

Reptile Types Described

Of the 20 different kinds of snakes found in Oregon only nine are found in the Klamath Basin. Of these only the rattlesnake is poisonous, according to Dr. Robert Storm, Oregon State College zoologist.

Oregon has two kinds of rattlesnakes, says Storm. The great basin rattler is found in the extreme southeastern part of Oregon which includes this area. The Pacific rattlesnake — a darker form — inhabits the rest of the state except for the mountains and most of Northwestern Oregon. Southern Willamette Valley rattlers are probably hangovers from centuries past when the climate was drier and warmer, Storm asserted.

Perhaps the most valuable snake is the gopher snake, also known as the bull or blow snake. It is the biggest in Oregon too, occasionally getting longer than four feet. Gopher snakes feed almost entirely on mice, rats and gophers.

Two colorful king snakes are also found in Oregon. The California king snake is found in the Rogue and Umpqua valleys and is marked with contrasting rings of deep brown and cream color. The mountain or coral king snake is probably limited to the Rogue Valley. It looks like the deadly coral snake but is not poisonous, Storm reports.

VACATION TALES will be many for Mrs. Emma Kenney and daughter, Mrs. Anne Gardner, both of San Francisco, when they return to the Bay City. While guests at Mack Lillard's Welcome Motel near Grants Pass last week they were rescued by two teenage girls when their boat overturned in the Rogue River. This picture was taken at Friday night's fights at the Klamath Falls Armory, another first experience in their lives.

Wood River Old Timer Picnic To Be Held

FORT KLAMATH—Saturday evening and Sunday, August 14 and 15, the fifth annual get together and picnic of the Wood River Pioneers and Old Timers will be held. Election of officers, followed by a social hour and refreshments, will be on the agenda Saturday evening in the C.I. Clubhouse at 8 p.m.

The big potluck picnic will be at Jackson F. Kimball State Park at the head of Wood River, at 1 p.m. Sunday. Each person or group attending is to bring a food item for the picnic luncheon and personal table service. Coffee and ice cream will be furnished by the organization.

Features of the afternoon will include musical entertainment, a sack race, and prizes for the oldest couple present; for the oldest bachelor attending, and for the member who has the largest number of children present.

White Slaver Given Sentence

SEATTLE (AP) — Gus L. Hiller, Vancouver, Wash., cafe owner, was sentenced to nine years at McNeil Island by United States Judge John C. Bowen Monday after pleading guilty to white slave traffic charges.

The 38-year-old former Seattle bartender was accused by United States Atty. Richard D. Harris of having operated "a placement bureau for white slave traffic" in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

Federal Agents Accuse Aide

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Federal narcotics agents said they gave Ralph M. Ochoa $40 a month ago to buy narcotics from "the underground" as a help in rounding up peddlers.

But he spent the money on himself, the officers claim. He was free under $400 bond today on charge of embezzling government funds.

Alsike Tariff To Be Studied

In a letter received today from Washington, D.C., Senator Guy Cordon advised the Herald and News that the United States Tariff Commission will continue its investigation of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, pertaining to the imports of Alsike clover seed.

The investigation will continue at the request of President Eisenhower after he had issued a proclamation on June 30 imposing a tariff quota for the year ending June 30, 1955, of 1,500,000 pounds of Alsike clover seed dutiable at two cents a pound.

The following statement has been released by Donn N. Bent, secretary of the tariff commission: "In a letter dated July 14, 1954, the President directed the Tariff Commission to continue the investigation regarding Alsike clover seed and to submit to him a supplementary report by May 2, 1955, indicating whether it then considers the continuation of the tariff quota beyond June 30, 1955, necessary to prevent or remedy the serious injury to the domestic industry, which was reported by the Commission on May 21, 1954, to exist by reason of increased imports of Alsike clover seed." Accordingly, notice is hereby given that the Tariff Commission is continuing the investigation for the purpose indicated by the President."

Warden Ordered Into Court

PORTLAND (AP) — Clarence T. Gladden, warden of the state prison at Salem, was ordered Monday to appear in federal court here Sept. 29 in connection with a legal move aimed at gaining freedom for an inmate.

Federal Judge Claude McCulloch

ON JOB

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Striking dockers voted Monday to protest against Saturday afternoon work on cruise ships to the conference table.

ordered Gladden to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued for Gerald T. Macomber, who is serving a life sentence on a Jackson County conviction.

Macomber, in his petition for a writ, contended he was denied a trial by jury. He was convicted of attempting to kill Richard Korner, a Medford policeman, on July 13, 1950. Korner actually was shot by a sheriff's deputy and Macomber was unarmed at the time, the petition stated.
