KF Fireman

Apartment House fire in 1947 (one of his worst), the Ewason yards fire in 1928 when $250,000 worth of lumber was lost and the second in 1930, when Corkery received severe eye burns.

He has witnessed the decrease of damage in fire fighting through the use of fog in house fires; the increased efficiency obtained through improved hoses, nozzles, etc.

During the depression Corkery was one of the many city employees who took protested warrants for pay, and got them cashed for five to 25 per cent of their value.

He remembers earlier days in Klamath Falls, when water snakes in balls as big as barrels sunned themselves by the lake; when the sidewalk in front of the Post Office (then located across the street from the Willard Hotel) was literally alive with frogs.

Man Held For Grand Jury

Allen Virgil Wharton, 35-year-old teamster, who was the target for half a dozen shots fired by City Councilman Don Kenyon, was ordered held for the county grand jury on a burglary charge late Friday by District Judge D. E. Van Vactor.

Wharton took the witness stand and denied he came into possession of alleged stolen property illegally. Freelyn Wenzel, credit manager for Weisfield's Jewelry Store, identified a flash light found in Wharton's possession as his property.

Freelyn Wenzel Jr. also identified some fishing equipment which Wharton had as his property.

Wharton was arrested by city police after he fled under a hail of bullets fired by Councilman Kenyon. He is also facing a charge of wanton injury of personal property. He is held in the county jail.

Small Mine Resumes Work

PENNINGTON GAP, Va., July 31 (AP) - A small truck mine near here, shut down when its eight nonunion employees were "ambushed" July 13, has resumed production after signing a contract with the United Mine Workers Union.

C. R. Tomblinson, owner of the coal mine who had cancelled a previous contract with the UMW April 19, said he had been unable to find anyone willing to work in the mine since the workers were fired on earlier this month. Now, a full force is back on the job.

The UMW has denied any knowledge of the ambush.

Tomblinson said after the ambush he had cancelled his UMW contract in April "because we just couldn't make it paying union rates." The UMW rate in the area is a minimum of $18.25 daily.

CHICAGO (AP) - Hog prices worked higher this week, butchers scaling under 240 pounds closing steady to 50 cents up while heavier weights were up 75 cents to $1.50.

Arrivals were down about 15 per cent from the previous week, a factor in the market's firmness. Wholesale pork cuts continued to work lower both at Chicago and in the East.

Most cattle also were higher for the week. Steers sold steady to 75 cents up, choice and prime kinds weighing 900 pounds and more making the best gain. Cows gained $1.00 to $1.50 with a very active demand developing late in the week for canners and cutters.

Spring lambs and yearlings closed steady to 50 cents higher. Trading during most of the period ruled moderately active to slow with city butchers furnishing much of the activity. Receipts were on a par with last week. Wholesale lamb prices declined moderately both at Chicago and in the East.

The couple was coming toward Klamath Falls on Highway 66 and in making a left turn toward Merrill on Highway 39, Smith apparently lost control and the car skidded for a distance of 120 feet before coming to a stop in a pile of rubbish at the side of the road.
