasoline to service stations. They do not include gasoline pumps, as this testing is handled by the department's district fieldman, E. P. Black who is headquartered at Grants Pass. Any meters found inaccurate are condemned; the state will not seal them until a later test shows necessary repairs or corrections have been made.

Last year about 2,000 meters were tested in Oregon. The total for 1954 may run a little higher, on the basis of checks made during the first half of this year. Kitchen has reported to his headquarters in Salem that so far this year only a normal number of condemnations have been necessary.

Witches Failed

Geo. N. Taylor

Why did the Africans wait so long before they brought their sick man to the hospital? It was because they took the sick man to four different witch doctors and their dried snake skins and crocodile fat and toads failed to cure the man and he died soon after reaching the hospital. And you also take a no-good cure when you listen to Satan. He tells you to do good and God will pass you in. But God says that only the blood of Jesus Christ will cancel out your sins and bring you into eternal life. Good works or not, you go out lost if you reject Christ as having died for your sins. To be saved:— Being Saved yourself, may you have intentions and pray for the unsaved.

Forest Permits Required

PORTLAND (AP)—Persons entering areas of extreme fire hazard in Mt. Hood and Willamette National Forests in Oregon Monday were required to have special permits.

Those receiving permits from forest ranger stations are prohibited from smoking or building fires and are required to carry fire-fighting tools.

Guy Johnson, Forest Service fire dispatcher, said similar regulations went into effect Saturday in all national forests in Washington and in the Deschutes, Fremont and Umatilla forests in Oregon. Permit areas will be established in the Siuslaw and Rogue River forests later, he said.
