

Game Officer Visits KF

Hugh M. Worcester, Tulelake Fish and Wildlife refuge manager from September 1931 to October 1934, who with Mrs. Worcester spent several days here last week from Berkeley, is the author of a book, "Hunting the Lawless," which will be off the press sometime in January. The volume deals with his experiences as a law enforcement officer.

Worcester was relieved at Tulelake by C. G. Fairchild and went to Berkeley as game management agent, a position he held until his retirement last June. He has spent most of his adult life in game enforcement work.

While here they visited with Mrs. Worcester's mother, Mrs. Lena Low, Klamath County pioneer, her brother Lloyd Low and family, a sister, Mrs. Elsie Siemens and other relatives.

They were accompanied here by Lloyd Clifton, also of Berkeley who visited his mother, Mrs. Sam Walker, Klamath County pioneer, and Mr. Walker, one of the county's earliest deputy sheriffs.

Two other cows in the ownership group owned by Mario Rizzardo were in the 70 to 100 pound butterfat production class.

Other cows in the standard testing program producing 70 pounds of butterfat or more were two owned by Stan Masten and Son; three by Ray Hobson and two owned by Earl Tilton, and one each owned by Frank Baugh, Ken Waters, Homer Baldwin, Leonard Harms, Myron Haskins, Ed Born and C. W. Ogle.

State 4-H Sale Plans Announced

Market livestock shown by 4-H Club members at the Oregon State Fair will be sold by sealed bid this year. Cal G. Monroe, state 4-H extension agent, has announced. In past years, 4-H and FFA members have sold their stock at a joint auction.

Monroe said the new show schedule brought about the change. Club members will show their animals September 4 to 6 with their sale on September 7, and FFA will take over the same facilities for the last half of the fair.

Buyers will be invited to come to the fairgrounds to examine animals, meet the club members who raised them and place their bids from 9 a.m. to noon September 7. Monroe said, at the end of the selling period, the animals will be sold to the highest bidder.

Club members will not be required to sell their animals, the 4-H agent explained, and they may close a sale with a bidder during the selling period without waiting to open bids.

Your Load Heavy?

Geo. N. Taylor
The yoke did not fit and the ox could not pull the load, so Christ, the Carpenter of Nazareth made a new yoke that did fit. Going back to that, years later, Christ told the crowd: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.—Mt. 11:29. And You?—You cry yourself to sleep on your pillow from sheer loneliness. You wed the wrong life-partner, maybe. You fret under endless tasks in kitchen, barn, office or machine shop. Or is it the wage and labor problem or the hiring of men or looking for a job? Whatever your load, quit fretting... whatever your load, Christ tells you to come to Him. He is God's wisdom and strength for us here and now. But first make Him your Lord and Savior. His power, wisdom and strength bid the saved come to Him.
