

FROZEN SUCKERS, using fruit-flavored gelatin and soft drink powder, are wonderful to serve to youngsters or grown-ups on a hot summer day. They are easy to prepare and the small hostess can make them practically all by herself. Just dissolve 1 package strawberry Jell-O, 1 package strawberry Kool-Aid and 1 cup sugar in 2 cups hot water. Add 2 cups cold water, mixing thoroughly. Pour into ice cube trays and freeze until almost firm. Then push a sucker stick or wooden spoon into the center of each cube for handle. Continue freezing until hard. Makes 20 to 24 suckers.

GOLDEN FRUIT CUP

For six servings, combine 1 cup white table wine, 1/2 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon grated orange peel. Bring to boil in a saucepan, stirring until sugar is dissolved; simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add 1/2 cup canned apricot nectar, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and dash of salt. When completely cool, pour over 1 quart fruit (any desired combination of fresh, canned or frozen fruits.) Cover and chill several hours before serving.

Has Dior Gone Too Far?

Fashion is based on change—but you can have too much of a good thing. That summarizes just about everyone's opinion when announcement was made that Christian Dior had "abolished the bustline." Now that the tumult and shouting has subsided, it appears that Dior's "flattened bustline" silhouette is not revolutionary, but evolutionary, according to the Corset and Brassiere Association of America. The association states, "The bust line is raised and rounded—not flattened. Waistlines are eased; hips are smoother; thus the bust seems flatter because there is less contrast in contours." Naturally, the corset and brassiere industry has followed developments with great interest, for the look of fashion really begins with foundation garments. The industry is prepared to offer the proper underlines for an eased silhouette. It has, in fact, started the trend to casual corsetry with garments available this fall to coordinate with current ready-to-wear styles which are relaxed in line. "Manufacturers will not fashion garments reminiscent of bindings women wore in the 1920's to achieve the beanpole look of the flapper," the association announces. "Such a thing is downright unhealthy," points out John C. Gonyer, executive director of the association. "Medical authorities agree that unnatural flattening of the breasts is injurious to tissue. After years of fashion emphasis on the bustline, why should women suddenly deny they have curves?" "The bust line will appear higher
