

MARILYN MILLER
WEDS
PHILLIP LEWIS

The spacious and gracious home and grounds of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Miller, 640 Conger Avenue, minimized the throng of 450 guests at the reception following their daughter's wedding last Sunday.

The Wedding Party

HER GODFATHER... the Rev. Dr. J. Henry Thomas, rector of St. Clement's, Berkeley, was officiant at Marilyn's wedding to Phillip Lee Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lewis, Hood River. The Rev. Thomas was rector of the local St. Paul's Episcopal Church some twenty years ago; and was archdeacon of the Episcopal churches of southeastern Oregon. He and Mrs. Thomas, close friends of the Millers, were important figures at the wedding and attendant social events. Above, the marriage is recorded in the Rev. Thomas' "special" register.

Large picture was taken from the edge of Link River, looking toward the back of the house, across part of the large expanse of sloping lawn. The river forms a natural boundary on the lower side of the beautiful, flower-bordered setting.

FOUR GENERATIONS

THE YOUNGEST MEMBER... in the above group representing four generations, is Robert Charles Snyder, who will have his first birthday anniversary August 27. He's held by his father, Robert Martin Snyder; whose mother, Mrs. William DeCew, is leaning over the back of the sofa.

Robert Charles' great-grandmother, Mrs. Robert Henry (Mae) Anderson, diverted him from the unwelcome camera with a toy.

Two of his great-great-grandfathers were among the earliest "Basin-builders." He's the namesake of one of them, Robert Charles Anderson, who settled here in 1867; the other, Thomas Martin, (Mrs. Anderson's father), arrived in 1884. He built and operated two flour mills, one in Klamath Falls and the other in Merrill. The young man's dad was just recently released from the navy, and will enroll at OTI this fall.
