

"I MADE IT MYSELF"

... AND THAT'S RIGHT! ... Helen Brink made it all, with the exception of the fireplace and the redwood overhang. She designed and drew the plans (to scale) for the entire patio "project." She laid all the brick in the oversized planters and in the patterned floor of the patio. She is shown by one of them, where she spent many hours, creating a spot of near-tropical beauty.

and multiplied since she transplanted them from native surroundings. Labor — countless hours of it — didn't phase her; vast quantities of soil were brought in with the wide variety of ferns, even maiden-hair responded to her green thumb; evergreens are growing as though never uprooted.

and with a natural basin. The gentle spill of water into the lily pool below, the countless birds bathing, and the interesting shadows thrown by sunshine through the slotted overhang, make it an enchanted place as though touched by magic.
