

THERE "ARE" PARTY DAYS in a college girl's life when only smart clothes will do. LaPointe's models, all show the extremely popular bouffant skirts in frocks and coats that will take every tea in stride. (l to r) Annette Jacobs in a stunning soft three-piece wool flannel in the new Camel color. The surplice bolero with Eisenhower closing is worn above very full skirt with unpressed pleats worn over crinoline. Her dark brown jersey blouse is highlighted with copper. Her cloche type camel's hair hat has non-breakable feather that adds height, an inexpensive chapeau from the hat bar. An oxford gray wool and rabbit hair coat in the new silhouette, fitted at the waist with dropped shoulder yoke and push up sleeves, worn by Joan Sisemore is perfect for wearing over the bouffant frocks so popular this fall. Buttons are cut steel. Sunburst pin, earrings and wide bracelet are rhinestones. Petite dark-haired Earline Quinowski wears a Lanz original in Fire-red, one-piece wool flannel with full skirt, Empire waistline cardigan neckline and pushup sleeves. Down-the-front buttons are silver. She wears with it a tricky, matching red velvet scoop-effect hat, with big flat bow and veil for flattery. Her costume bracelets are copper and very large. Her "pouch" is Scotch flannel.

WHITE CAPEKIN leather sleeves highlight this "atmosphere" blue wool blazer worn by Dick Douglas for the Oregon Woolen Store. The snappy five-button blazer has slash pockets marked with white. It's worn with gray flannel slacks and black poplin shirt, important combination in the life of a football backfielder.

Machine Teaches Useful Skill

A typewriter to which the child may have access—and if he is old enough, a portable model of his own—teaches a useful skill, neatness, accuracy, especially good spelling.

A small radio for the school child's room will make it easier for parents to divert his attention from television to studying which can be done better in privacy and to a background of music.

First Aid Kit

Cellophane tape is a handy first-aid kit in itself for school children who will find it useful in mending torn pages, broken crayon or what have you.

A BONE-WHITE JACKET by White Stag, a snappy pink sport shirt and charcoal corduroy "Peggers" are what every fellow headed for high school will be wearing this fall. Shell cordovan shoes complete the outfit modeled for Drews Manstore by Dave Landis, KUHS senior, who expects to go to Willamette University after he gets his sheepskin.

JUNIORS JUST LOVE cottons, all cottons if they are bright, splashy plaids with Shepherdess collar of white pique and snappy patent belt, or a hound's tooth check with contrasting trim and frills of eyelet embroidery, shown by Mrs. Chris Wright of Wards. Small girls and sub teens and big girls too, all look for full skirts and pretty pettiskirts to flirt when breezes blow.

COMES FALL, COMES TWEED!

Imported Scottish pepper tweed. A suit to live in, literally. A little on the lean side, it's a perfect fit in both classic jacket and skirt. Its own angora and wool turtle neck sweater makes it a costume.

THE CLAN COMES TO AMERICA!

This plaid is news, and as native "United States" as the campus-to-career life it will lead. Reflects perfectly your own informal way of living. The jacket, though moulded at the hips, is kept soft. The skirt is a burst of pleats, each one stitched for permanence.
