

SHOPPING FOR MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS under one roof at Marvin's speeds up the business of getting ready for school days and going to PTA meetings. Mrs. Richard H. Gallagher wears a smart three-piece, light wool ensemble in the new camel beige with woven brown and rust accents. English-type straight walking skirt is complemented with wide British tan leather belt. Loose jacket with 3/4-pushup sleeves is easy over the blouse with cap sleeve and new sweater neck. School girl Marianne (left) models a fine-wale Julliard washable corduroy jumper dress in soft rose with deep, full flounces, sweetheart neckline and shirred waistband are youthful touches. Candy-striped nylon blouse is rose and white. Margaret Rae wears a petite navy taffeta skirt banded in red velvet with adjustable shoulder straps and sheer white nylon blouse. Cufflinks on 3/4-pushup sleeves are red velvet bows.

DAVE REEDER, whose father, Dick Reeder is owner of Reeder's Clothing Store, is 16 years old and a junior in KUHS. He'll tear back to classes in a gray flannel baseball jacket with black leather sleeves that snaps from neck to belt. With it he'll don white "peg" cords by Roughrider, a checked Stradavari shirt and charcoal brogues. He looks over a Town and King cashmere sweater for which he has a "yen."
