BILLBOARD

By BILL JENKINS

We are happy to report that the happy fishermen, Hank S. Eason and Red Bussman, are back safe after their excursion over to Winchester Bay.

According to Red they covered several important items in Goose Bay at the Toga hotel, now operated by one-time Klamath Lee Searlett, caught enough fish to feel happy about it all, and had a good time.

Red was suffering from what he described as a salmon - chewed thumb and both had magnificent sunburns, but outside that they looked almost normal. Glad to see 'em home again.

Up in Seattle yesterday a famed meteorologist told a bunch of fellow weather prophets that the day was coming when mankind would be able to move dangerous thunderstorms around, prevent other storms and in general pretty much control the weather.

When that day comes we will be tempted to take up a permanent residence on the bottom of the ocean, living on air from a snorkel and learning to eat raw fish and drink salt water.

I can see nothing good about this business of moving storms around the country. After all, when you have such a great diversity of weather as compared to the even greater diversity of crops you're heading for nothing but trouble.

Suppose, for instance, that what the pear farmers over in Easy Valley needed was a nice hot, dry spell and the only way they could get it would be by moving in a half storm and a subsequent front on the Klamath Basin? Do you suppose that they would hesitate a bit to move a storm out of their way, thus saving their crops, and dumping all the bad weather on our barley and grain and spuds over here?

Not on your tinfole they wouldn't.

And where would be the fun of getting out of here for a chance in the weather. If all you had to do was pick up a telephone and order the kind of weather you wanted, the phone company would make a fortune and the vacation business would go into a terrible slump. Eventually, since even our modern scientists can't diversify the weather over a single acre of ground, there would be bitter warfare and blood would run in rivers down the gutters of our towns as embattled elements - cool, crisp as opposed to hot and sultry - fought it out to see which would get their wish.

The thing might even lead to international strife. (Not that we don't have enough already.) And it would certainly turn into a political issue. Wouldn't it be the devil itself to be a Republican farmer when the Democrats were in power? Or vice versa? Think of the perils in planning a campaign picnic. Why, you'd hardly get started on the oratory and hot dogs before a downpour would come along and ruin the whole thing.

No, on the whole, I think this scheme, like the H-bomb, is best forgotten. It would be too destructive. I'm all in favor of doing away with moving on the flatlands around our city and Basin, while keeping an adequate supply in the hills for irrigation supply, but I'd rather put up with a little snow shoveling than I would argue the kind of weather that can be handled willy-nilly.

As long as these scientific blokes can't even make a dashboard clock for a car that will work I doubt if their field lies in weather control.

When they catch the fellow that pointed the wrong eye dog tracks I am convinced that he should, in turn be fed his own strychnine-filled hot dogs and left to suffer the consequences. It is the lightest punishment an inhuman monster of that type deserves.

RETAIL MEMP.

The consumer has just signaled that he is in a mood to increase his buying of automobiles and other durable goods. This powerful prop to the growing optimism of the past few months is found in the latest survey of consumer behavior, attitudes, and intentions by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, and reported by "Business Week."

Earlier surveys had shown that the consumer's optimism reached a post-war peak during the latter part of 1952 as a result of the Korean war boom. It's not that high now. What is important, however, about the latest sounding is that the downward trend of six and nine months ago has now halted.

Some general findings: People well-off financially. This improvement is confined to the group with higher incomes, the $5,000 - year - or - over families.

The significance to the economy lies in the fact that it is this group which buys the bulk of the houses, cars, major appliances, home furnishings.

Just as last fall, more than half of those with definite opinions believe that prices will remain unchanged. Only about one in every three expects a slight decline in the price level.

Consumers feel confident about the future.

That's talking about the country as a whole. Similar indications are found in the Klamath Basin. In recent weeks there have been more reports from Herald and News advertisers of highly successful business promotions than in a long time.

Some timorous businesses, of course, wait for the miracle to happen. When it does happen they generally find that it is happening to someone else - who has been hard at work to make it happen.

Actual Klamath business figures for the first six months were recently published by the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce.

Bank debts were $129 million for the first half of 1954 compared to $134 million in '53.

Postal receipts went up to $134 thousand in '54 from $131 thousand in '53.

Parking meter take was down slightly to $25 thousand in '54 from $26 thousand in '53.

Building permits were way up to $728 thousand in '54 from $45 thousand in '53.

Water users were up to an average of 8,174 in '54 from 7,463 in '53.

Cost of living figures may or may not bear out the beliefs of those consumers reporting to the Survey Research Center.

The Dun & Bradstreet Daily Wholesale Commodity Price Index of 30 basic commodities was 271.89 on August 5, against 272.25 a week before.

The Weekly Wholesale Food Price Index, representing the total of the price per pound of 31 foods in general use, dropped four cents last week to $7.10. That was 6.4 per cent above the corresponding level of last year.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

It is proper to consider asthma as among the allergic diseases in spite of the fact that sometimes it is not. Certainly the most important cause of asthma is sensitivity to dust including pollens, moles, household dust and animal danders, with foods and drugs sometimes responsible.

The principal feature of asthma is a shortness of breath with a wheezing type of breathing.

Frequently asthma comes in attacks with freedom from difficulty in between; sometimes it is continuous. Always it is most uncomfortable for the victim and distressing for others to watch.

Even when asthma results from long-time hay fever or some other exposure to foreign substances such as usually be done.

The first and most important step is to identify the cause. Frequently this can be done by studying the history of the attacks of asthma.

For example, a youngster who gets attacks as soon as he starts playing with a dog is in all probability sensitive to the dog dander. Other methods of identifying the cause include: skin tests (which are not always completely reliable) and trial and error exposures of the asthmatic individual to suspected substances.

Treatment includes those methods which are used for the individual attack and those which are used to try to prevent or lessen future bouts of the condition.

The treatment of an acute phase of asthma certainly requires professional advice. The basic treatment of the disorder depends on the cause. If the victim can be removed from the cause or the cause from the victim much improvement will result although one always fears the development of new sensitivities.

Occasionally someone with asthma can be desensitized by being given small and increasing quantities of the offending substance. Also, since asthma is often complicated by infections, an effort should be made to correct anything of this sort.

Frequently, too, the general health affects the severity of asthma and attention consequently should be paid to this.

There are, of course, many medical measures used in asthma including various types of injections, the use of inhalers and more recently the sometimes highly effective results of the use of cortisone or ACTH.

Asthma is a fairly common condition and no respecter of age, sex or anything else. It constitutes a problem both to patient and physician.

Much ingenuity in management and cooperation between patient and physician are necessary in order to bring about the best results.

TELLING THE EDITOR

FREEDOM

A year ago you published a letter of mine in which I urged that the United States once again embrace the cause of freedom. This plea was based largely on two considerations: the moral obligation - freedom for the sake of freedom; and the conviction that the only road to lasting peace lay in the establishment of a preponderance of free nations over slave nations.

It is becoming increasingly evident that we no longer have the courage to defend freedom and if we are still interested in peace we have learned nothing from the great wars of our time.

I would like, therefore, to suggest a third and equally cogent reason for defending freedom: survival.

The United States will never again be able to defend itself at its own shoreline. If it comes to that we are lost. If we are not prepared to defend freedom at the outposts we will never have the opportunity to successfully defend it at home.

The Communists have been telling us for over 20 years that their goal is world domination, that they intend to destroy us by any means, fair or foul. They have been resolutely carrying out this aim - with our help.

How long should one let a forest fire burn before attempting to put it out?

In last Tuesday's paper you published these words by Vice-President Nixon: "The free world cannot stop communism unless the people threatened by communism have the will to resist communism."

This is a truly remarkable statement.

Does Mr. Nixon believe that a handful of Vietnamese and French, outnumbered 10 and 20 to one in manpower and equipment, could stop 400 million Chinese with Russia behind them, without outside help? (This is tantamount to having a 10-year-old boy challenged by a 20-year-old bully while his big brother stands by saying, "Fight him yourself, son - if you've got the will".)

Are we, by any chance, part of the people in the free world who are threatened by communism?

When, pray tell, have we displayed any will to resist communism?

Was it when we gave China to the Communists?

Was it when we invited the Communists to attack Korea (when Dean Acheson announced that we did not include Korea in our perimeter of defense)?

Was it when we had the Communists on the run in Korea and then sat down and gave them the victory anyway?

Was it our dismal, floundering failure at Geneva?

Was it when we handed over 12 million helpless Vietnamese to the Communists?

Perhaps Mr. Nixon feels that President Eisenhower was displaying our will when he said, on June 20th, "I will not be a party to any agreement that makes anybody a slave." Three weeks later the free world made slaves of 12 million Vietnamese and anyone who thinks we were not a party to it had better get his head out of the sand. It would have been far more honest to maintain a shamed silence than to make a mockery of such fine words with such perfidious conduct.

There are those who say we have no business defending freedom in some far-off foreign country. "Let 'em fight their own battles."

There are no longer any far-off countries. In the shrunken world of today any country is only a matter of hours from its neighbor on the other side of the globe and if we consider any nation actively engaged in the fight for freedom as foreign to us then it's time we opened our eyes.

If a pack of wolves attacked the Jones family on the outskirts of a village, is it wisdom for those in the heart of town to say, "It is no concern of ours - let the Joneses fight the wolves themselves?"

It bandits rob the Smiths down the street, does a community, in its right senses, leave the Smiths to their fate?

If you catch a robber in your tracks, do you drive him out through the living room into the porch and there hand him back his gun saying, "Here, now, mind you behave yourself!" This is exactly what we did in Korea.

There are those who say we had no business defending French colonialism in Viet Nam. I have no use for colonialism but if I had to choose between the two in a struggle for survival, I would far rather condone French colonialism than Russian colonialism in Viet Nam or any other country. With colonialism steadily dying out the Vietna-

NEW YORK - "It takes a damn good man to owe a million dollars," said Eugene T. Barwick.

It takes a pretty good fellow to go on from there and earn a million dollars, too. On both counts Gene Barwick is quite a guy.

Now only 40, Barwick in five years has parlayed $4,500 cash in a 30-million-dollar yearly business in tufted carpets. This has given him a reputation of being one of the top boy wonders of industry.

While some rug manufacturers were using their product to deaden the sound of their own falling tears, Gene has built his carpeting firm to a point where it is now the fifth largest in the world.

"But we believe there is room for a 100-million-dollar-a-year business in tufted rugs and carpeting," he said, "and we are willing to be the first."

Barwick figures he can do this if he can make wall-to-wall carpeting customary in the American home, and if he can mass produce carpets cheaply enough so that a housewife will feel she can afford to change them every time she changes her draperies.

Small tufted cotton rugs boomed during the war period, but many manufacturers thought housewives no longer would buy them when wool was more plentiful.

"They liquidated," said Barwick, "and they were wrong."

In 1948 Gene, who had served as a naval lieutenant in the Aleutians during the war, quit his job with a Chicago mail order firm. He had been buying his carpeting for years and felt he knew the kind women wanted - inexpensive but durable.

"I met a bedspread manufacturer who had gone broke for $70,000," he said. "And I taught him how to make tufted cotton carpets."

"I had only $1,500. I invested $2,500 in a latex-coating machine that would keep the carpets from skidding. Then I took to the road and the other $2,000 went into selling expenses. Did it work? It had to work."

It worked so well that in mid-1950 the firm was doing a three-million-dollar business. The partner, deciding no good thing lasts forever, sold out to Barwick.

Gene kept right on expanding, went into debt developing new and more efficient machinery. Now he has five plants in Georgia, machines that can turn out a 9-by-10-foot tufted cotton, nylon or rayon carpet every 29 seconds. Weavers from Scotland and England come to study his new techniques.

"The worst thing a fellow can do is to worry about being exposed," said Barwick. "Why watch a parade if you can be in it? And if and we are committing suicide ourselves.

If these United States do not soon awaken to the fact that we are losing a very real war for survival; if we do not, somewhere, somehow, out of the depths of a noble history, dredge up enough courage to take a determined stand alongside our allies, one of these bright mornings the free way of life, as we have known it, will disappear from the face of this earth.

Sincerely yours,
John Edge

It is a world peopled by international bandits, force or the threat of force is the only control bandit understands. It is no more possible to run a world without a police force than it is a nation, state, or town - or any gathering of human beings where the elements of evil must be restrained.

Since World War II we have sold some 400 million people into slavery. We have not only not defended freedom - we have given our moral enemy, who has sworn to destroy us, this much advantage in our last struggle for survival.

The odds in this struggle, once considerably in our favor, are decreasing sharply now for two reasons:

- 1) Russia is stockpiling hydrogen bombs and growing stronger daily while we are pining away our strength.
- 2) In the world's masses, millions of helpless "neutrals," in sheer desperation and for survival, are readying themselves to jump to the side of the winner. Each new defeat for freedom conditions that many millions more for soft conquest. Each new betrayal of freedom saps the will of the small, hard core of determined freedom-lovers in countries that want to be on our side.

How profligate can we be with our allies? The time is not too far distant when we will need every friend we can muster?

Is peaceful coexistence possible? Sure. All Russia's satellites are now peacefully coexisting with her. If you call living with a Hobnobbed boot planted on your neck existence, you can have all the peaceful coexistence you want.

The idea that somehow right will prevail over wrong, that we can turn our back on Communism and the big, bad ogre will one day disappear, that we have won freedom once so it is ours forever - all this is pure illusion. Evil has prevailed over goodness and wrong has prevailed over right for long periods of past history. Freedom cannot be won or maintained by default and it cannot be bought with dollars. When it is in jeopardy through force it must be defended by force. Wars have been fought for a number of senseless reasons down through the ages but if ever there was a goal worth fighting for, it is freedom. If we are ever to end slavery over right for long periods of past history. Freedom cannot be won or maintained by default and it cannot be bought with dollars.
