Thunderstorms Hit Wide Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There were some rain clouds in the mid-continent and the eastern third of the country but generally fair weather was the outlook for most of the country Thursday.
Showers and thunderstorms struck over a broad area Wednesday from Arizona and New Mexico northeastward to the Great Lakes region. There also were showers in the southeastern states and in some parts of the Appalachians. A storm moving in from the Pacific brought general rains to Washington.
Heavy thunderstorms were reported in sections of Illinois and Indiana and in West Texas. Springfield, Ill., was hit by heavy rain and strong winds with gusts up to 63 miles an hour.
Warm weather was reported over most of the southern and southwest states with readings of 100 degrees again Wednesday in Arkansas, Oklahoma and in sections of adjoining states. It was 104 in Emporia, Kan., and 103 in St. Louis.
Some early morning reports showed New York 68 and clear; Cincinnati 76 and cloudy; Washington 67 and cloudy; Atlanta 71 and cloudy; Dallas 84 and clear; Oklahoma City 64 and clear; New Orleans 78 and clear; Denver 60 and clear; Phoenix 88 and cloudy; San Francisco 56 and cloudy; Chicago 73 and cloudy; Detroit 71 and cloudy; Omaha 73 and foggy; Cleveland 70 and thundershower; Minneapolis 59 and clear.

Lana Turner Has Answer To New Christian Dior Styles

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lana Turner has her own answer for Christian Dior — her curviest film wardrobe to date.
The fashion world and most American maids have been in an uproar over Dior's plan to bring back the flat-chested modes of the roaring '20s. Lana, who rose to fame as Hollywood's sweater girl, predicts he'll have no success.
"If a girl has 'em, she's not going to hide 'em," she opined. "And if a girl hasn't got 'em, she'll use those rubber things."
Unlike some men, she isn't bitter about the controversy. In fact, she speaks admiringly of Dior. "You've got to hand it to him," she said. "He knows how to get the headlines. Last time it was the short skirts. You didn't see the women rushing out to buy those styles, but it certainly created a hubbub. It's the same with these new dresses. I'll bet the other designers in Paris are livid over the publicity he has gotten."
Lana is coming out with the most revealing outfits she has ever worn in films. She is playing Samarra, goddess of love, in "The Prodigal Son," based on the parable of the Prodigal Son. I saw two of her costumes and all I can say is: Wow!
One of the outfits had some beading on the top and a couple of scarves front and back. That's all, brother. The rest is just Lana. The other was a flowing chiffon gown that flowed in the right places.
The costumes, I was assured by producer Charles Schnee, are authentic as all get-out, having been copied from recent excavations of the period (about 100 B.C.). Well, there might have been a few elaborations by designer Herschel McCoy.
"He's great," said Lana. "And he didn't object to a little editing here and there. For instance, that braided number had thick material all over. I knew it would look big, but you couldn't tell them that until they saw it on the screen. So I waited for the tests, and I was right: I looked big as a house. All the heavy beads came off."
