Former Movie Star Makes Comeback In Television

By HUBBARD KEAVY (For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If the name of a movie player is dropped from the Motion Picture Almanac, as it always is when the person is inactive for a year, he's usually had it. As a rule, it means he's through. Mary Brian's name was dropped years and years ago and except for two marriages and one divorce, she has not made news. But she is a candidate today for any television guide because she has come out of quiet retirement to play the mother of Corliss Archer in a 30-installment TV series. Texas-born Mary was 20 and pretty when she was tapped for the role of Wendy in the 1928 version of "Peter Pan." A matured beauty today, 26 years later, she thinks that the movies treated her very well and she has no regrets. In nearly 50 films she was the sweet little girl who spurred Buddy Rogers, Jack Oakie and other leading men of that era on to more touchdowns for dear old Paramount.

What happened when, after 10 years of stardom at a single studio, she got the word that she was through? "Well, not much," says Mary. "It was kind of a wrench to be told Paramount didn't want me—like being told to leave home. I worked at several other studios and later returned to my old home lot for a couple of pictures. So, you see, nobody was mad at anybody." After a few stage plays, she retired for her first marriage, to Jon Whitcomb, a magazine illustrator. The marriage lasted three months. Mary went to Reno, she never discussed that short-lived event with her friends. They don't know what happened. In 1947, Mary married George Tomasini, a film editor, and they live quietly in the San Fernando Valley. Mary saved a good slice of her film income. "I never threw money away," she admits. And indeed she didn't. She drove inexpensive cars, lived in quiet homes and never even yearned for a swimming pool. In retirement, Mary resumed painting, a pastime of her busier days. Friends say her work has a professional quality. She specializes in portraits, but refuses to sell or give away a single work. And so has a whole household of paintings. When Mary made a brief TV appearance, it gave an alert agent the idea of casting Mary as Corliss' mother. Would she like it? Mary said she would if the part was interesting. When she was called for tests, she asked what she was supposed to wear. "Whatever you wear around the house," she was told. "But the director didn't know that around the house I wear shorts and pedal pushers," Mary says. "I had to rush out and buy what I am told are house dresses. Well, not exactly house dresses, but some nicely tailored things. I'm sure Mrs. Archer will never be caught in shorts."

Woodworkers Picket Ship

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — Picket lines were set up on a "round-the-clock" basis at the Port of Anacortes Tuesday by striking CIO Woodworkers seeking to prevent longshore workers from loading pulp aboard the freighter Horace Luckenbach. Ray Stover, president of District 2375 CIO Woodworkers, said four or five pickets were in the line Tuesday night and more will be called from the union district which includes Skagit County and northern Snohomish County. Stover added he was acting on orders from union headquarters in Seattle. Lloyd Foster, Port of Anacortes manager, said the port plans to seek a restraining order. The Luckenbach arrived here Tuesday from Everett to load 1,000 tons of pulp for the East Coast.

Movie Opinion Vote Close One

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP) — The City Council called for a public opinion poll on the question of Sunday movies for guidance in passing an ordinance. Results of yesterday's poll showed 679 in favor and 678 against. Auto insurance rates were reduced at Haney Norland's without reducing the quality of the coverage, 627 Pine St.

Solon Backs McCarthy Censure Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) said Wednesday "senators can't claim neutrality" on his resolution proposing a formal vote of censure against Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Flanders told newsmen he is determined to press his resolution to its promised vote on Friday. He said he will contend then that any senator absent from the roll call vote without good reason will have "voted to dodge" the issue. He said senators in effect "have to vote 'yes,' 'no' or 'dodge-it,'" on the resolution. Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, has promised that Flanders can have a vote on the issue Friday, possibly in the form of a motion by Knowland to kill the resolution. Such a motion is not debatable. Flanders said he hopes, however, to get time to make a speech to "pinpoint" some of the reasons he thinks the Senate should declare that McCarthy has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a senator as chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee. Flanders said he has "assurances from the Democratic side" that Democrats won't use the issue as an excuse for a long debate to prolong this session of Congress. He said he expects Knowland will let the resolution come up Friday as scheduled, and "I expect a vote on it the same day."

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) has announced he may offer an amendment proposing that the Senate also censure Flanders for unbecoming conduct in his attacks on McCarthy. Flanders said he has heard about that "and I will ask that Sen. Capehart's amendment be rejected." There was no further comment from McCarthy, who says he attributes Flanders' blasts at him to "senility."

Roseburg Mills Resume Work

ROSEBURG (AP) — AFL Lumber and Sawmill workers employed at two wood products plants returned to work here Tuesday. A tentative agreement which ended the work stoppage was not related to current Pacific Northwest lumber negotiations. The two firms, Western Battery Separator Co. and Western Handle Co.—which employ 128 persons—and the union did not reveal terms. However, it was learned that the final settlement would be based on negotiations in the battery and handle industries rather than the lumber industry. Both plants were struck June 21.

French Nurse Entertained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The party was gay and the "angel" had a fine time. But she didn't dance. Miss Genevieve de Galard-Terraube explained she just couldn't. The dismal battle of Dien Bien Phu was too close. Miss de Galard is the 29-year-old French nurse acclaimed as the "angel of Dien Bien Phu" for her heroic work in the dying days of the brave Vietnamese fortress before it fell to the Communists of Indochina. Many of the men she nursed in 41 days cut off by war from the outside world still are prisoners of the Reds. Miss de Galard stayed at Dien Bien Phu after the plane on which she had flown to evacuate the wounded was unable to take off again. Later the Reds freed her.

She's in this country now for a 19-day visit at the invitation of Congress. She had a couple of television dates Wednesday morning and some other official engagements in the capital, which welcomed her warmly Tuesday. The affair Tuesday night was the gayest she has attended in the weeks since her release from Dien Bien Phu. It was a buffet dance at Andrews Air Force Base for cadets from 22 countries here in the Civil Air Patrol's international student exchange program.

Jury Indicts Mother For Child's Death

SITKA, Alaska (AP) — A coroner's inquest Tuesday indicted Mrs. Elizabeth Lawson on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of her daughter, Jo Ann Lawson, 6.

The jury found the little girl died "of a perforated intestine due to blows being administered to her body." One witness, Mrs. Azzie Savagen, chief nurse at Mt. Edgecumbe Hospital, told the jury that prior to Jo Ann's death the youngster said her mother had beaten her.

The victim's brother, Larry, 8, testified last week that Mrs. Lawson had beaten Jo Ann with a broomstick, kicked her about the legs and finally removed her shoe and struck the girl with it. Medical testimony indicated Jo Ann's body was a mass of scars, healed wounds and bruises, and that in the past she had sustained a fractured skull and brain injuries, both of which had healed. The father, Herbert Lawson, is employed in a laundry at Mt. Edgecumbe.
