

Junior Entries Sought For Moose Net Tourney

Tournament chairman Earl Brooks announced that more entries of junior men and women singles are wanted for the upcoming Moose Lodge All-city tennis tournament at Moore Park starting Saturday.

The tournament is a week-long event that will be played in seven different divisions, according to Brooks, who along with Jo Widness, instructor at Moore Park, is taking entry applications for the net meet.

Defending champion in the men's singles, Ron Lowell will be back to defend his title again this year, as will the team of Lowell and Brooks in the men's doubles division.

Ruth Hagelstein and Denny Todd, winners in last year's women's singles and junior men's singles respectively will also be back to defend their crowns.

The entry fees for the seven different events are as follows: men's singles $2.00, men's doubles $1.50 each, women's singles $1.50, mixed doubles $1.50 apiece, junior men's singles 50 cents and junior women's singles 50 cents also. The entry fee on the men's consolation singles has not been set by the tournament committee yet.

Brooks stressed that the Moose Tournament committee is anxious for all young tennis players to enter in the eight day meet, and the entry fee has been lowered from last year's court tourney to allow more young men and women to participate.

Anyone interested in playing in the tournament can reach Widness at the Park tennis courts during the day or call Brooks at home in the evenings.

WI Pitchers Find Hitters Troublesome

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Western International League pitchers used their legs almost as much as their arms in Monday night games. In two of three contests played, a total of eleven hurlers paraded to the mound. Five were used in the Salem-Lewiston affair, which the Senators won, 12-5, and six tried to slow things down in the Edmonton-Victoria argument, which Edmonton salvaged, 14-11. All in all, 33 hits were registered in the two games.

Only in the Wenatchee-Tri-City contest, did the moundmen enjoy the upper hand. Jess Dobernic of Tri-City gave up only three safeties as the Braves topped Wenatchee, 7-0. The Chiefs' Joe Waters was nearly as effective, yielding only four hits, but erratic fielding by his teammates made the difference.

Yakima and Vancouver canceled their scheduled game to get a little "shut eye." Both teams said they were all tired out, having played steadily since last Tuesday. They'll make it up in a doubleheader tonight.

Salem had two big innings against Lewiston. The Senators put across five runs in the fifth on Connie Perez' homer with two aboard, a double by Dennis Luby, a triple by Jim Devo and a single by Floyd Ogden. They added four more in the sixth on a walk, three singles and a triple.

Home runs accounted for three of Lewiston's five tallies. Base-empty homers in the third inning by Glenn Tackett and Don Hunted, and another in the fourth by Larry Barton were the big blows.

Edmonton pushed across four runners in the top of the ninth after scoring two in the eighth in a rally that nipped Victoria. Don Gigh started the winning effort in the ninth with a single. Vern Campbell followed with a double and pinchhitter Art Worth was walked by relief pitcher Bob Drilling to load the bases.

Tri-City, aided by three Wenatchee errors, pushed across six runs in a big third inning in their game at Kennewick. The miscues, along with a walk, three hits and a double steal contributed to the run total. The Braves got their seventh run in the eighth frame on a walk, Bob Menz' single and the fourth Wenatchee error.

Tonight's schedule has Vancouver at Yakima in a doubleheader, Salem at Lewiston, Edmonton at Victoria and Wenatchee at Tri-City.

Monday's line scores:

Bob Feller Deserves Comeback Award

By JACK HAND
(For Gayle Tablet)
NEW YORK (AP)—When the time comes to pick a "Comeback of the Year" for 1954, here is a motion that the secretary cast a unanimous ballot for Bobby Feller, one of the greatest pitchers of all time.

Bobby won't like it for he is a proud man who insists he never was away. Yet, he must know the Cleveland club all but gave up on him in '52 and '53 and took him off the regular starting rotation for a stretch.

Time glides by in this business—or any other—and the 37-year-old Iowa plowboy of 1936 becomes, at 35, a veteran "in the twilight of his career," as the boys dearly love to write.

It seems only yesterday that you read about the farm boy from Van Meter, Iowa, who struck out eight St. Louis Cardinals in three innings in an exhibition game, his first appearance against a major league team. But that was 18 years ago.

Old-timers who traveled with the New York Giants in 1937, still like to tell about the first time they saw Feller, and the crack Dick Bartell made: "He's not as fast as Van Mungo." The wise remark turned into a bitter war, with Feller striking out rowdy Dick something like 13 times in 18 at-bats during their long spring training trip.

Because Feller and fireball always have been synonymous in a sports writer's vocabulary, it comes as somewhat of a surprise to hear that Bobby has come up with a knuckleball. It's almost like Rocky Marciano turning fancy Dan.

"I only throw about five or six in a game," Feller explained the

Interleague Game Plans Turned Down

NEW YORK (AP)—The major leagues have dropped Hank Greenberg's idea of an interleague schedule, at least for 1955, and have agreed on a new rule to ban signing of college baseball players who have started their second academic year.

Milwaukee gets the 1955 All-Star Game, at a date to be determined later, and the problems of Caribbean winter baseball are to be solved at a final conference today between the Latin delegates and Commissioner Ford Frick.

The Caribbean leagues agree to end their seasons and playoffs by Feb. 15 for permission to use no more than five players from each major league team, of which at least two will be rookies who have appeared in less than 45 games.

All is set except the actual final agreement between Frick and the delegates. Player requests to deal directly with the Caribbean teams were rejected.

Frick said Greenberg's interleague proposal was withdrawn by the Cleveland General Manager at the joint meeting after being discussed at each separate league meeting.

The college rule represents a victory for Everett "Eppie" Barney, Colgate athletic director, who fought for many years to get some protection for college players.

Jackson Adds Strength To White Sox Bench

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — For four years Paul Richards has been preaching that no club was going to beat the Yankees with boys.

And the manager of the White Sox has never stopped trying to get the men to do the job.

That's why the Chicago Americans this season paid $100,000 and threw in Grady Hatton for George Kell, a third baseman with a bad back who became slower than Sam Sneed picking up a check.

The South Siders required right-handed thump and were obtaining it from Kell until the Arkansas school teacher tore a cartilage in his right knee, July 2.

First baseman Ferris Fain had injured his right knee in a collision with Sammy White of the Red Sox, June 26.

"Cas Michaels has filled in well at third base," reports Richards. "But we had to put a tremendous load on a youngster, Ron Jackson, at first."

"Jackson, an extraordinary recruit, got an extraordinary start. He hit clean-up for us in the first major league game in which he played."

Jackson, a handsome six-foot-seven, 220-pound, 26-year-old graduate of Western Michigan College, was signed for a modest bonus, June 15. Scout Pete Millio had watched Jackson in college and the American Baseball Congress, which brings state independent champions together in Battle Creek. At 15, the towering lad was a member of Michigan's state champions.

Jackson's agility and ball handling were not hurt by basketball, at which he also excelled, one night to the extent of 33 points.

Richards started alternating Jackson, a right-hand batter, with the veteran Phil Cavarretta and between them the Pale Hose have not been hurt at first base. Jackson has batted .357, Cavarretta .340.

When Cavarretta pulled a muscle in his leg, Jackson went all the way for a week without suffering. In 12 games, he hit safely in 11. He came into Yankee Stadium to face Whitey Ford in the opening of the big series with a six-game hitting streak. He beat the Indians in an important number in Cleveland with a three-run home run off Bob Lemon. He hit for the circuit against Duane Pillette and Ted Gray.

"Ron Jackson," testifies Professor Richards, "is one of the finest prospects I've ever seen."

Richards switched to his favorite subject—the Yankees' personnel and bench.

"When Fain went out, I had to use a 26-year-old kid," he stresses. "Casey Stengel alternates Collins and Skowron and has Eddie Robinson to pinch hit. Why, there are big league clubs who would be giving that bonus beauty, Frank Leja, experience other than bench warming."

"Imagine a club with Bauer, who went to the last three All-Star Games, and Woodling taking turns in the dugout.

"It might have taken two years for the Noren deal to jell, but Stengel was right when he called him the best fourth outfielder in the business. And here he is leading the league after batting .580 for a spell. Bob Cerv would help other clubs. Bill Renna is batting clean-up for the Athletics.

"Jerry Coleman, who second bused the Yankees to three world championships can't break in now. Charley Silveira would be the first string catcher on five other American League clubs."

"The Yankees still have the horses."
