

Cottage Grove Millman Named Chief Whitetail As Herd Meets On Hart Mt.

LAKEVIEW—L. L. "Stub" Stewart, a lumberman at Cottage Grove, inherited the crown of Chief Whitetail when the order of the Antelope held its 19th convocation at Blue Sky Hotel on Hart Mountain National Antelope Refuge July 16, 17 and 18. He succeeds A. B. Wilson of Alturas, California.

About 400 men turned out for the big weekend on top of Lake County's own world. Phil Quisenberry, of Lakeview, was re-elected grand secretary.

The Order of the Antelope was organized in 1932 to promote establishment of the national antelope refuge under the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and the refuge came into being on presidential proclamation in December, 1940. The order meets during the full moon each July to get away from it all and boost any conservation program which needs and deserves boosting.

The order is sponsored by the Lake County Chamber of Commerce, but operates separately under a board of control composed of Lake County men: Jes Paha, chairman, John Blair, Doug Fetsch, Trow Long, Jack Briscoe, John Hanson, Les Shaw, Wilson and Quisenberry. These men are appointed by the Chamber and their presence on the board has nothing to do with any offices they might have in the Order itself.

Other officers named on the mountain are John Blair, Lakeview, grand jackass buckaroo; Bob Hirt, Eugene, grand harmonizer; Frank Hise, Corvallis, king of the desert; Col. H. Palmer, Portland, chief lookout; Giles French, Moro, grand historian; L. E. "Bing" Francis, Hillsboro, grand herd sire; Leith Abbott, Portland, grand orator; Earl Bevins, Chico, California, keeper of the wampum; John Richards, Eugene, keeper of the tail; Bill Chadwick, Salem, keeper of the waterhole; Ed Cardwell, Sweet Home, keeper of the prongs; Harry Elliott, Tillamook, sage jumper; H. P. Bosworth, Medford, desert navigator.

To help Grand Herd Sire Francis keep tabs on the herd while they are scattered during the year, and to get them and any new wild jackasses (neophytes) back to next year's gathering, the Order named the following assistant herd sires: Bill Branwell, Chico, California; Fred Brenne, Eugene; Perry Tallman, Corvallis-Albany; Phil Hunt, Portland; Orville Eaton, Astoria; Bob Adams, Roseburg; Art Fish, Grants Pass; Rod Keating, Ashland; Don McNeil, Medford; C. Ray Johnson, Tillamook; George

"Smooty" Smith, Klamath Falls; Mervyn Wilde, Malin-Merrill-Tulelake; John Reginato, Redding; Red Bluff; Ben Maffi, Reno; Lloyd Magill, Bend; Giles French, Moro-Mid Columbia basin; Bill

KF Council Votes Pool Payment

Mostly routine business received city council attention at Monday evening's meeting - business pertaining to the airport water tank and the swimming pool.

Verne Schortgen, city building inspector, reported that the million gallon steel water tank at the airport had been drained, scaled, and would be painted beginning today.

He estimated that the scaling job would cost less than $400; work is being done by airport employees.

Russ Avery, airport manager, told the group that certain products had reduced their flow about 75 per cent which eliminates the possible water shortage feared earlier.

On the subject of the new Municipal Swimming Pool, council voted to withhold final payment to Paddock Engineering Co., contractors, and Howard Perrin Architect until satisfactory corrections have been made on the objections outlined in a letter from Bob Bonney, city park and recreation director, to Perrin.

Satisfaction is expected from a letter Bonney directed Monday to a different official at Paddock, suggested by a Paddock representative in Klamath Falls Monday.

The main objection is tar between the bricks which melts and causes damage to clothing and pool facilities.

Council was adjourned to Wednesday, July 21, at 7:30 when members will hear the third and final reading of the ordinance setting the time and place for election by residents of the South suburban area (which includes the public housing units, school district adjacent and Sunnyland) for annexation to the city. The election date will be August 24.

Adlai Visits Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Adlai Stevenson and Fairbanks' first circus brought out the city's largest crowd Monday and gave the city street department a problem.

Hundreds jammed the streets to get a glimpse of the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, who rode in the circus parade, as well as the clowns and elephants, and the city ran out of traffic signs. In desperation, the street department dug into its winter supply of road warnings.

And with the temperature nudging 80 degrees, Fairbanks residents read and obeyed traffic signs reading: "No Parking after 10 a.m., Snow Removal."

Later, at a reception given by local Democrats for Stevenson and E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, Alaska delegate to Congress, the former Illinois governor commented on the parade noting that his group had preceded the elephants.

"The elephant," he said, "is not one of my favorite animals," adding, "Bob and I are always willing to lead the way."
