

Adlai Raps Ike's Labor Relations

CHICAGO (AP)—Rapping the Eisenhower administration for its labor-management record, Adlai E. Stevenson said yesterday a Republican campaign promise to revise the Taft-Hartley Act was not kept.

For the Eisenhower administration, he said, this has been a year of "futility, or worse," in meeting problems of labor-management relationship.

"Politics dropped to a new low in connection with the revising of the Taft-Hartley Act following the Republicans' great promises of a change, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee said.

Addressing some 3,500 delegates at the 25th convention of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Stevenson said:

"The Republican candidate in that campaign (Eisenhower) said what he called 'union-busting provisions' should be removed. They haven't been. Consider the series of events in which the White House produced some reasonable proposals, then withdrew them under such obvious pressure that labor's sole Cabinet representative (Martin Durkin) resigned in protest."

Stevenson extended his criticism to include the National Labor Relations Board, saying that Eisenhower had appointed three men who are representative of management and that one, he said, has described himself as a "union buster." Stevenson said they were interpreting the labor laws to destroy advantages which he said had been given to unions during previous Democratic administrations.

He said the rules restraining employer interference in union organizing campaigns and representation elections have been changed to permit the employer "to throw his full weight against an organizing movement."

Stevenson told the electrical workers there will be no depression within the next year because the American people will compel the administration to prevent it.

Red Cross Aquatic School Ends First Oregon Session

California has led the parade of students at the National Red Cross Aquatic School which will terminate 10 days of instruction in water safety, life saving, first aid and other classes at noon Wednesday, September 1. This is the first time the school has been held in Oregon.

The school, at Camp McLoughlin, Medford Boy Scout Camp, Lake of the Woods, drew 57 students from California, 16 from Oregon, seven from Washington, three from Montana and two from Idaho. Peak was 108 with 83 students staying for the entire program.

There have been 43 college students, 14 teachers, nine housewives, three state police, two U. S. Navy veterans, one each, Air Force man, Coast Guardsman, dentist, librarian, Girl Scout director, race-track driver, school superintendent, insurance agent, foreman and a warehouse manager. Thirty four men and 51 women registered.

Classes have been taught out of doors under the trees except during the cold wet spell when temperature dropped to 40 degrees.

Applicants must be instructor material, no beginners are accepted. The training received at the school prepares the student to return to home communities ready to teach other volunteers in Red Cross Chapters. A few go into paid positions.

The schools are self sustaining and no funds are drawn from either local Red Cross chapters or the national headquarters.

A charge of $45 for the entire term covered board, room, tuition and equipment.

Sail, rowboats and canoes, owned by Klamath Falls residents were loaned to the students. A nominal charge was paid for use of the Boy Scout camp.

Excellent meals were provided by the B. F. McGough Catering Service, Phoenix, Arizona. Mr. McGough who serves meals "wherever I can set up a table and a chair," was accompanied by Mrs. McGough and two assistants. Chicken was on the menu several times and students reported putting on lots of weight in spite of strenuous exercise.

Approximately $2500 was spent with Klamath Falls grocers and butchers for food. Students who expected warm weather also spent a considerable amount in town for warm clothing.

Students slept in sleeping bags in floored tents, roused each morning at 6:30 a.m. for breakfast at 7:10.

A physician, Dr. James Yant, and a nurse, Hazel Wayne, Medford were on duty at all times. Only one case of sniffles was reported in addition to a few minor bumps and sprained ankles. One student broke a finger while operating a row boat.

Members of the staff included Bob Smith, Sacramento, director; Les Roberts, assistant director for Washington and northern Idaho taught first aid and water safety; Les Penke, Milwaukee, Oregon, sailing; Stan H. Bohman, Milwaukee, small craft instruction; Bill Losutoff, Sacramento, small craft; Marjorie Yant, Sacramento, individual development swimming; Edith Hess, Sacramento, standard first aid; Dan Bulkley, Ashland, coach at Southern Oregon College, swimming; Jean Ryder, associate professor, Oregon State College, swimming; Bill Neiroth, Yuba City California, swimming; Dick Kelley, Sacramento, swimming.

Smith expressed appreciation to the people of Klamath Falls for the hospitality extended and for the interest shown in the school.

August 17 has been set as the date for the opening of the 1955 school at Lake of the Woods, said by Red Cross aquatic officials to be one of the finest locations for a school on the Pacific Coast.
