Death Ends Partnership

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Death, high on a utility pole on a storm-swept country road, has ended the 30-year partnership of two veteran electric linemen.

Sixty-eight-year-old Reber Brown lost his last fight to save his buddy, Harry Finks, 69.

Finks was on a pole near Reese Station early yesterday, repairing broken lines during a thunder storm, when a swinging wire sent 6,900 volts of electricity through his body.

Brown called for help on the repair truck radio. Then he climbed the slippery, wind-tossed pole to his partner's dangling body and tried to give him artificial respiration. When help arrived Finks was taken to a hospital. He was dead when he got there.

Finks and Brown were well known as a team of linemen in Central Ohio where they worked for the Ohio Midland Light and Power Co.—Finks for nearly half a century, Brown for 30 years.

They both were eligible for retirement and had planned to quit but somehow never quite got around to it.

They had had their brushes with death before. About a year ago, Finks got some "pretty bad burns." Brown was hurt last month when his spurs slipped and drove his shoulder against a pole.

Both times, one helped the other to safety.

But now that Finks is gone, Brown says he is retiring.

"That was my last day," he says. "I'm not going back any more."

Range Burns Near Redding

REDDING, Calif. (AP)—More than 8,000 acres of rangeland was burning near here Thursday, some of it said district forest ranger Jesse Graves "intentionally set off."

All the blazes were under control, Graves said.

One fire of 1,920 acres was under control near Cloverdale, 15 miles southwest. Backfires set by the State Forest Service had merged and put under patrol blazes totaling 6,400 acres about 10 miles east on Highway 44.

At least a dozen other small fires were either out or under control.

At least six houses were reported destroyed in a 2,880 acre fire near the Redding municipal airport, 10 miles southeast of town and three houses were reported burned near Ingot — a ghost town — 20 miles northeast.

French Now Losing Small India Posts

PARIS, (AP) — North Indochina is not all France stands to lose in Asia.

Also slipping are the first footholds of the once-great French empire on that continent—the little trading stations France has held on the Indian coast for more than 200 years.

First conquered by the French in the 17th century, they were expanded into broad inland holdings. Then they were lost to the British, retaken, lost and restored once more as tiny enclaves in British India.

For nearly a century and a half, the sleepy, primitive towns of French India remained French by sufferance of the British Empire. Their main industry reputedly was smuggling.

Now only two of the five original colonies, Pondichery and Karikal, are still under French control. They cover about 165 square miles, with a total population of no more than 300,000 amidst the hundreds of millions of the great Indian subcontinent. Both are on the east coast of India's Madras Province.

In the past five weeks, the French have moved out of Mahé and Yanam, two smaller posts, under pressure from enthusiastic Indian Nationalists. Chandernagor, a suburb of Calcutta, was taken over by India in 1950 after a referendum.

Similar votes in the other areas have been delayed. The French maintain under their Constitution a local vote must precede the cessation of any territory. The Indians are reluctant to have the vote.

The French believe the Indians fear such a vote might be thought a precedent for holding a referendum in Kashmir, where the Muslim majority might be against the present Indian control and in favor of joining Pakistan.

The Indians claim a referendum is not needed in the French-held towns because local councils already have declared for India. They also say the French wouldn't permit a fair vote.

French officials in Paris say they are not reluctant to get out, but they want to go in an orderly fashion.

Former Beria Aide Executed

MOSCOW (AP)—M. D. Ryumin, henchman of executed Soviet police boss L. P. Beria, has himself met death before a firing squad nearly 15 months after he was tagged with the blame for the "doctor's plot."

His execution was announced today by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper. Pravda said the Military Collegium of the Soviet Supreme Court tried Ryumin in July 27 and ordered him shot on charges of forcing the doctors to "slander themselves and other people." It also accused him of treason.

(There was no explanation why the courts took so long to deal with Ryumin, who was arrested in April, 1953, as the scapegoat in the bizarre case.)

The Internal Security Ministry first announced details of the doctor's plot in January, 1953. It accused nine physicians, several of them Jews, of plotting to kill Soviet leaders and charged they already had done away with Politburo member Andrei Zhdanov with reverse therapy.

Three months later the ministry, which had since been taken over by Beria, announced that the nine doctors and six others had been freed and that Ryumin had been arrested. Beria's jailer himself in June, 1953, on treason charges and his execution was announced last December.

Pravda said the death sentence was imposed on Ryumin because the court "took into consideration the special dangers of criminal activity . . . and the heaviness of the consequences of the crime perpetrated by him."

Small Boy Drives Car Into House

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — Jack Todora, 4, somehow freed the family car from a curb and steered it downhill through three intersections.

It was coasting at high speed when it hit another auto, turned it over and killed a Collie dog. It finally crashed into a house.

Jack escaped with a cut lip and three loose teeth.

DELEGATION COPENHAGEN, Denmark

A Danish trade delegation which had negotiated for months in Moscow on a new Danib-Soviet trade agreement was suddenly called home Thursday as the Russians came up with a last minute demand for two Danish tankers.

A NEW CAREER looms for Doris Sessom, secretary to District Attorney Frank Alderson. Mrs. Sessom has resigned to take a position in the office of Dr. Arthur Compton. She started work in the district attorney's office five and a half years ago. At that time, Judge D. E. Van Vector was district attorney.

McKay Plans Speech Tour To Aid GOP Candidates

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
 SALEM (AP) — The Republican Party is going to use Douglas McKay's speeches in the national election campaign this fall.

On my recent trip East, I found out in Washington that ex-Gov. McKay, who has been President Eisenhower's secretary of the interior for 18 months, will play a big role in the coming campaign.

Besides coming out to Oregon to support Sen. Guy Gordon in his re-election campaign, McKay also will go into other states. He has a heavy speech-making schedule for September and October.

McKay already has made a lot of speeches during his year and a half in office, and the Eisenhower administration considers McKay to be one of its biggest political assets.

McKay loves his new role, which is far different from his governorship of Oregon. When he was here, he didn't get involved in controversy, but now he thrives on the rough and tumble of politics.

"He's got a hide like Harry Truman's," one Washington political writer told us, "and he likes to dish it out like Harry did, too."

He isn't a bit different than he was when I first knew him 17 years ago. He's still the same easy talker he always has been, and his greatest pleasure comes from talking with the many Oregon visitors who go to see him on the 6th floor of the huge Interior Department Building.

I asked him if he thought his power policies would be a big issue of the campaign over the country. He corrected me quickly.

"That isn't my policy. It is the President's policy, and I'm just the boy he hired to carry it out," McKay replied.

Then I asked him how much advice he gets from the White House.

"The President," he answered, "gives his cabinet officers a free hand in running their departments. He never tells us what to do."

"But if something goes wrong, the President calls us in. And, brother, he can really tell us."

McKay almost worships President Eisenhower, and the Eisenhowers and McKays have a very close personal relationship. But McKay is always formal when he speaks of the President, who must be the only person in Washington whom McKay doesn't call by his first name.

"Whenever I'm with the President, either in cabinet meetings or in conferences, I'm very formal. I don't talk unless I have to, either," McKay said.

I commented that I sure would like to go to a cabinet meeting, as it would be something to see. McKay was formal. McKay agreed that would be something unusual for a citizen of Oregon to watch.

On the day I was there, the Eisenhowers celebrated their wedding anniversary. Mrs. McKay had called the White House to offer one of her celebrated angel food cakes, but she wanted to know when it should be delivered.

Mrs. Eisenhower called back and said she'd like to take the cake with them to Camp David, in the Maryland mountains, for the weekend. The two ladies had a 10-minute chat, just like any other housewives.

Mrs. McKay baked two of her cakes that day—one for the Eisenhowers, and the other for a group of us Oregonians. She deserves every bit of her reputation, too.

But there is one thing that has me puzzled.

What does she do with her egg yokes?

McCarthy Seeks Aide's Clearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Investigations subcommittee produced the Pentagon again today to tell why one of its aides, Thomas W. Lavenia, was denied security clearance.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis., who appointed Lavenia as office manager and assistant counsel to the subcommittee, has invited both the Defense and Justice Departments to send spokesmen to a closed door subcommittee meeting for questioning.

Lavenia has said he was cleared to handle secret documents in 1952 while in another government job.

Meanwhile, Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) announced he will give the Senate a limited "bill of particulars" in a speech on July 30 or 31 to support his resolution of censure aimed at McCarthy.

He told reporters he plans to give the Senate "just a sampling" of the accusations that McCarthy as the subcommittee's chairman has been guilty of unbecoming conduct, and he added:

"To give every item in a bill of particulars would take until Christmas."

McCarthy, who has called Flanders "senile," has not commented on the Vermont move to have the Senate officially censure him.

William Frye, a publicity man, announced yesterday that 23 prominent citizens sent telegrams to "most Senate members" urging them to support Flanders' censure resolution.

Frye made public the text of the telegram endorsing the resolution as a move to "curb the flagrant abuse of power by Sen. McCarthy" and to help the Senate "regain the confidence and respect of the American people."

Frye said the telegram's signers included Paul G. Hoffman, former foreign aid administrator; Lewis W. Douglas, former ambassador to Britain and a former budget director; Will Clayton, a former undersecretary of state, and other nationally known figures. Hoffman and Douglas were among early backers of the candidacy of President Eisenhower.

Actors Reactions Vary As They Forget Script Lines

By HUBBARD KEAVY
 (For BOB THOMAS)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They said I couldn't write this one — what actors say when they blow their lines. "Usually unprintable," said the press agents when I began research.

But I've been watching movies in the making for a long time and what the players say when they forget is not always obscene or profane. It's often amusing. Oh, I've heard horrible words come from beautiful throats. We won't mention those girls; can't shatter illusions.

The other day it was Humphrey Bogart. He was to say to another player, "and then after that we will . . ." He forgot. He grinned sheepishly and turned to the script girl, saying: "And then after that we will what? My mind's a blank."

In the same scene, the impeccable Basil Rathbone muffed the same line three times. Each time he said, "sorry, dammit."

Most actors use the same expressions over and over, and here are some of them:

Teresa Wright: "Oh, golly, I did it again."

Alan Ladd: "Hold everything. I lost my stirrups."

Guy Madison: "I can talk plainer than that."

Clifton Webb, you might know, says: "To err is human."

Marilyn Monroe: "Calm, calm, calm, calm."

Robert Taylor: "Okay, let's try it again."

Debbie Reynolds: "Wait till I file down my little pointed head."

Cornel Wilde, punching his jaw, exclaims: "Get with it, man!"

And when Jean Hersholt forgets, he goes completely out of character with: "Tennis, anybody?"

To hide her embarrassment, Barbara Hale usually says: "To Hah with that one."

And Zsa Zsa Gabor says, among other things: "Take back my diamonds—my everyday ones."

After blowing his lines six consecutive times in one scene, Richard Burton walked to a wall and smashed his head against it. But it was only a movie wall of unreinforced plaster and his head went through it. He apologized for his display of temper and the damage and then did his part perfectly.

Bob Hope never uses the same line twice, when he flubs, that is.

Playboy Seeks U. S. Work Permit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Porfirio Rubirosa, wealthy Dominican Republic playboy-diplomat, wants a work permit.

The 46-year-old husband of heiress Barbara Hutton applied yesterday to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

He said he wants to play a gambling saloon keeper in a western movie. It will star his present heart interest, Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Rubirosa entered the United States at New York last June 29 on a visitor's visa for vacation purposes. His application was taken under consideration.
