Eden Backs New British, Egypt Pact

LONDON — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said Wednesday Britain's new defense agreement with Egypt preserves the nation's "essential requirements" in the Middle East in the age of the hydrogen bomb.

He told parliament the Churchill government's decision to withdraw its forces from the Suez Canal zone "should contribute to a reduction of tension in the Middle East as a whole."

Eden spoke in the face of bitter opposition from a rebellious group of his own Conservative Party supporters who have long resisted suggestions that Britain should quit the Canal Zone.

He announced, in answer to Laborite questioning, that the United States and France together with this country are determined to help in guarding the uneasy peace between the Arab nations and the Jewish state of Israel.

Britain intends redeploying nearly half her 83,000-strong Suez garrison through the Middle East. The rest will come home.

Government spokesmen served notice Britain intends holding on to Cyprus—a fortress island in the eastern Mediterranean claimed by Greece. Lord Munster, colonial undersecretary, told the House of Lords the government has decided to prepare a new constitution for the colony that will take the island people a step nearer to full self-rule.

Prime Minister Churchill sought to quiet a rebellion in Conservative ranks over the Suez agreement.

Today's Women

By DOROTHY ROE, AP Women's Editor

Looking for a new thrill, new opportunities and an escape from your rut?

Go to Africa, young woman, advises Ruth Sloan, who spent seven years on the Dark Continent as a representative of the State Department visiting 22 countries of Africa and now is back home in Washington, D.C.

Slim, svelte, white-haired and beautifully groomed Mrs. Sloan believes any girl with a spirit of adventure and a knowledge of business methods can carve out a brilliant future in Africa, which she believes may sway the balance of the world's politics and economy. She says:

"Africa today stands in the same world position as the Far East of 10 years ago. It can go either way — into the orbit of the Communist satellite countries or into a strong alliance with the free world. It is the continent of the future — and there's still time to do something there."

Young men and women with pioneer blood in their veins can find one of the world's last frontiers in Africa, says Mrs. Sloan. They can find an endless variety of opportunities, dramatic contrasts in terrain and customs, and the thrill of carving out a future in an almost virgin land. There's adventure too, and the satisfaction of helping to build a new land.

If you're going to Africa and want to make friends with the native women, she advises, take along a good supply of lipsticks and American costume jewelry. Even the kind found in our dime stores will be highly prized in Africa.

"The greatest hope of Africa, she says, is for young Americans to visit the continent, perhaps settle there, learn the problems and the needs of the Africans and in turn teach them the friendly customs of America. She says:

"In Africa they need trained technicians, economists, secretaries, people with the know-how of American business. It's one of the world's last frontiers, rich with opportunity for young people with adventure in their blood."

Detroit claims to be the hottest golf center in the U.S. with the United States Golf Assn. deciding (Aug. 23-28) for the eighth time its 1954 amateur championship at the Detroit Country Club. Twenty major gold titles have been decided on that course.

ALL-AMERICAN DONS EAST LANSING, Mich. — Michigan State has produced unanimous All-America football players twice, and the first name of both men was Don. The first was Don Coleman in 1951 and the second was Don Dohoney in 1953.

Asia Tense Over China Air Fight

SINGAPORE — Tensions which rose with the fall of a British airliner and two Red fighters off Hainan last weekend have left Singapore businessmen with their worst case of jitters since the Japanese headed south in 1941.

Both European and Chinese interests, some of whom do a lot of trading with Red China, openly fear that the clash between U. S. Navy planes and the Red fighters may result in a sharp curtailment of the business of this thriving port at the foot of the Malayan Peninsula.

Chinese businessmen, who do legitimate business with the Red Chinese and possibly supply much of the commerce handled by smugglers plying the coast, are more jittery than their European counterparts. They fear other incidents may result in another shooting war just when the French Union and the Communists in Indochina are stopping hostilities.

The U. S. consulate in Singapore has sent a report to Washington on the reaction of the British and Chinese businessmen.

Some of these interests, chiefly British, say the continued search by American Navy planes for survivors of the Cathay Pacific Airways plane shot down by the Chinese Friday is unnecessary.
